SAS Tries to Quash POW Release Rumor

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The Scandinavian airline said today a report that American military officials had asked the airline to fly 187 American prisoners of war from Laos to Europe was incorrect.

The earlier report had brought a flood of official denials from American and North Vietnamese officials.

The airline said today its office in West Germany had been approached in mid-July by a "private individual" who wanted to arrange a charter flight from Laos to Rome "for 187 passengers."

"It was never mentioned that the category of passengers was military personnel," SAS said in a statement released today.

The airline said it made preliminary arrangements and was ready to sign a contract, but this "has been called off by the private ntact of SAS in Germany."

The "private individual" was not identified by name or nationality.

The report of a prospective POW flight was first published Wednesday night in Sweden's biggest newspaper, Dagens Nyheter, which said the flight would be on Aug. 12.

Charter Airlift

This was followed by an announcement from an SAS spokesman that U.S. military authorities in West Germany had asked to charter a DC8 to airlift 187 POWs from Vientiane, the Laotian capital, to Rome by way of Bangkok.

Dagens Nyheter charged SAS with "giving way to political pressure to soft pedal the whole thing."

Editor in Chief Boerje Dahlqvist maintained the newspaper's report, attributed to "sources," was "wholly correct as it stands," but refused to identify his sources. He did not specify what "political pressure" he claimed had been applied.

"When we deliberated about the publication of this report, everything seemed in order and there was no reason to hold it back," he said. "I'm not prepared to guess as to what will happen now."

SAS spokesman Jack Herbert said: "Nuts to Dagens Nyheter. "I can't give any explanation about this whole thing other than to say that a lot of people were unavailable when this story broke and that we could not sort things out until now."

In Washington, President Nixon's news secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, said the U.S. government "has not been informed of any such plan, nor has the U.S. participated in negotiating a plan such as suggested in the Swedish newspaper."

"Further, the U.S. government at any level has not requested the Scandinavian airline, SAS, to proceed as suggested in the Swedish newspaper," Ziegler added.

Xuan Thuy, North Vietnam's chief negotiator at the Paris peace talks, called the reports "excessive imagination," while Truong Gia Nhan, an attache at the North Vietnamese Embassy in Stockholm, termed the report a "fabrication" and said it was "totally unfounded."

Impossible

"A release of American prisoners in the present situation is impossible in view of President Nixon's unchanged attitude to the seven-point plan" offered by the Viet Cong at the Paris peace talks, he said.

Thuy, speaking to newsmen as he entered the 124th session of the peace talks, said unless President Nixon accepts the Communists' peace plan "the list of captured military men, far from becoming shorter will only lengthen."

U.S. military authorities in West Germany said they had not heard of any plan to fly 187 American prisoners of war out of Vientiane on an SAS charter jet.

Arne Bjornberg, the Swedish ambassador to Hanoi and Peking now in Stockholm on leave, expressed doubts about the SAS report. If it were true, he said, "it would mean the Americans have accepted Hanoi's demands for withdrawal of all American troops in Indochina."

Wednesday, before the airline's report, Nixon told a news conference that the United States was "very actively pursuing negotiations on Vietnam in established channels," never mentioning, however, specific efforts to gain the release of U.S. prisoners.

Nevertheless the SAS spokesman said his airline was "just awaiting a call from the Americans saying they are ready for signing a contract."

"When?" he was asked.

"Today, tomorrow or the day after tomorrow," he replied.

The officer in charge of prisoner affairs at the U.S. Embassy in the Laotion capital, Richard Rand, refused to comment on the SAS report, but added: "This office is not aware of any specific discussions with regard to these 187 prisoners."

Rand also refused to comment on reports of stepped-up diplomatic contacts with the Communist Pathet Lao. "I'm just not going to comments," he said. "The whole area is that sensitive."

"There have been continuing contacts," another diplomat in Vientaine said, "but they have been stepped up slightly between the U.S. Embassy and the Pathet Lao."

He said Rand had been assigned the specific job of following up the contacts. Heretofore, prisoner affairs had been handled by others in the embassy who were unable to devote full time to the task, the diplomat reported

Worden Makes First Walk in Deep Space

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Astronaut Alfred M. Worden took man's first walk in deep space today, floating like a feather nearly 200,000 miles from earth as he retrieved two film canisters from the rear of the streaking Apollo 15 spacecraft.

A television camera relayed clear pictures to earth as Worden, bundled in a stiff pressure suit and attached to a 25-foot lifeline, made three 15-foot trips to the camera bay, twice to extract the film and once to inspect equipment.

He stepped through the open hatch at 10:40 a.m. CDT and was back inside the cabin just 18 minutes later, the 10th man to take a walk in space, and the first to do so that far from his home planet

With the hatch open, the entire cabin was exposed to the vacuum of space, so David R. Scott and James B. Irwin also wore protective spacesuits.

Irwin Assist

Irwin poked the upper part of his body out of the hatch to guide Worden's life support hose, to photograph him and to help him move the film canisters into the cabin

"It's remarkable," Worden exclaimed the breathtaking vista of sun, stars, sky and moon around him. He was about 197,000 miles from earth and 48,000 from the moon.

He looked back at Irwin, silhouetted against the fast-receding moon and said: "You look absolutely fantastic against that moon back there. That is really the most unbelievable, remarkable thing."

The television pictures showed him obviously enjoying the stroll, at times kicking himself off the side of the craft and spinning completely around in his silent, weightless world.

The command ship Endeavour was streaking toward home at more than 2,000 miles an hour after six days of lunar exploration.

Worden took only a few seconds to move along handrails to the camera bay. He first removed a 23-pound cassette from a mapping camera, returned to the hatch and handed it to Irwin.

Rest Stop

On the second trip to the bay he called a "rest stop" and inspected a scientific experiment boom and a camera sensor which had been giving them some trouble. He reported a cover jammed on the goom and could discover nothing wrong with the sensor.

At the request of Mission Control, Worden made a third trip to inspect the camera bay for anything unusual. He reported nothing.

The television camera showed the space walker moving rather clumsily at first as he moved outside.

As he accustomed himself to the strange, eerie environment, he floated easily in a world visited by only nine previous men—six Americans and three Russians.

Earlier today, Mission Control calculated Apollo 15 was on such an accurate course that it canceled a planned course correction.

Worden's space walk was necessary because the camera bay is jettisoned before re-entry and doesn't return to earth with the spacemen.

The film casettes contain about two miles of high resolution pictures of nearly 20 per cent of the lunar surface, including what are expected to be the best pictures yet of the hidden backside.

Before opening the hatch, the astronauts depressurized the cabin, bleeding out oxygen until the atmosphere inside the craft matched the vacuum outside.

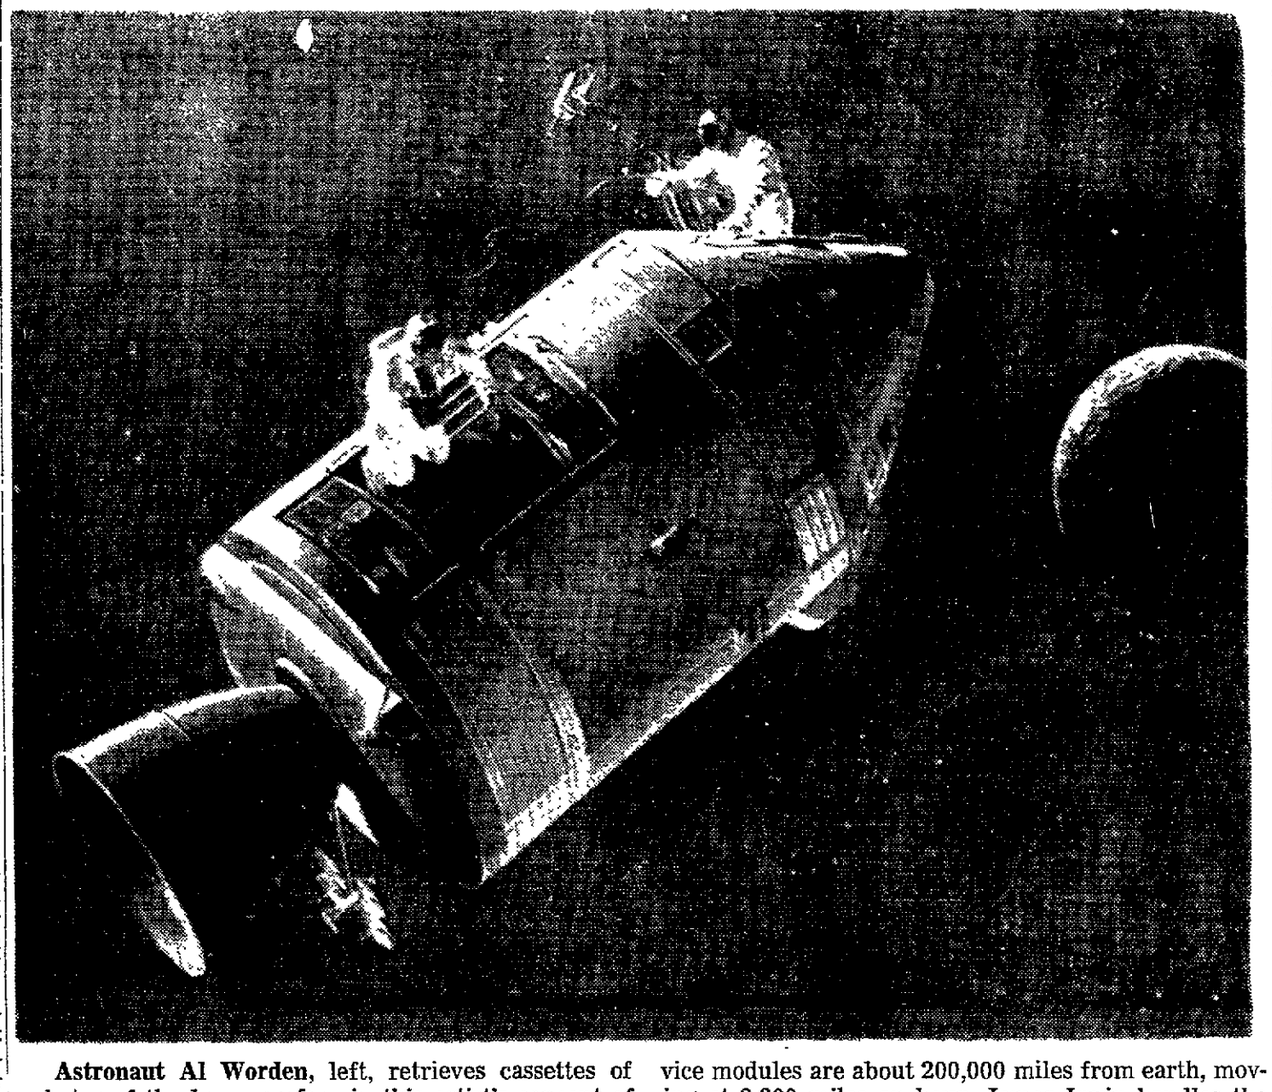

On opening the hatch, the astronauts tossed a few bags of garbage and unwanted articles into space.

The explorers were awakened at 4:20 a.m. and told they would not have to make a small course correction because they were on target for Saturday's landing in the Pacific Ocean.

"You're so close to course we're going to give you the Vasco da Gama navigation award," capsule communicator Joe Allen said.

Da Gama, a late 15th century Portuguese navigator, was the first European to sail to India.

At 7:49 a.m., Apollo 15 sped through a "twilight zone" where it escaped the influence of lunar gravity and fell into the sphere of earth gravity. That was 204,138 miles from earth and 38,410 miles from the moon and the craft began accelerating.

Astronaut Al Worden, left, retrieves cassettes of photos of the lunar surface in this artist's concept of today's Apollo 15 task. The Apollo command and service modules are about 200,000 miles from earth, moving at 2,300 miles an hour. James Irwin handles the umbillical-tether line and monitor operation.

Nixon Relents, to Consider Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Switching his tactics, President Nixon has challenged Congress to structure a wage-price review board without binding the economy in a straitjacket of controls.

Welcoming a full-scale debate in Congress on the wage-price board proposal, Nixon said Wednesday he is now open-minded about the idea but still skeptical it would ever work or should even be tried. In the past, he had rejected such a move outright.

Nixon's new flexibility on the anti-inflation proposal was coupled with a pledge to move more vigorously against big wage and price increases in the economy on a case-by-case basis.

As Congress pondered his words, the Labor Department prepared a fresh reading on inflationary trends in the economy with a report on July wholesale-price movements.

Nixon's challenge to Congress on a wage-price board was delivered in a roundabout way. He said he would consider such an idea favorably only if hearings convince him it could be done without stifling the economy.

"The problem here is, how can we move without putting the American economy in a straitjacket?" Nixon asked in an impromptu news conference.

He said he would reject any proposal that "would impose a new bureaucracy with enormous criminal powers to fasten itself on the American economy. That, I think, would do far more harm than good."

But, if a wage-price board proposal concerned itself with only voluntary guidelines, he said, that would never work, either. Voluntary compliance with guidelines may work for only three or four months before leading to a new wage-price spiral, he said.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns has suggested a board without enforcement powers to monitor and investigate big wage and price increases. Some Democrats have suggested a board with strong enforcement powers.

Legislation introduced by 13 Republican senators Wednesday, a move triggering Nixon's response, would set up a board to establish wage-price guidelines and enforce them through government procurement policies or a wage-price freeze.

Although Nixon's statement against "a new bureaucracy" appeared to rule out support for the senators' plan, he added in referring to congressional proposals:

"As far as we are concerned, we have an open mind in terms of examining the various proposals to see if there is a new approach which we may not have thought of.

"I have serious doubts that they will find such a new approach, bu I do want to indicate that we will examine it because we all agree that the wage-price spiral is a significant danger to this expanding economy. The question is what we do about it, without going all the way to a totally controlled economy."

Making Progress

Nixon said his administration is making progress on both the unemployment and inflation fronts. He said the jobless rate will decline for the balance of the year. And he stood behind his earlier prediction that 1971 will be a "good year" and a "very good year" for the economy.

Nixon said he has asked Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson to inform him of every major wage and price "negotiation" in the economy.

"I will use the power of this office to the extent it can be effective to see that those negotiations are as responsible as possible," he said.

House Approves Draft Authority

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says he won't aid a filibuster against the House-passed compromise bill to extend the draft. But backers concede the bill can't become law for at least a month.

Passed by the House Wednesday 297 to 108, the measure contains a $2.4-billion-a-year military pay raise and a compromise provision urging President Nixon to negotiate a final date for withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Indochina.

The war-pullout measure was the first such language ever approved by the House, which earlier voted down a stronger proposal made by Mansfield and passed by the Senate. A House-Senate conference worked out the compromise, which doesn't please Mansfield and other Senate doves.

Original Amendment

Mansfield said in an interview he may revive his original amendment, which would make it U.S. policy to get out of Indochina in nine months if all American prisoners are released. But he said he wouldn't try to attach it to the compromise draft bill.

"I don't intend to be obstructionist," Mansfield said. "I don't intend to filibuster and I don't intend to vote for the bill."

The draft bill is not expected to come up in the Senate until after the month-long congressional recess that begins Friday.

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said it should be the first order of business after the Senate reconvenes Sept. 8.

The old draft law expired June 30 and officials say if a new one isn't passed soon they may have to use residual authority to call up some men who had been deferred.

Lottery Held

Meanwhile, the Selective Service went ahead today with the lottery that will determine the order in which men who turn 19 next year will face military service.

Stennis said he did not anticipate a great deal of trouble in winning passage of the draft bill. But Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, said he will be on hand to filibuster as soon as the bill comes up.

He said he hopes to muster a 12-man force of draft-bill opponents in an effort to talk it to death.

"I think we can hold out indefinitely as long as we've got the votes to ward off cloture," Gravel said. "It's going to take a two-thirds vote to get that bill through now or a month from now or 10 weeks from now."

That is the margin required to break a filibuster and limit debate in the Senate. The Senate limited debate to get the bill through in the first place, but some senators who voted to do so said they acted only because the Mansfield amendment was part of the package.

Draft Lottery Held

Men Learn Order of Call-Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The national lottery to assign draft numbers to men turning 19 years old this year and establish the order of callups next year began today with June 20 getting No. 30.

The second number drawn gave No. 70 to those whose birthday is Sept. 2.

The first numbers were drawn by two of six youth advisers to the Selective Service System, J. Brewster Bede of Morton, Wash., age 22, and Valerie Van Buren of Washington, D.C.

The matching of numbers and birthdates started after the plexiglass drums holding the capsules had been rotated to mix them up for half an hour.

Curtis W. Tarr, draft director, came from a sick bed to open the ceremonies and say that the chances of these young men being drafted next year are growing slimmer as the military manpower needs go down.

The draft law expired June 30 and Congress is not expected to pass a new one until after it takes a summer vacation ending Sept. 8.

Of the nearly two million men born in 1952, only a fraction can expect to be drafted. The Pentagon has estimated it will need 114,000 draftees in the fiscal year that ends next June 30, and the winding down of the Vietnam war has steadily reduced draft calls.

"Over this past year, draft calls have been significantly lower than in the past," he said. "In 1972, the year in which most of the men whose numbers are drawn today will be eligible for induction, we expect the draft calls will be even lower."

Lottery numbers are listed on page A-2.

Men who turn 19 in 1971 but who are exempted or deferred still keep the draft numbers drawn today. The numbers will determine their draft priority at such time as they become eligible and go through a year's exposure to the call-up process.

Men born in 1951 or earlier are not affected. They keep numbers assigned in two previous lotteries.

Capsules containing numbers and birthdates were filled in random sequence Tuesday. Birthdates went into brown capsules and the numbers 1 through 366 went into yellow ones. There were 366 days in 1952, a leap year. Birthdates are matched with numbers, and men whose birthdays are assigned No. 1 are called up first.

This year's lottery procedure was streamlined in hopes of shortening it. It took 3½ hours last year.

Last year more than 100 "youth advisers" took turns plucking the capsules out of two drums, rotating the drum to mix the capsules after each draw.

This year's procedure had six advisers taking turns drawing lots of 20 capsules each, with only three spins of the drum every 20 draws.

This is the second year of the random selection system of rotating drums and using computerized scrambles to decide the sequence of putting the birthdates and numbers into the drums. This complicated process was devised after complaints that the first lottery was unfair.

Lucey Asks Senate Action

Compromise Merger Wins Support

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Gov. Patrick J. Lucey today asked the Senate to adopt a merger proposal that he says has the approval of all parties to the marriage of the University of Wisconsin and Wisconsin State Universities.

The governor held a press conference this morning with UW President John Weaver to announce several proposed amendments to the latest merger bill that meat objections reported by Weaver at a news conference Tuesday.

The meeting in the governor's office capped two days of negotiations between the governor's office and representatives of the faculties and administrations of the two systems Lucey said, however, that Eugene McPhee, executive director of the WSU system was not directly involved in the discussion.

In the amendment, mission statements that had been expanded considerably for the state universities would be restored to the language approved by the Coordinanting Council for Higher Education. The UW central administration would be the key administrative unit of the merged system, with former WSU administrators reporting to Weaver during the transition.

The campus councils proposed by Lucey in the original merger bill would be retained, but reduced in size and put under the chairmanship of the chancellors and presidents of the campusses.

The total merger of the two administrative staffs would be completed by July 1, 1973.

Weaver had expressed what he called "grave concern" about four aspects of the bill approved last week by the Joint Finance Committee. He said the amendments are "directly responsive to my primary concerns."

"I am pleased with the amendments" he said, but acknowledged that he is still responsible to his board of regents that is on record in opposition to any merger of the two systems.

In a letter to the majority and minority party leaders in the Senate, Lucey outlined the compromise amendments, and called on the Senate to act "now" on merger. The Senate was asked to reconvene today so the Republicans could hold a caucus about budget deliberations.

Senate Republicans have also called a news conference for late this afternoon. If a two-thirds majority of the upper house can be called together for the purpose of the merger bill it could be acted upon today.

Lucey said he was confident that if the Senate could act today, the Assembly could approve the merger next week. In a speech to the Senate several months ago, the gover-

Second Childhood Better Than First

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions

If a man lives long enough, he often goes through two childhoods In his mature middle years he looks back and fondly idealizes his first childhood; he looks forward apprehensively to his second childhood. In a way this is unrealistic, because of his two childhoods the second is far less likely to be painful.

If human nature isn't inherently combative and contentious, why is it that when one person announces what time it is, everybody else is hearing distance looks at his own watch to see how wrong the other fellow was?

Arcestor worship, like charity, should begin at home—but first someone there has to do something worth idolizing

Ever notice how many superstitious men, when they can't find a piece of wood nearby to knock on three times in order to avert a peril or bring good luck, will rap on their head instead? This actually does nothing but shake up their dandruff, but it pleases them as much as if they had bruised their knuckles on a redwood tree

Commonplace Miracle

The modern newspaper is one of today's miracles that have become commonplace through familiarity and therefore taken for granted. But with what else can you wrap a fish, line a shelf, and inform a human mind with truth?

When a hen lays an egg, she wants to cackle the glad news to all the barnyard. When a man lays one, he'd rather let anyone else get the credit. This is what is known as modesty.

A yawn may be impolite, but there is no more honest form of criticism.

When the office boy comes in wearing a monocole, every old-timer in the place says to himself, "Well, there's at least one kid that isn't going to take my job away from me later."

Hell hath no hidden fury like that of a secretary whom the boss takes out once—but never again.

Young Detective

Scratch the average young detective and you'll find a frustracted actor. The younger he is, the more he likes to wear disguises and pretend to be a dope addict, bum or street beggar The older he grows, the more he likes to act like himself and depend on career informers in the underworld for the information on which he makes his arrests.

Among the two most "unionized" professional people today are schoolteachers and doctors. One wonders what would happen if preachers were as well organized How long could the nation hold out if a vast majority of its priests and ministers refused to deliver church sermons, baptize the young, pronounce a couple man and wife, or conduct services for the dead?

The American peoples' curious preoccupation with sex remains one of the most puzzling phenomena of our times. Three-fourths of them don't know what it's all about—and the other fourth don't know where it went.

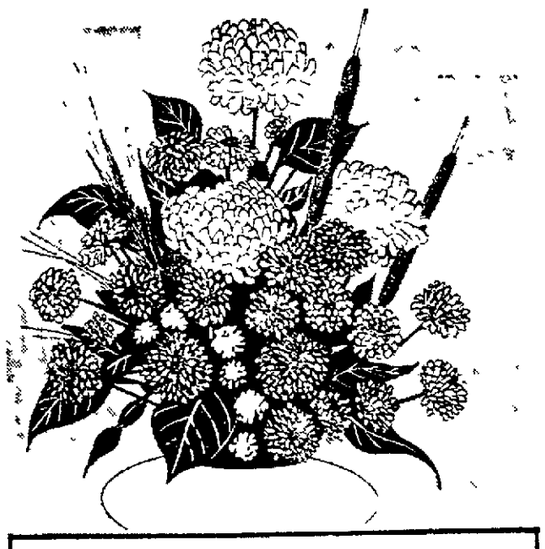

A liberated woman is one who doesn't mind standing in any line so long as she's ahead of a man—unless it's a breadline.

Works Board Asks Architect To Return Plans

School Renovation Delayed Because Firm Has Drawings

An Appleton architect has been asked by the Board of Public Works to return borrowed plans for the Appleton Vocational School so another ardhitectural firm can finish a renovation study.

The board made the request Tuesday after Building Inspector Charles Magnette identified the firm holding the plans as that of George Narovec & Associates.

He said the firm borrowed the plans for the existing school while the city was taking proposals from architects to study converting the building to a police station.

Has Plans

Narovec still has the plans, but the city has engaged Sauter, Seaborne, Paynter & Duszak, Ltd., to perform the study. Sauter, Seaborne recently notified the city that its study is being held up for lack of the plans.

The board told Magnette to ask Narovec to return the plans by Aug. 10.

In other action, subject to City Council ratification tonight, the board:

— Recommended acceptance of a petition to annex 63 acres on the North Side from the Town of Grand Chute to the City. Known as the Fiesta Annexation, the tract includes both residential and commercial property and a trailer park, located between Richmond and Drew streets. Boundaries of the annexation tract sidestep the Grand Chute Town Hall.

— Assigned Pulbic Works Director Robert Miller to divide a 33-acre portion of the Roeland Annexation on the south side, into three parcels for offer for sale. The city bought the land just before annexing it and surrounding territory from the Town of Harrison and Town of Menasha in 1968

— Recommended vacating an alley easement on the north side of the Appleton Theater on Oneida Street to First Federal Savings & Loan, which recently purchased the theater building according to information given the board.

Suburbia Dissatisfied With Nixon Economy

President's Economic Policy Could Cost Him Election if Muskie Is '72 Opponent

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

LAGRANGE HIGH L A N D S, Ill — In this comfortably prosperous white middle-income suburb just west of Chicago, dissatisfaction with the economic policy of President Nixon runs so deep it could devastate him in 1972 — if Sen. Edmund

Evans

Nowak

Muskie of Maine is the Democratic nominee.

That is the only conclusion that can be drawn from eight hours of interviewing registered voters here with Oliver Quayle's polling organization. These predominantly conservative Republican voters, while enthusiastically endorsing Nixon's China initiatives, made clear they are much more concerned about dollars and cents issues — particularly inflation.

Even so, however, they decisively prefer Nixon for reelection over either Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota or Sen Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, the two most likely alternatives to Muskie for the Democratic nomination. Muskie is another matter, displaying as much strength here as the President and perceived by these voters as a moderate who might just be a little less the slick politician than Nixon.

How loudly this sounds a blood-chilling alarm in the night for Republicans can be appreciated only by considering the two precincts where we did all our interviewing (accompanied by Quayle polltakers Ilene Evins and Renee Tunick).

Carried by Nixon

Selected by election analyst Richard Scammon for the orthodoxy of their Republicanism, these precincts were carried overwhelmingly by Nixon in 1968 and were even won by Ralph T. Smith last year in the one-sided loss of his Senate seat to Adlai E. Stevenson III Out of 51 registered voters interviewed, 32 told us they voted for Nixon in 1968 compared with 14 for Humphrey, two for Gov. George Wallace of Alabama and three not voting or not sure. An even split in LaGrange Highlands would mean statewide disaster in Illinois.

Our interviews showed the 1968 ratio applies to Nixon-Humphrey and Nixon-Kennedy races for 1972. The President still doubles the vote on Humphrey, 32 to 16 (wth three for Wallace and three not sure) and does even better, 37 to eight, against Kennedy (with two for Wallace and three not sure). But Nixon now gets only 25 votes to Muskie's 24, with one for Wallace and one not sure.

Typical is a 49-year-old insurance broker, a registered Republican who thinks the President "is doing a badly below-average job on economics" but would still prefer him to Humphrey or Kennedy. As of now, however, he supports Muskie.

Other potential Muskie Republicans here complained about Nixon moving too slowly out of Vietnam. The 32-year-old wife of a factory supervisor told us she would switch to Muskie because "I'm so disappointed that Nixon has continued the war."

Economy Important

It is the economy, however, that undercuts Nixon in this well-manicured s u b u r b. Although our voters gave the President a 52 per cent approval rating (above his national average), his rating on handling inflation was 12 per cent and on unemployment 10 p e r cent (compared with 69 per cent approval of h i s diplomatic breakthrough with Communist China). These voters made unquestionably clear they regard their inflated grocery bills as infinitely more vital than Nixon's mission to Peking.

Kennedy and Humphrey, mention of their names evoking grunts of displeasure from many voters, seem congenitally unable to capitalize on this economic weakness. On the other hand, the image here of Muskie, though fuzzy, is even more favorable than Nixon's

Both the P r e s i d e n t and Muskie are regarded as "intelligent" and "experienced and qualified," but whereas Nixon is seen as "too political," Muskie is considered "politically clean" and "down to earth." Kennedy, in contrast, is considered "not big enough for the job" and "self-seeking and opportunistic."

Muskie's strength in these R e p u blican suburbs is enhanced by the s u r p r i s i n g vagueness of opinion about him, far less defined than in the cases of the President, Humphrey or Kennedy. That may change for the worse once White House political strategists open fire on Muskie, particularly if Muskie's leftish staffers finally manage to shove him out of the middle of the road. But for now, the cold chill from the s u b u r b s contrasts strikingly with the warm p o l i t i c a l euphoria, rising by the day, inside the White House.

Kentuck' Brunswick Stew

AMERICANA from your kitchen

By Lillian Mackesy POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR

When it comes to heirloom recipes, American homemakers can really rally 'round. This country probably has more variety in its "hand-me-down receipts" than any other in the world, simply because its people came from everywhere.

There are the down-East recipes that grew up along the fishing coasts in the country's earliest days. There are the English puddings and foods that came over with the Mayflower and later boats . . there are the thoroughly all-American recipes that the Indians taught the earliest settlers to cook . . . There is the soul food of the South . and with these are the Brunswick stews the mountain man of the Dan'l Boone era used to concoct with squirrel meat.

As the people moved westward, the foods changed with the necessities of life and the settlers of the Midwest evolved a farm cookery all their own . . . delicious, ribsticking vittles to keep a pioneer going. As the country expanded, we gained the best of the Creole kitchens of an earlier French-Spanish day. The food crops that grew on the land in the variable climates of this new world are responsible for many dishes. The settlers themselves, such as the lead miners of southern Wisconsin, who came from Cornwall, brought their own "receipts" with them and adapted them to their new community life. Thus, the triangular Cornish pasty (it rhymes with "nasty") or pastry pie still is a part of the modern cookery of Mineral Point, Wis.

Just for the fun of it . . . and for good eating . . . the recipes today all are based on heirloom recipes that qualify as Americana. Only these offered today have been updated for a modern touch.

MOLASSES TAFFY APPLES

- ¾ cup molasses
- ¾ cup sugar
- ¾ cup water
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon ground cloves
- ¼ teaspoon ground ginger
- 6 tablespoons lemon juice
- 8 large apples
- Whipped cream

In 10-inch skillet combine molasses, sugar, water, spices and lemon juice; bring to boil. Pare and core apples. Add to molasses mixture; cover and simmer 15 minutes. Uncover and simmer 30 minutes longer. Spoon syrup over apples frequently. Cool in syrup. Serve with whipped cream.

PLUM TARTS

- 2 cups unsifted flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅔ cup margarine or butter
- 6 tablespoons ice water (about)
- ½ cup margarine or butter
- 1 cup plum preserves
- 1 cup sugar
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 3 eggs, beaten
- Whipped cream

Combine flour and one teaspoon salt in bowl; cut in two-thirds cup shortening with pastry blender or two knives until mixture resembles coarse meal. Stir in ice water to make dough; mix well. On lightly floured board, roll out half the dough to about one-eighth-inch thickness. Cut into four-inch rounds. Repeat with remaining dough. Press dough rounds into muffin pans. Set aside.

Melt half - cup margarine (second part of recipe) in saucepan. Stir in plum preserves, sugar and one-eighth teaspoon salt. Cook over medium heat, stirring frequently, until mixture comes to boil. Blend portion of hot mixture slowly into beaten eggs; return this mixture to hot mixture, taking care to keep smoothness. Spoon filling into reserved tart shells, spooning about 2 tablespoons for each pastry shell. Bake in preheated, 375-degree oven until done, between 25 and 30 minutes. Remove tarts from pan; cool on wire rack. Serve topped with whipped cream. Recipe makes about 20 tarts.

BRUNSWICK STEW

- 2 medium onions
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 (3 lb.) chicken fryers, cut in pieces
- ½ teaspoon marjoram
- 1½ teaspoon salt
- 2 (16 oz.) jars meatless spaghetti sauce
- ½ cup water
- 1 (12 oz.) can whole kernel corn
- 1 (1 lb.) can lima beans

Peel onion; slice. Chop celery. Melt one tablespoon butter in skillet. Add onions, celery and cook until tender. Remove from skillet. Melt remaining butter. Brown chicken in butter. Add onions, celery to skillet. Add marjoram, salt, meatless spaghetti sauce, water to chicken. Bring to boil. Reduce heat to simmer. Cover and cook gently for about 45 minutes. Drain corn and lima beans and add to chicken. Cook for about 5 minutes longer. Recipe makes six servings.

REGAL BREAD PUDDING

- 2½ cups milk
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 4 cups bread cubes (6 slices, cubed)
- 1 can (1 lb.) fruit cocktail, drained
- 2 egg yolks, beaten
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- Meringue

Heat milk in large saucepan until almost simmering; stir in sugar and salt; cool to lukewarm. Stir in bread cubes, fruit, egg yolks and vanilla. Turn into greased, 6-ounce baking dishes; place baking dishes on baking sheet. Bake in preheated, 350-degree oven 30 minutes. Remove from oven; top with meringue, spreading to edge of dishes. Return to oven; bake 10 to 15 minutes longer, or until meringue is golden brown. Serve hot.

MERINGUE

- 2 egg whites
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup sugar

Beat egg whites and salt together in small mixing bowl until mixture is foamy. Gradually beat in sugar until

Chicken Steak Sandwich Idea

Here's an excellent idea for a clipping file or recipe box. It's a recipe for leftover chicken that's never-failed in preparation or taste appeal.

Dip slices of roast chicken or chicken roll in a favorite fritter batter sparked with poultry seasoning.

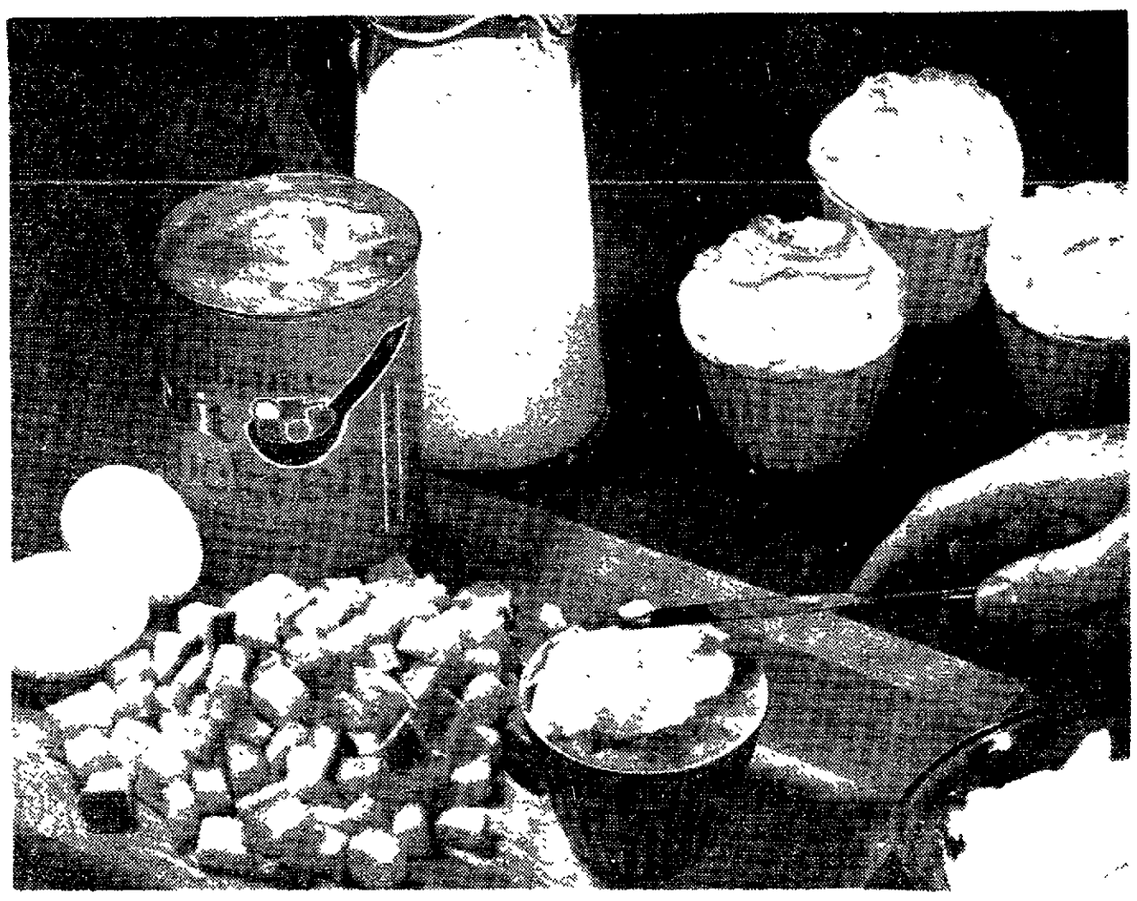

Sprinkle slices with sesame seeds and deep fry in 365 degree hot fat until lightly browned.

THE ACES

ON BRIDGE

IRA G. CORN JR.

TEAM CAPTAIN

Today's quiz is based on hands played between China and Australia in their play-off for third place in the world championship in Taiwan. Australia edged China and the final order of finish was The Aces, France, Australia, China, Brazil and North America.

Question No. 1. You are South, vulnerable, and hold:

♥ K Q J 10 8 7
♦ J 10 8 6 3
♣ Q

What do you bid after East deals and pre-empts with four spades?

The bidding:

East	South	West	North

Answer: The bidders are right and the passers are wrong. The entire deal:

♥ 5 4 3
♦ A Q 9 7 4 2
♣ K 10 4

WEST: ♠ J 9 7 6, ♥ 9 6, ♦ K 5, ♣ A 8 7 6 3
EAST: ♠ K Q 10 5 4 3 2, ♥ A 2, ♦ —, ♣ J 9 5 2

SOUTH
♥ K Q J 10 8 7
♦ J 10 8 6 3
♣ Q

In the playoff for third place between Australia and China, this hand helped Australia on to victory. In one room, the Chinese South passed over four spades and the Australian East - West pair made four spades for 420 points. When replayed, the Chinese East, Patrick Huang, also opened four spades

However, Jim Borin, playing with his wife to form the first husband-and-wife combination in competition for the Bermuda Bowl, bid a fearless five hearts to win a bundle of points. The Chinese continued on to six spades, got doubled, and were set 300 points.

A sizable Chinese loss had been ordained, however, the moment Borin bid five hearts. Five spades would have gone down, five hearts could have been defeated only by the unlikely lead or shift to a diamond by West. Whatever West did, he could not win.

Question No. 2. You are West, on lead against a slam and hold:

♠ 10 5
♥ 9 7 2
♦ Q 8 7 6 5
♣ 9 6 3

What do you lead after this bidding?

North	East	South	West
1 NT	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	6 ♠	All pas

South's two-club bid is the Stayman convention. North's two no trump denies a four-card major while four hearts shows good spade support and slam interest.

Answer: If you led a club, you beat the slam. All other leads give declarer a chance. The entire hand:

NORTH
♥ K Q 6
♦ A 10 2
♣ J 7 5 2

WEST: ♠ 10 5, ♥ 9 7 2, ♦ Q 8 7 6 5, ♣ 9 6 3
EAST: ♠ 9 6 2, ♥ J 8 5 4 3, ♦ 4, ♣ A K 10 4

SOUTH
♠ K J 8 7 3
♥ A 10
♦ K J 9 3
♣ Q 8

In the same playoff match between China and Australia, this hand swung 1,530 points (17 international match points) to China. Both teams reached the spade slam. The Chinese West lead a club; the Australian West, on the bidding shown, decided to lead a heart and declarer later finessed correctly in diamonds. As this hand demonstrates, a large swing sometimes depends on just a little bit of luck.

No Upsets in Octopus Rocker

Children have endless fun outdoors or indoors with this unique rocker. Since it has a width of 19 inches and a length of 57 inches, it is roomy and safety wheels on the ends prevent an upset, no matter how hilarious the riders become. The monster's head fascinates, with eyes that roll from side to side as the rocker rocks. Both rocker sides are cut from a panel of ¾ inch exterior plywood. Craft Pattern 2789 shows a full-sized pattern to simplify laying them out. With these cut, it is a quick job to cut and assemble the seat and floor boards. Brillion Woman Fulfills Duties At 25th Girls Nation Session

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Mrs. Lloyd Habermann, Brillion, head librarian of the Brillion Library, is in Washington this week fulfilling her duties as director of flag ceremonies and as assistant transportation chairman of the 25th session of Girls Nation, the American Legion Auxiliary's youth citizenship training program.

Appointed by the national president of the Auxiliary for her success as past department president of the Auxiliary in Wisconsin and as present national security chairman of the state organization, Mrs. Habermann directs patriotic rites attendant upon daily flag raising ceremonies. She also is steering her charges through the intricacies of official travel in Washington as the members of Girls Nation cover the miles between the offices of lawmakers, the Capitol, the White House and other historic points.

Mrs. Habermann is one of a large staff of American Legion Auxiliary and Girls Nation members who give their time and effort as volunteers to Girls Nation. It is their goal to make the project a model for training in good citizenship.

This year, Girls Nation, situated on the American University campus is functioning for a week in an environment geared to encourage learning. Administrative staff and junior counselors are available to each girl delegated for guidance, information and advice.

Personal and recreational facilities, too, have been provided. Events, religious and patriotic, as well as instructional are on the agenda. Delegates are housed in Mary Graydon Hall, the dormitory of girl students regularly enrolled at the university, and Leonard Hall on the campus is being used for the business of the assembly.

At this base, Girls Nation is functioning as a prototype of the federal government. The "senators" are organizing political parties, meeting in convention, nominating candidates and holding a national election.

In seven Senate sessions, they introduce, debate, and enact legislation; hold hearings, draft bills — and all in accordance with strict parliamentary procedure.

Off campus, the Girls Nation "national president" is inaugurated in the Capitol of the United States. The "Senators" are visiting their counterparts on Capitol Hill and being briefed in the Department of Defense and the State Department.

Among special events to make memorable the 1971 Girls Nation, are a visit to the White House, a reception in the diplomatic rooms of the State Department and an "Inaugural" luncheon at the Fort McNair's Officer Club.

Your Problems

Illegible Handwriting Causes Problems

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since you see more crazy handwriting, lousy spelling, undecipherable signatures and convoluted sentence structure than anyone in the world, you should be especially sympathetic to my problem.

I work for a direct mailing company. Every day we receive about 10,000 requests for gifts and catalogs. If we can't read an address we guess. If the writing is so bad that we can't even guess, we must throw away the letter. Within four weeks (the time allowed for delivery), we usually receive a nasty blast accusing us of being crooks, threatening us with the law, etc. Here is a sample:

"Dear Sir: Where is my catalog? What kind of a racket are you running anyway? If I don't get the catalog or my money back within a week I am going to the law. And hurry up because we are moving."

The signature looks like T. Myntrktlz. It might also be R. Hzmlsltyj. There is no address, no zip code, nothing to help us.

Also, a word to the postmen: Please, when there is a change of address, don't obliterate the old address. We need it so we can erase it from our computer tape. Also, Mr. Postman, please print the new address so everyone can read it — not just you. Thanks a heap. — Keyed Up Keypuncher

Dear Keyed: I know exactly what you are up against. Every now and then some irate reader accuses me of absconding to Mexico with the $1 they sent for two booklets. I hope a few million folks out there get the message. Thanks for writing — in penmanship I could read.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Five years ago our third child died of pneumonia when I was pregnant with the fourth. The anxiety and shock caused me to have a miscarriage. Eighteen months later I had a fifth child. Now when I attend P.T.A. or civic functions and someone asks how many children we have and what are their ages, I say 15, 13 and 3. Invariably someone will laugh and make a crude remark such as, "Wow 10 years apart! Ho, Ho, Ho. Never say die, eh?"

I would never embarrass anyone by setting him straight but perhaps if you print this letter it will educate people to be more careful about their cute remarks. — Mrs. S. Kearny, N.J.

Dear Mrs. S.: Sorry, in my opinion you are letting the clods off too easily. I think you ought to say, "We lost two before our youngest was born," and watch them stumble all over themselves apologizing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter received, as a graduation gift, a box of inexpensive dusting powder. The woman who sent it is a close friend of mine. The powder was obviously something she had received during a recent illness. I was hurt. I was also ashamed of myself for having put a dollar value on our friendship. Suddenly it occurred to me that what really bothered me was her lack of thought. I hope you will tell your readers that those who don't want to spent much can select some useful but inexpensive items. What counts is that some effort goes into the gift selection. For the bride: kitchen gadgets, gaily colored paper goods, dish towels. For the graduate: a charm for a bracelet, pens, pencils, a dictionary.

In time I will forgive my friend but my feelings for her will never be the same. I hate the fact that I shall never forget this petty incident. It makes me petty, too. Thanks for letting me express my bitterness.—Only Human

Dear Human: Some people have a cheap streak when it comes to gifts. Your friend is obviously one of those people. I can say nothing to improve the situation so I will simply say I'm glad I served a useful purpose.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers Send for her booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Scientists Spur Search for Risk-Free Proposals

EDITOR'S NOTE — Worry about the long-term safety of the pill has spurred scientists in their search for a risk-free contraceptive.

On the horizon—minipills, morning-after pills and operations to reverse sterilization. The following second of two articles by AP Science Editor Alton Blakeslee on Contraception '71 details these new developments.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press
Science Editor

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Population pressure is igniting an explosion of research—fueled by imagination and dollars—to develop new and completely safe and effective methods of birth control.

It promises new pills beyond the present pill, and improved devices, and it is prompting a volunteer army of men to undergo sterilization, with future promise of sterilization techniques, for men and women, that could be reversed if people later decided they wanted children.

And totally unexpected discoveries may turn up.

"The research people are quite imaginative these days. Many of their proposals look quite interesting, with good ideas for drugs and sterilization techniques." says Dr. Philip A. Corfman, director of the Center for Population Research of the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development here.

The center spent $28.1 million this fiscal year to support population research. Some was for contracts for investigations by private industry, others grants to individuals or institutions, while a small amount, $1.5 million went for intramural research at the institute, conducted by a staff of 54 persons under the direction of Dr. Charles Lowe.

The Tydings-Scheur bill passed by Congress last December called for boosting annual research funds to $65 million by 1973, and for supporting contraceptive services to the amount of $30 million in fiscal 1971, $60 million in 1972, and $90 million in 1973.

Even with the $38 million available for research this year—a boost of $10 million over last year—the center is able to fund only half of its approved applications.

Worry About Clots

Some spur to expanded research stems from worry about long-term safety of the pill, with authorities disagreeing whether the increased risk associated, for example, with blood clotting warrants turning from the pill. A majority of experts seem to think not, at least until something as effective as the pill comes along.

Last year, funds were doubled for research in evaluating the effects of oral contraceptives, to $3.5 million, in a program directed by Dr. John Schrogie, a clinical pharmacologist. This year, the program will spend about $4.3 million, mostly for research on the pill.

The three main avenues of research into new methods of birth control involve drugs, sterilization, and devices.

On new drugs:

Studies of basic physiology, of what happens in the various intricacies in the mechanisms of human reproduction, will bring insights for new drugs or other techniques for use by men as well as women, some authorities think. Some such findings will also assist childless couples to at least be able to conceive.

Meanwhile, research is well advanced on a small number of new drug candidates.

One is the minipill, containing only a small amount of the female hormone, progesterone, and free of the estrogen which is blamed for causing the clotting tendency in the current pill. The experiments include putting a year's supply of progesterone in a Silastic capsule, which is implanted under the skin, there to release a tiny amount of hormone daily.

More Side Effects

Another is the morning-after pill, a large dose of estrogen, or progestin which apparently acts to prevent a fertilized egg from becoming implanted in the wall of the uterus or womb. It's been called effective ever if taken a few days after insemination has occurred. Undesired side effects are a hurdle to its general use.

Other researchers report high promise from injections of hormones once every three or six months.

Still others have synthesized the brain hormone that sets in motion the cycle of release of hormones essential in ovulation, the menstrual cycle, and maintenance of a pregnancy. Now they hope to make a false substitute for this releasing factor, as it is called, that would prevent the pituitary gland from sending out its hormone instructions.

And there's keen interest in hormone-like substances known as prostaglandins, which have been used to induce early or late abortions, by intusion into a vein, or to induce labor when a woman is near term.

Now, experiments with tablets of prostaglandins placed in the vagina show promise of safely bringing on a menstrual period.

Sterilization:

Last year, 750,000 men voluntarily underwent sterilization by vasectomy, the severing of tubes through which sperm travel, and about 75 per cent of people volunteering for surgical sterilization now are men, says the Association for Voluntary Sterilization.

A simplified operation for women, with instruments inserted through two tiny incisions in the abdomen, severs the Pallopian tubes—pathways of eggs coming from the ovaries—and involves only a few hours time in a hospital.

Hopefully, new research will produce techniques that could be reversed with a later change of mind. One possibility is to block the male or female tubes with plugs that could be removed

Devices:

Newer kinds of mechanical devices that would prevent the mating of sperm and egg are proposed in some of the contract studies, but details have as yet to be kept confidential since they involve proprietary rights.

Intrauterine devices:

IUD's have found some increasing popularity, and improvements in design, with one major development the discovery by Dr. Jaime Zipper of the University of Chile that the element copper exerts an antifertility effect.

So copper has been added to two types of IUD's—one a "T" shape, the other a "7". Dr. Howard J. Tatum of the Population Council, who designed the copper-containing T, says it appears as effective in contraceptive action as the pill itself.

Bioengineers and specialists on materials have been enlisted in the search for more effective contraceptive devices, and the whole field of research is characterized increasingly by collaboration of specialists in numerous disciplines of science.

"New methods of contraception "can come only from understanding reproductive biology," says Dr. Lowe of the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development.

But the effort for more complete control over human numbers goes beyond that, into other factors, into behavioral studies including divorce and remarriage, illegitimacy, abortion, the relationships between sex roles and fertility, and support of the national survey of fertility and contraceptive practice.

KRAUT-MEAT PASTIES

- 2½ cups undrained sauerkraut
- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ½ cup lard
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon salad oil
- 1 pound ground round steak
- ½ pound lean ground pork
- ½ pound ground veal
- 2½ teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate
- ½ teaspoon marjoram leaves
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ½ cup seasoned bread crumbs (Italian style)

To make pastry: Drain sauerkraut very well, reserving 2 tablespoons kraut liquid. Sift together flour, salt and pepper; cut in lard. Add kraut with reserved liquid; combine by tossing with fork until fry ingredients moistened. Place in waxed paper; press together to form ball. Using rolling pin with cover. Roll out on well-floured pastry cloth, one-eighth of dough at a time, to 8-inch circles.

To make filling: Saute chopped onion in one tablespoon salad oil until crisp-tender. Stir in meats, salt, monosodium glutamate, marjoram and pepper. Cook, stirring, until meat is no longer pink, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in Italian style, seasoned bread crumbs.

Place about three-fourths cup meat filling on each pastry circle. Fold over; seal edges; prick top with fork. Place on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in 375-degree oven 40 to 45 minutes until lightly browned. Serve hot or cold, with or without gravy or sauce as desired. Recipe makes eight servings.

SCARLET SAUCE WITH YAMS

- ¾ cup red currant jelly
- ⅓ cup port wine
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ½ tablespoon grated orange peel
- ½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
- ⅛ cup orange juice
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon instant minced onion
- ¾ teaspoon Dijon mustard
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ginger
- 6 medium yams, cooked, peeled and quartered

In large skillet combine all ingredients except yams. Cook over medium heat until jelly is melted and mixture boils. Boil 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Add yams and stir to cook; cook until heated through. Serve with broiled ham steak. Recipe makes four servings.

CHERRY SPONGE CAKE

- 5 eggs, separated (at room temperature)
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1 tablespoon grated orange peel
- ¼ cup orange juice
- 1 jar (8 ounces) maraschino cherries, drained, finely chopped and drained again
- 1 cup sifted cake flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
- Confectioners sugar

Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored; gradually add half-cup granulated sugar. Gradually beat in orange peel and juice. Gently stir in cherries, and flour.

Beat egg whites until frothy; add salt and cream of tartar; continue beating until stiff but not dry, gradually adding remaining half - cup granulated sugar. Fold into cherry mixture; turn into ungreased 9-inch tube pan.

Bake in 350-degree oven 40 to 45 minutes or until cake tests done. Invert and cool thoroughly. Remove from pan. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Serve with additional cherries, if desired.

Smart Shopper's Recipe for Week

The broiler-fryer is really an excellent buy if one considers its good points.

Consistently high in quality, easily prepared, available in all markets and high in nutrition — these are the talking points of the bird that's at the fingertips of the smart shopper.

Often there are specials on chicken, and that's the time to buy several for freezing. Frozen fresh chicken will keep its quality for about six months, if kept at zero degrees or colder in a freezer.

Cooked chicken also can be frozen. However, cooked chicken should be used within a month. It's advantageous for the thrifty homemaker to cook up a large batch of chicken when it's abundant and special priced. Both preparation time and cost on future meals are saved.

If a chicken is purchased for immediate use, prepare it and eat it a day or two after purchase if it's not frozen.

Since this is family reunion and picnic weather, here's a chicken recipe for a crowd. Allow 12 to 16 ounces of chicken per serving, along with 1½ ounces of sauce.

Barbecued Chicken

- 1½ cups salad oil
- 2 cups cider vinegar (5 per cent acidity)
- ⅓ cup salt
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 3 tablespoons hot liquid pepper sauce
- 24 broiler-fryer halves

Prepare sauce first: Measure into saucepan the salad oil, vinegar, salt, brown sugar and liquid pepper sauce. Heat to blend; keep hot for basting.

Allow 18 to 24 pounds total weight of ready-to-cook chicken. Cut off tail; tuck wing tip of breast quarters under shoulder joint. Lightly grease large shallow baking pan; arrange chickens staggered into two layers, skinside down. Baste with sauce, leaving a little sauce in rib cages.

Bake chicken for 40 minutes, uncovered, in preheated, 450-degree oven. Remove from oven. Turn skinside up; baste again with sauce. Return to oven and continue baking uncovered until thickest pieces are fork-tender, or until leg bone twists easily in thigh joint.

SAS Tries to Quash POW Release Rumor

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The Scandinavian airline said today a report that American military officials had asked the airline to fly 187 American prisoners of war from Laos to Europe was incorrect.

The earlier report had brought a flood of official denials from American and North Vietnamese officials.

The airline said today its office in West Germany had been approached in mid-July by a "private individual" who wanted to arrange a charter flight from Laos to Rome "for 187 passengers."

"It was never mentioned that the category of passengers was military personnel," SAS said in a statement released today.

The airline said it made preliminary arrangements and was ready to sign a contract, but this "has been called off by the private ntact of SAS in Germany."

The "private individual" was not identified by name or nationality.

The report of a prospective POW flight was first published Wednesday night in Sweden's biggest newspaper, Dagens Nyheter, which said the flight would be on Aug. 12.

Charter Airlift

This was followed by an announcement from an SAS spokesman that U.S. military authorities in West Germany had asked to charter a DC8 to airlift 187 POWs from Vientiane, the Laotian capital, to Rome by way of Bangkok.

Dagens Nyheter charged SAS with "giving way to political pressure to soft pedal the whole thing."

Editor in Chief Boerje Dahlqvist maintained the newspaper's report, attributed to "sources," was "wholly correct as it stands," but refused to identify his sources. He did not specify what "political pressure" he claimed had been applied.

"When we deliberated about the publication of this report, everything seemed in order and there was no reason to hold it back," he said. "I'm not prepared to guess as to what will happen now."

SAS spokesman Jack Herbert said: "Nuts to Dagens Nyheter. "I can't give any explanation about this whole thing other than to say that a lot of people were unavailable when this story broke and that we could not sort things out until now."

In Washington, President Nixon's news secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, said the U.S. government "has not been informed of any such plan, nor has the U.S. participated in negotiating a plan such as suggested in the Swedish newspaper."

"Further, the U.S. government at any level has not requested the Scandinavian airline, SAS, to proceed as suggested in the Swedish newspaper," Ziegler added.

Xuan Thuy, North Vietnam's chief negotiator at the Paris peace talks, called the reports "excessive imagination," while Truong Gia Nhan, an attache at the North Vietnamese Embassy in Stockholm, termed the report a "fabrication" and said it was "totally unfounded."

Impossible

"A release of American prisoners in the present situation is impossible in view of President Nixon's unchanged attitude to the seven-point plan" offered by the Viet Cong at the Paris peace talks, he said.

Thuy, speaking to newsmen as he entered the 124th session of the peace talks, said unless President Nixon accepts the Communists' peace plan "the list of captured military men, far from becoming shorter will only lengthen."

U.S. military authorities in West Germany said they had not heard of any plan to fly 187 American prisoners of war out of Vientiane on an SAS charter jet.

Arne Bjornberg, the Swedish ambassador to Hanoi and Peking now in Stockholm on leave, expressed doubts about the SAS report. If it were true, he said, "it would mean the Americans have accepted Hanoi's demands for withdrawal of all American troops in Indochina."

Wednesday, before the airline's report, Nixon told a news conference that the United States was "very actively pursuing negotiations on Vietnam in established channels," never mentioning, however, specific efforts to gain the release of U.S. prisoners.

Nevertheless the SAS spokesman said his airline was "just awaiting a call from the Americans saying they are ready for signing a contract."

"When?" he was asked.

"Today, tomorrow or the day after tomorrow," he replied.

The officer in charge of prisoner affairs at the U.S. Embassy in the Laotion capital, Richard Rand, refused to comment on the SAS report, but added: "This office is not aware of any specific discussions with regard to these 187 prisoners."

Rand also refused to comment on reports of stepped-up diplomatic contacts with the Communist Pathet Lao. "I'm just not going to comments," he said. "The whole area is that sensitive."

"There have been continuing contacts," another diplomat in Vientaine said, "but they have been stepped up slightly between the U.S. Embassy and the Pathet Lao."

He said Rand had been assigned the specific job of following up the contacts. Heretofore, prisoner affairs had been handled by others in the embassy who were unable to devote full time to the task, the diplomat reported.

Worden Makes First Walk in Deep Space

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Astronaut Alfred M. Worden took man's first walk in deep space today, floating like a feather nearly 200,000 miles from earth as he retrieved two film canisters from the rear of the streaking Apollo 15 spacecraft.

A television camera relayed clear pictures to earth as Worden, bundled in a stiff pressure suit and attached to a 25-foot lifeline, made three 15-foot trips to the camera bay, twice to extract the film and once to inspect equipment.

He stepped through the open hatch at 10:40 a.m. CDT and was back inside the cabin just 18 minutes later, the 10th man to take a walk in space, and the first to do so that far from his home planet.

With the hatch open, the entire cabin was exposed to the vacuum of space, so David R. Scott and James B. Irwin also wore protective spacesuits.

Irwin Assist

Irwin poked the upper part of his body out of the hatch to guide Worden's life support hose, to photograph him and to help him move the film canisters into the cabin.

"It's remarkable," Worden exclaimed t e breathtaking vista of sun, stars, sky and moon around him. He was about 197,000 miles from earth and 48,000 from the moon.

He looked back at Irwin, silhouetted against the fast-receding moon and said: "You look absolutely fantastic against that moon back there. That is really the most unbelievable, remarkable thing."

The television pictures showed him obviously enjoying the stroll, at times kicking himself off the side of the craft and spinning completely around in his silent, weightless world.

The command ship Endeavour was streaking toward home at more than 2,000 miles an hour after six days of lunar exploration.

Worden took only a few seconds to move along handrails to the camera bay. He first removed a 23-pound cassette from a mapping camera, returned to the hatch and handed it to Irwin.

Rest Stop

On the second trip to the bay he called a "rest stop" and inspected a scientific experiment boom and a camera sensor which had been giving them some trouble. He reported a cover jammed on the goom and could discover nothing wrong with the sensor.

At the request of Mission Control, Worden made a third trip to inspect the camera bay for anything unusual. He reported nothing.

The television camera showed the space walker moving rather clumsily at first as he moved outside.

As he accustomed himself to the strange, eerie environment, he floated easily in a world visited by only nine previous men—six Americans and three Russians.

Earlier today, Mission Control calculated Apollo 15 was on such an accurate course that it canceled a planned course correction

Worden's space walk was necessary because the camera bay is jettisoned before re-entry and doesn't return to earth with the spacemen.

The film casettes contain about two miles of high resolution pictures of nearly 20 per cent of the lunar surface, including what are expected to be the best pictures yet of the hidden backside.

Before opening the hatch, the astronauts depressurized the cabin, bleeding out oxygen until the atmosphere inside the craft matched the vacuum outside.

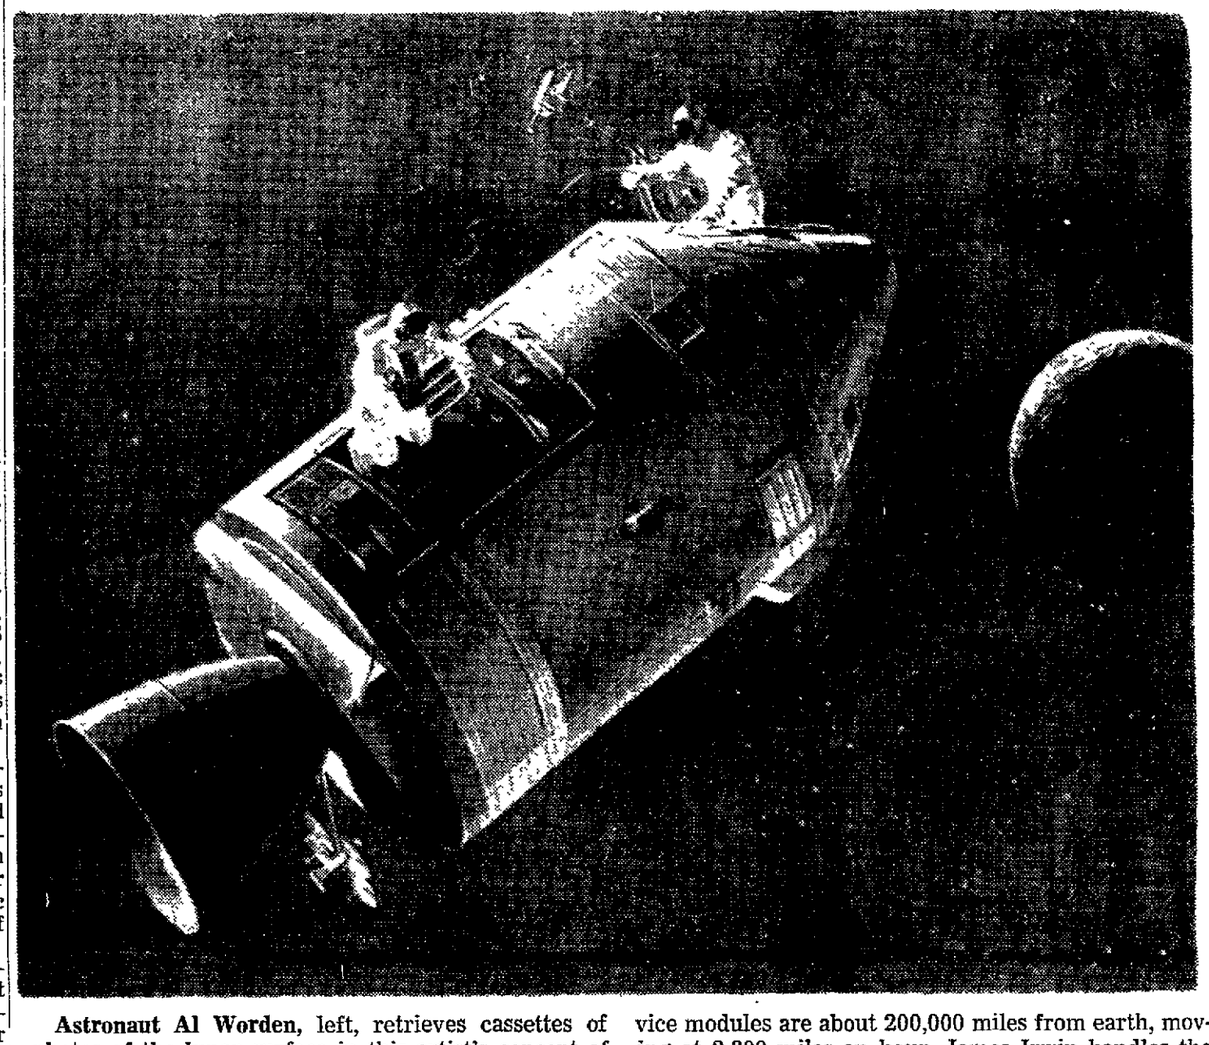

On opening the hatch, the astronauts tossed a few bags of garbage and unwanted articles into space.

The explorers were awakened at 4:20 a.m. and told they would not have to make a small course correction because they were on target for Saturday's landing in the Pacific Ocean.

"You're so close to course we're going to give you the Vasco da Gama navigation award," capsule communicator Joe Allen said.

Da Gama, a late 15th century Portuguese navigator, was the first European to sail to India.

At 7:49 a.m., Apollo 15 sped through a "twilight zone" where it escaped the influence of lunar gravity and fell into the sphere of earth gravity. That was 204, 138 miles from earth and 38,410 miles from the moon and the craft began accelerating.

Astronaut Al Worden, left, retrieves cassettes of photos of the lunar surface in this artist's concept of today's Apollo 15 task. The Apollo command and service modules are about 200,000 miles from earth, moving at 2,300 miles an hour. James Irwin handles the umbillical-tether line and monitor operation.

House Approves Draft Authority

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says he won't aid a filibuster against the House-passed compromise bill to extend the draft. But backers concede the bill can't become law for at least a month.

Passed by the House Wednesday 297 to 108, the measure contains a $2.4-billion-a-year military pay raise and a compromise provision urging President Nixon to negotiate a final date for withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Indochina.

The war-pullout measure was the first such language ever approved by the House, which earlier voted down a stronger proposal made by Mansfield and passed by the Senate. A House-Senate conference worked out the compromise, which doesn't please Mansfield and other Senate doves.

Original Amendment

Mansfield said in an interview he may revive his original amendment, which would make it U.S. policy to get out of Indochina in nine months if all American prisoners are released. But he said he wouldn't try to attach it to the compromise draft bill.

"I don't intend to be obstructionist," Mansfield said. "I don't intend to filibuster and I don't intend to vote for the bill."

The draft bill is not expected to come up in the Senate until after the month-long congressional recess that begins Friday.

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said it should be the first order of business after the Senate reconvenes Sept. 8.

The old draft law expired June 30 and officials say if a new one isn't passed soon they may have to use residual authority to call up some men who had been deferred.

Lottery Held

Meanwhile, the Selective Service went ahead today with the lottery that will determine the order in which men who turn 19 next year will face military service.

Stennis said he did not anticipate a great deal of trouble in winning passage of the draft bill. But Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, said he will be on hand to filibuster as soon as the bill comes up.

He said he hopes to muster a 12-man force of draft-bill opponents in an effort to talk it to death.

"I think we can hold out indefinitely as long as we've got the votes to ward off cloture," Gravel said. "It's going to take a two-thirds vote to get that bill through now or a month from now or 10 weeks from now."

That is the margin required to break a filibuster and limit debate in the Senate. The Senate limited debate to get the bill through in the first place, but some senators who voted to do so said they acted only because the Mansfield amendment was part of the package.

Draft Lottery Held

Men Learn Order of Call-Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The national lottery to assign draft numbers to men turning 19 years old this year and establish the order of callups next year began today with June 20 getting No. 30.

The second number drawn gave No. 70 o those whose birthday is Sept. 2.

The first numbers were drawn by two of six youth advisers to the Selective Service System, J. Brewster Bede of Morton, Wash., age 22, and Valerie Van Buren of Washington, D.C.

The matching of numbers and birthdates started after the plexiglass drums holding the capsules had been rotated to mix them up for half an hour.

Curtis W. Tarr, draft director, came from a sick bed to open the ceremonies and say that the chances of these young men being drafted next year are growing slimmer as the military manpower needs go down.

The draft law expired June 30 and Congress is not expected to pass a new one until after it takes a summer vacation ending Sept. 8.

Of the nearly two million men born in 1952, only a fraction can expect to be drafted. The Pentagon has estimated it will need 114,000 draftees in the fiscal year that ends next June 30, and the winding down of the Vietnam war has steadily reduced draft calls.

"Over this past year, draft calls have been significantly lower than in the past," he said. "In 1972, the year in which most of the men whose numbers are drawn today will be eligible for induction, we expect the draft calls will be even lower."

Lottery numbers are listed on page A-2.

Men who turn 19 in 1971 but who are exempted or deferred still keep the draft numbers drawn today. The numbers will determine their draft priority at such time as they become eligible and go through a year's exposure to the call-up process.

Men born in 1951 or earlier are not affected. They keep numbers assigned in two previous lotteries.

Capsules containing numbers and birthdates were filled in random sequence Tuesday. Birthdates went into brown capsules and the numbers 1 through 366 went into yellow ones. There were 366 days in 1952, a leap year. Birthdates are matched with numbers, and men whose birthdays are assigned No. 1 are called up first.

This year's lottery procedure was streamlined in hopes of shortening it. It took 3½ hours last year.

Last year more than 100 "youth advisers" took turns plucking the capsules out of two drums, rotating the drum to mix the capsules after each draw.

This year's procedure had six advisers taking turns drawing lots of 20 capsules each, with only three spins of the drum every 20 draws.

This is the second year of the random selection system of rotating drums and using computerized scrambles to decide the sequence of putting the birthdates and numbers into the drums. This complicated process was devised after complaints that the first lottery was unfair.

Lucey Asks Senate Action

Compromise Merger Wins Support

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Gov. Patrick J. Lucey today asked the Senate to adopt a merger proposal that he says has the approval of all parties to the marriage of the University of Wisconsin and Wisconsin State Universities.

The governor held a press conference this morning with UW President John Weaver to announce several proposed amendments to the latest merger bill that meat objections reported by Weaver at a news conference Tuesday.

The meeting in the governor's office capped two days of negotiations between the governor's office and representatives of the faculties and administrations of the two systems Lucey said, however, that Eugene McPhee, executive director of the WSU system was not directly involved in the discussion.

In the amendment, mission statements that had been expanded considerably for the state universities would be restored to the language approved by the Coordinanting Council for Higher Education. The UW central administration would be the key administrative unit of the merged system, with former WSU administrators reporting to Weaver during the transition.

The campus councils proposed by Lucey in the original merger bill would be retained, but reduced in size and put under the chairmanship of the chancellors and presidents of the campusses

The total merger of the two administrative staffs would be completed by July 1, 1973.

Weaver had expressed what he called "grave concern" about four aspects of the bill approved last week by the Joint Finance Committee. He said the amendments are "directly responsive to my primary concerns."

"I am pleased with the amendments" he said, but acknowledged that he is still responsible to his board of regents that is on record in opposition to any merger of the two systems.

In a letter to the majority and minority party leaders in the Senate, Lucey outlined the compromise amendments, and called on the Senate to act "now" on merger. The Senate was asked to reconvene today so the Republicans could hold a caucus about budget deliberations.

Senate Republicans have also called a news conference for late this afternoon. If a two-thirds majority of the upper house can be called together for the purpose of the merger bill it could be acted upon today.

Lucey said he was confident that if the Senate could act today, the Assembly could approve the merger next week. In a speech to the Senate several months ago, the gover-

Nixon Relents, to Consider Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Switching his tactics, President Nixon has challenged Congress to structure a wage-price review board without binding the economy in a straitjacket of controls.

Welcoming a full-scale debate in Congress on the wage-price board proposal, Nixon said Wednesday he is now open-minded about the idea but still skeptical it would ever work or should even be tried. In the past, he had rejected such a move outright.

Nixon's new flexibility on the anti-inflation proposal was coupled with a pledge to move more vigorously against big wage and price increases in the economy on a case-by-case basis.

As Congress pondered his words, the Labor Department prepared a fresh reading on inflationary trends in the economy with a report on July wholesale-price movements.

Nixon's challenge to Congress on a wage-price board was delivered in a roundabout way. He said he would consider such an idea favorably only if hearings convince him it could be done without stifling the economy.

"The problem here is, how can we move without putting the American economy in a straitjacket?" Nixon asked in an impromptu news conference.

He said he would reject any proposal that "would impose a new bureaucracy with enormous criminal powers to fasten itself on the American economy. That, I think, would do far more harm than good."

But, if a wage-price board proposal concerned itself with only voluntary guidelines, he said, that would never work, either. Voluntary compliance with guidelines may work for only three or four months before leading to a new wage-price spiral, he said.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns has suggested a board without enforcement powers to monitor and investigate big wage and price increases. Some Democrats have suggested a board with strong enforcement powers.

Legislation introduced by 13 Republican senators Wednesday, a move triggering Nixon's response, would set up a board to establish wage-price guidelines and enforce them through government procurement policies or a wage-price freeze.

Although Nixon's statement against "a new bureaucracy" appeared to rule out support for the senators' plan, he added in referring to congressional proposals:

"As far as we are concerned, we have an open mind in terms of examining the various proposals to see if there is a new approach which we may not have thought of.

"I have serious doubts that they will find such a new approach, but I do want to indicate that we will examine it because we all agree that the wage-price spiral is a significant danger to this expanding economy. The question is what we do about it, without going all the way to a totally controlled economy."

Making Progress

Nixon said his administration is making progress on both the unemployment and inflation fronts. He said the jobless rate will decline for the balance of the year. And he stood behind his earlier prediction that 1971 will be a "good year" and a "very good year" for the economy.

Nixon said he has asked Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson to inform him of every major wage and price "negotiation" in the economy.

"I will use the power of this office to the extent it can be effective to see that those negotiations are as responsible as possible," he said.

Non-Prescription Pep, Sleep Pills Criticized

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — Part of the story about drug abuse in this country pertains to commonly advertised sleeping pills and pep pills that are sold without prescriptions to people who not only don't need them but can sometimes get undesirable and dangerous side effects from them

That is the feeling of Dr. Charles Edwards commissioner of the U. S. Food and Drug Administration, as he testified recently before a Senate subcommittee headed by Senator Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis)

"The general tenor of these advertisements," he said, "is cleverly designed to create an unnecessary demand for the drug" Yet as he explained "there is no meaningful way for the consumer to weigh the need for such a drug"

He said that 'overuse and abuse of such drugs is encouraged" when consumers are induced to purchase them for putting him to sleep, calming frazzled nerves, relieving nervous tension, relieving irritability and eliminating fatigue without inquiring into the causes of such symptoms.

Mood Drugs

Dr Edwards went on to say that these so-called "mood" drugs are "essentially ineffective in the dosages used and do have recognized side effects" which may be harmful

He presented a list of 17 sleeping pills, each of which contain an antihistamine product called methapyrilene hydrochloride as one of its major ingredients. Yet the substance even at nearly twice the strength as in the pills has been found no more effective than dummy pills on insomniacs, according to Dr Edwards.

On the other hand, he said many people suffer reactions making them restless and nervous instead of relaxed Other reactions include mouth dryness, blurring of vision, dizziness ringing in the ears and gastro-intestinal irritations

Other drugs used commonly in sleeping pills are salicylamide and scopolamine According to Edwards the rationale for the former in sleeping pills has not yet been established, and while the latter may contribute to a slight hypnotic effect, it also may be toxic to some people

Sominex contains all three of these drugs, advertising itself as "the only leading sleep aid with three medical ingredients to quickly relax you and help you get to sleep 100 per cent safe sleep.

No Effect

Yet according to a study done by Dr Anthony Kales reported by Edwards, Sominex tablets had no more effect than blank pills in inducing or maintaining sleep Dr Edwards added that two to four tablets or capsules could produce hallucinations in susceptible individuals

He was particularly critical of sleep pills still containing bromide salts "despite the general disrepute of this drug in medical practice" because of undesirable side effects including chronic bromide intoxication.

Bromide salts have been eliminated from Bromo Seltzer but remain in Nervine, a well advertised sleeping pill and sedative

Another witness before the Subcommittee, Dr Karl Rickels of the University of Pennsylvania, reported tests showing that neither Compoz, another widely known sedative, nor aspirin worked any better than blank pills in reducing nervous tension

The principal ingredient of pep pills, such as Vivarin and No Doz, is caffeine in amounts of 200 and 100 miligrams respectively A cup of coffee has about 150 miligrams of caffeine Its main effect is nervousness

Garbage Tells Status To Suburban Dweller

By BOB HARING
Associated Press Writer

EAST BRUNSWICK, N J (AP) — Suburban status is a lot of garbage.

No longer is ranking among subdivision peers determined by the number of bathrooms in the house, the number of cars shared with the finance company or the size of the family boat

In these days of ecology over all, it's garbage that carries the weight.

How you pack your garbage, the condition of your garbage cans, the kind of bag you use (or even if you use a bag) tell your story

Even the quality of the garbage—that is, what you throw away— is a factor

The newcomer to suburbia is labeled by his bright new cans Whether they are colorful plastic or shiny metal tells a lot about the family, even before you meet the wife, see the dog and break up the first fight with the kids.

Company Didn't Pay

It says a lot more if they bring along the old garbage cans from the old neighborhood, packed with books or tools or last summer's clothes For one thing, that probably means the company didn't pay for this move.

Then there is the numbers game. Is it better to cram your garbage into a single large can, which in its loneliness on the curb bespeaks of a tidy, thrifty housekeeper who wastes not and wants not? (That also carries the prestigious implication that you're saving cans and bottles and rags and papers for recycling. It also means you probably cannot safely walk through the basement for all the cans and bottles and rags and papers, but the neighbors don't know that—unless they're also saving for recycling)

Or is it better to display the remains of your good life in four or five heaping cans?

Compost Heap

And should you include grass clippings? Or recycle them into a sticky stink of compost along the back lot line?

Do you separate trash—broken toys, milk cartons and old cereal boxes — from the leftovers that even the can won't touch? Or do you jam it all together, because that's what happens when the garbage men come to pick it up anyway?

And how about bags? The good old brown paper supermarket sack, now made hardy against the perils of soppy garbage, competes with the plastic bag, tied neatly at the top but splitting its bottom seam

The most fastidious, of course, put things in paper sacks, then into plastic bags, then into firmly covered plastic cans That effort doesn't leave much time for the League of Women Voters, but women these days must make hard decisions at times.

But garbage, of course, is not the housewife's lot alone.

Watch who carries those cans in and out of the garage (if you leave them out all the time, the resident analysts around the corner will conclude that you're an in-bred city dweller whose neighbors keep their dogs tied all the time).

Changes in garbage patterns can be significant

Northeastern, COG Receive Federal Funds

Grants Totaling $83,492 Represent Second Payment

Federal grants totaling $83,492 have been made by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to two Appleton-based regional planning commissions.

Gov. Patrick J. Lucey today announced that a grant of $44,582 went to the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission and $38,910 went to the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG).

The two grants were included in $320,000 allocated by HUD to Wisconsin for help in financing planning activities by local and regional planning commissions and by the state Department of Local Affairs and Development.

Second Grant

The grants cover the 8½ month period from April 15 to Jan. 1. Smaller grants for the first part of 1971 were made earlier. Local planning officials said the annual grants used to be based on the April 15 to April 15 period but this year were realigned to allow for the start of a calendar year awarding system.

The latest grants were delayed, a planning official said, because Wisconsin was slow in meeting some of the federal guidelines for receipt of the monies.

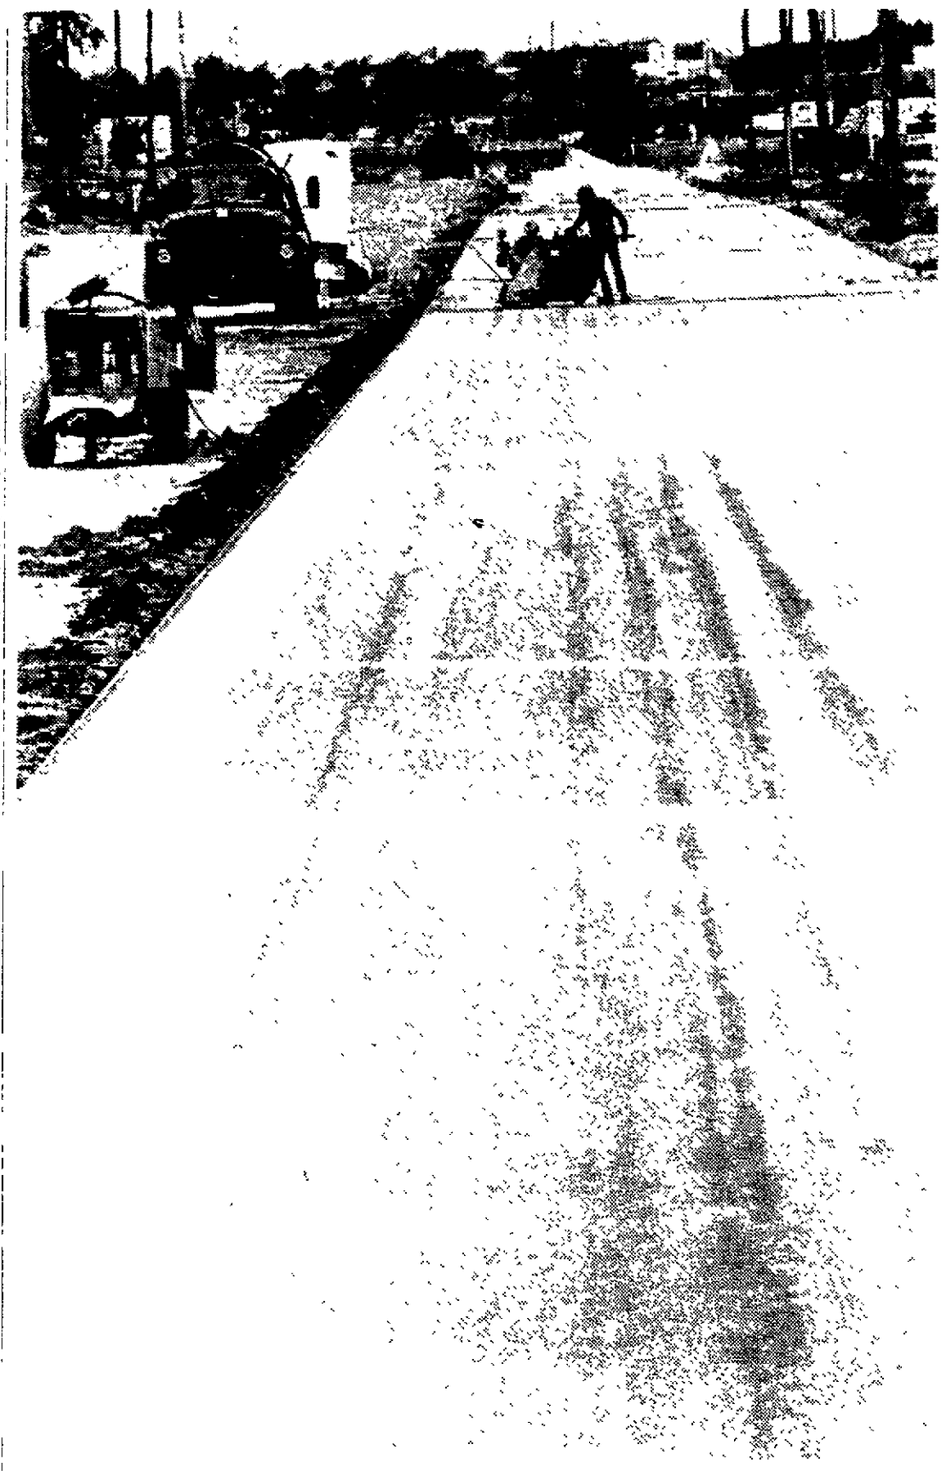

The latest funds will be used to help finance overall, area-wide comprehensive planning programs carried on by COG and Northeastern.

Total Budget

The total calendar year budget for COG is about $176,000 and for Northeastern, about $170,000. Commission revenues are secured through state and federal fundfing and through local assessments.

Counties served by Northeastern include Florence, Forest, Langlade, Menominee, Shawano, Outagamie, Waupaca, Waushara and Winnebago.

COG serves most urban areas in Calumet, Outagamie and Winnebago counties.

Construction Work is nearing completion on two lanes of U.S. 10 between the Appleton city limits and U.S. 41. The highway is being rebuilt and widened from two to four lanes. This section of highway should be opened by the end of the month. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Study Urged on Improving Public Health Services

A joint study on public health service needs in Outagamie County has been recommended by the county board's health, education and institutions committee to determine how services can be improved.

The proposal, made by committee chairman Kenneth Gibson, Appleton, would involve a special committee which would formulate recommendations based on information and proposals supplied by groups involved in public health.

He proposed a committee comprised of single representatives from the county board, Appleton Board of Health, Kaukauna Health Committee, Visiting Nurses Association (VNA), Appleton Board of Education and Seymour Board of Education which would act on recommendations from subcommittees.

Gibson suggested four subcommittees involving providers and consumers of public health services which would study their own needs and problems and report to the special committee.

Committee Makeup

His proposed subcommittees would include the heads of all nursing service agencies, sanitarians, consumers and political heads of governmental units.

Dr. G. M. Shinners, regional health officer for the state Division of Health, agreed with the concept and noted a similar study is in progress in Manitowoc County by that county's resource council for comprehensive regional health planning.

Gibson said Outagamie County's resource council is not yet fully functioning but that when it became operative his proposed group should work closely with it.

County Nurse Virginia Lemon also endorsed the joint study, saying a self-evaluation of services was needed in nursing in the county.

Cool Reception

A previous proposal made by Gibson for the county to take over public health service functions in Appleton, which the city now contracts with the VNA, received a cool reception from the city and VNA when he presented the proposal to them early in July.

In other action, a complaint to the county nurse's office from a Town of Grand Chute resident on W. Wisconsin Avenue about water in a drainage ditch near his home was referred to the town health officer. In her report, Mrs. Lemon said the water was black and had a very strong odor which permeated the home.

Gibson said the committee could not do anything other than refer the complaint to the town health officer since the county does not have a county sanitarian.

A request from County Hospital Supt. Eugene Speener for the committee to consider changing the name of the hospital to Outagamie County Mental Health Facility, or something similar, was referred to the special study committee on institutional consolidation.

The committee, whose job it will be to review the four-year-old Blue Ribbon report on consolidation and make future recommendations in that area, will hold its first meeting Friday afternoon.

Speener, in his letter, noted he had made a similar request in past years but had never received an answer.

The Kaukauna Library Board has indicated it strongly backs the proposed Outagamie County Library organization in letters to state and county officials. The library proposal is in the hands of the health, education and institutions committee.

The Kaukauna unit has sent a letter to State Rep. Norman Anderson, chairman of the joint conference committee, whose committee is working out the state budget, urging passage of a Senate bill which would provide state funds for county library systems.

City Hall Salaries Up

Appleton elected officials, appointed department heads, supervisors and other non-union personnel will finish the year at annual pay levels ranging from $600 to $2,270 higher than year-end 1970 rates, under recently enacted pay boosts detailed today by Personnel Director Gerald Lang.

But most of the personnel won't reap the full benefits of the pay hike until next year, due to a somewhat cumbersome system of granting retroactive pay from last Jan. 1 through the current period at a lower rate of increase than the new salary levels would require.

$600 Minimum

The reason is that the retroactive pay is based on somewhat smaller increases recommended by the City Council while the salary level to be paid through year-end is based on generally higher rates recommended by Mayor George Buckley.

The only exception is officials who had been recommended for raises of less than $600 for the year by the mayor. The council Wednesday approved a $600 minimum for that small group of employes.

If everyone were paid for the entire year at the mayor's rates, it would have cost the city $48,075 more than the 1970 payroll. At the council's rates, the increase would have cost $43,275. But by paying council rates for the first part of the year and the mayor's rates for the remaining months, the cost is $45,526.

Based on the salaries that will prevail through year-end, the planning director got the biggest boost, going up $2,270 to a new level of $15,770.

Other upper-level increases include:

City engineer, up $2,180 to $16,680; finance director, up $2,150 to $17,150; city attorney, still the city's highest-paid official up $2,125 to $19,625; public works director, up $2,125 to $19,125; and the police and fire chiefs, up $2,000 to $15,000 each.

The assessor's salary increases $2,000 to $15,200; the clerk's $1,000 to $13,200 and the treasurer's $880 to $13,080.

Buckley Declines

While the council granted raises to each of the elected city department heads, the attorney, clerk, treasurer and assessor, the mayor's salary remains at $15,000, a level Buckley has declined to have increased the past several years.

Minimum $600 raises went to the welfare director, to $11,600; personnel director, $14,100, and library director, to $14,100.

Other executive personnel include the inspection director, up $1,350 to $13,350; park superintendent, up $1,225 to $13,225; recreation superintendent, up $1,000 to $11,000, and deputy health commissioner, up $1,200 to $12,400.

Firemen, Police Pacts

Details of new contracts between the city and the police and fire department bargaining units were released today by Personnel Director Gerald Lang, following adoption Wednesday by the City Council.

The 98-man Appleton Fire Fighters Association agreed to a two-year pact containing a 7 per cent average pay boost for this year from Jan. 1 and a 9½ per cent boost for 1972.

The 72-member Appleton Professional Policemen's Association received a one-year pact carrying an 8 per cent average pay boost recommended by a state-appointed fact finder.

The five lieutenents and three captains of the police department, negotiating as a separate supervisory unit, agreed to a two-year pact also carrying an 8 per cent pay boost each year.

$245,800 Total

The increases over year-end 1970 payrolls will cost the city $165,000 over the two years of the fire fighters' pact, $63,000 this year for the police association contract, and $17,800 for the two years of the police supervisory unit agreement.

Besides the direct increases in salaries, the contracts also contain economic benefits for many of the men in the form of increases in items such as uniform purchase and upkeep allowances and reimbursement for professional schooling.

The city faces only one unsettled contract, awaiting further bargaining with Teamsters Local 563, which represents a mixture of city employes from various departments.

The fire department received a $270 across-the-board payment per man for the period from Jan. 1 through July 25; a 5 per cent pay boost from then through year's end, and a 9½ per cent hike at the start of 1972. In addition, contract wording was changed concerning holiday benefits, rules of conduct and grievance procedures.

The police group, covering men ranking from patrolmen through sergeant, receives in addition to its 8 per cent 1971 hike, a $60 increase in initial clothing allowance for the first year, to total $295, and a $40 annual clothing maintenance allowance increased by $50 to $150. Starting pay for a patrolman is now $670 per month, ranging upward to $855 for a top sergeant.

The supervisory group's new salary schedule starts at $900 for the lowest-paid lieutenant to $995 for a top-paid captain. Next year, lieutenants will start at $1,000 and a top captain's pay will go to $1,100.

The supervisors also receive $300 this year and an equal increase next year in lieu of professional schooling compensation. Their clothing allowance will go from $100 to $190 while maintenance allowances of $40 per man will be paid to them directly rather than the city continuing to pay up to that cost for uniform cleaning

16-1 Council Vote

Rescue Vehicle Ok'd

The much debated purchase of a new rescue vehicle for the fire department won approval from the City Council Wednesday on an anticlimactic 16-1 vote.

Ald. Glenn Thompson (13th), the leading opponent of the purchase from beginnng, made a brief speech predicting the demise of the city's private ambulance services and then voted alone against buying the new vehicle.

The council action accepted $10,421 low bid of Marion Body Works, Inc., of Marion. A federal grant is expected to pay half the cost, leaving the city's share well within the $5,658 limit set by the council several months ago.

"We successfully are going to drive private enterphise out of business," said Thompson, who declared he remains unconvinced "that we are going in the right direction."

Increase in Runs

He said last month's emergency runs by the present rescue squad again had shown an increase. He objected that nothing has been done to set up rules to limit the types of calls the fire department will answer in order to "stop the ambulance service that we see coming out of the fire department."

Throughout the debate, those favoring the purchase have referred to a "rescue vehicle" while Thompson and others opposing it have called it an ambulance, to illustrate their contention that it will mean expansion of the rescue squad operation at the expense of the private ambulance firms.

In other business, the council:

—Accepted a petition to bring the 63-acre Fiesta Annexation package into the city from the Town of Grand Chute. The area lies between Richmond and Drew streets.

Rezoning Action

—Approved the rezoning of 59 service stations, drive-in restaurants and similar establishments to remove them from other commercial zoning categories and place them in a newly created highway commercial district. Public hearings also were ordered on similar rezoning of 17 other businesses.

—Was prevented by Thompson from publishing a proposed ordinance deleting streets in a 13th Ward apartment development tract from the official city map. The alderman referred the ordinance back to the welfare and ordinance committee. Parts of proposed extensions of Robin Way and Arlington and Weimar streets would be deleted from the official map to permit the developers to map their own street pattern. Thompson has been fighting the development, which previously won council endorsement.

—Received a resolution from urging that multiple family and planned residential development property pay the full cost of street and utility installations. At present, portions of the assessments are paid by general tax levy, except for commercial property which is assessed 100 per cent of costs.

Fuel Ran Out

Veteran Pilot Unhurt In Hay Field Landing

SHIOCTON — A light plane escaped damage and there were no injuries when its pilot made an emergency landing in a field near here about 3:40 p.m., Wednesday.

John Catlin, 63, 100 Grant St., Neenah, told Outagamie County Sheriff's investigators that his rented plane ran out of gas as he was returning to Outagamie County airport from a trip to Shawano.

Catlin, a pilot with over 4,000 hours flying time, set the plane down in a field west of State 76 and about 1,000 feet south of County Trunk A.

The craft, a 150 Cessna rented from Maxair Inc. of the Outagamie County airport, was not damaged and was flown out of the field by Max Sagunsky, owner of the company.

"It was just like pulling a car off to the side of the road when you run out of gas," Catlin stated, and quipped "the field was smoother than the old Outagamie County airport."

Catlin was flying at 3,500 feet when he began losing power. He picked a mowed hay field, "with about 35 head of Holsteins in one corner" and set the plane down.

Catlin called into the Appleton control tower before landing so that they would know where he was. He said he was quite impressed with the action of the Outagamie County Sheriff's department. They had four police cars surrounding the field within minutes of his landing.

The plane ran out of gas because Catlin had thought it was filled when he took off. He has made several other emergency landings and had just practiced landing on the grass strip at Shawano.

Catlin is a multi-rate pilot licensed to fly seaplanes, multi-engine craft, as well as the smaller planes.

Jury Convicts Phoenix Man

Rodney Wellens' Involvement Told By Accomplices

Rodney Wellens of Phoenix, Ariz., was convicted Wednesday by a Circuit Court jury of forging checks worth $17,000, and robbing an Appleton man.

The 12-member jury turned in verdicts of guilty on five counts of forging checks from Towne Inc., Appleton, in December of 1969. Wellens, 27, had contended that he knew about the crimes, but had not participated in them.

The state's case was keyed around the testimony of James Wellens, Rodney's cousin, and Charles Pruitt. Pruitt is presently serving a 20-year term at Waupun State Prison for his part in forgng and passing the checks.

James Wellens testified that in December, 1969 he and Rodney had taken about 300 checks from Towne Inc., along with the company's check writer. He added that Rodney then made out the amounts on the checks and they returned the check writer the same evening.

Wellen's attorney contended that James Wellens and Pruitt were friends and would not have used Rodney in the crimes since they did not need him. The state pointed out through testimony that James and Pruitt did not know each other until after the checks were stolen, except through an occasional meeting.

James Wellens also told the jury that he and Rodney had attempted to gain identification materials from a man by robbing him. Pruitt backed this testimony when he stated that Rodney had told him about the incident the following day.

The men robbed Robert Keller, Appleton, but did not get his identification. They did take his wallet and some money.

Circuit Court Judge Andrew Parnell ordered Rodney Wellens held in the Outagamie County Jail without bond, pending a presentence investigation. No date was set for sentencing.

Mrs. Harn to be Tried for Slaying

NEENAH — Helen Harn, 53, route 1, died April 14 at Theda Clark Hospital of complications resulting from a single .22 caliber bullet wound to the lower right abdomen, inflicted on the afternoon of April 13 at his home.

No date immediately was set for the Circuit Court arraignment of Mrs. Harn following the bindover. She is free on bond.

Under Advisement

Dist. Atty. William Carver said the original charge of first degree murder has been "taken under advisement" by his office. A decision will be made whether decision will be made whether to amend the charge before arraignment in the higher court.

Carver said his office has 30 days to prepare and file briefs with the court.

Sylvia Messing, 33, 516 E. Custer St., Oshkosh, was the state's key witness Wednesday. She testified that on the afternoon of April 13, she was present when Mrs. Harn entered the home and saw her fire the shot. Mrs. Messing told the court Mrs. Harn repeatedly said she intended to shoot her ex-husband while she was clutching the rifle used in the slaying.

Cross - Examination

On Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Messing was extensively cross-examined by the defense. Mrs. Harn did not take the witness stand.

Carver, during the morning session of the hearing before County Judge James V. Sitter, also called to the witness stand Det. Sgt. Douglas Meyer of the county sheriff's department and Dr. John J. Mc Gloin, a Neenah surgeon.

Mc Gloin testified that during initial treatment at the hospital, Harn said he had been shot by his ex-wife.

Father, Son To be Tried

Zehrens Face 7 Charges for Part In Burglaries

Waupaca County Judge Wendell McHenry has bound over a Combined Locks father and son for trial on seven felony charges.

Irvin Zehren, 40, and his son, Larry, 21, both of 500 Hartjes St., were bound over to Circuit Court on charges that they aided and abetted seven burglaries in the Fox Valley between Nov. 1, and Dec. 5, 1970.

McHenry's decision came almost a week after he heard evidence on the charges in Outagamie County's Circuit Court.

Charges include aiding and abetting the Nov. 22 burglary of James Madison Junior High School. The younger Zehren is named for aiding and abetting break-ins at two Appleton Quaker Dairy stores. Irvin Zehren is charged with aiding and abetting break-ins at the Kimberly High School and two Appleton taverns.

The older Zehren was found guilty on July 20 of eight counts of conspiracy to committ burglary and concealing stolen items. He is awaiting sentencing from that trial.

Outagamie Airport Cited By Magazine

Outagamie County Airport was featured as "Airport of the Month" in the July issue of Airport World magazine, a monthly publication aimed at airport management and aviation systems management people.

The story recounts the history of the airport and of Air Wisconsin, along with detailing the facilities available. Stressed in the story is the local support which went into developing the airport, which the writer terms a "Midwest mini-hub."

Man Dies as Car Strikes Boxcar

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The death of a Hartland man in an unusual accident Wednesday night sent the 1971 Wisconsin traffic fatality toll to 581 today, compared with 651 on this date last year.

David Wein, 23, of Hartland was killed when his car struck a lone boxcar which was standing across a Waukesha County crossing on Wisconsin 74 near North Lake.

Douglas Mattek, Appleton, decided that watching the ball game through the left fence was better than not seeing the game at all. He had to settle for the view Wednesday night when an all-time record crowd of 8,251 fans jammed Goodland Field to watch the Foxes. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Is Buckley the Mayor of Lucey?

Somebody at City Hall either does or doesn't appreciate the tax plans for the state's Democratic administration.

A resolution filed with City Clerk Elden Broehm during Wednesday's City Council meeting urged changing the name of the city from Appleton to Lucey, Wis., "as an everlasting tribute to the governor's tax program."

Besides leaving it unclear whether the writer is a friend or foe of Gov. Patrick Lucey, the resolution was unsigned and was referred to the clerk's waste basket

Highway Plan Funds Denied In Neenah

Three Aldermen Block Breezewood Overpass Route

NEENAH — The first, and probably decisive test for a proposed rail-free access link with U. S. 41 failed Wednesday night as a minority of three aldermen succeeded in blocking city funding for the project.

The council vote of 7-3 in favor of taking out a $350,000 short-term loan for the city's share in Breezewood Lane railroad overpass and eastward extension was one vote short of the three-fourths majority required for unbudgetted spending

The three "nays" were cast by First Ward Ald. Robert Troyer, Second Ward Ald. Walter "Doc" Loehning and Seventh Ward Ald. Donald Steber.

Officials from the Town of Neenah, Winnebago County, and the State Highway Commission, were all waiting for the city vote on the joint project, before acting to participate in it.

Now it is probably dead, Public Works Director Wayne Bryan agreed this morning.

Minority Governs

"It is another case, like the regional planning hassle, in that the minority governs," Bryan added. He has been a supporter of the plans to extend Breezewood eastward over the railroad tracks and tie in with Bell and Commercial streets.

Aldermen opposing the plans brought up a number of arguments, with costs a recurring theme.

"I don't believe the City of Neenah has ever built a road out in the township," Troyer said, referring to the fact that part of the project would go through town land. "This I don't think we can afford."

Troyer went on to cite the unanimous opposition of the park and recreation commission to the proposed route of the extension, which would have meant a four-lane thoroughfare cutting between an established residential area and a proposed park and school site.

He also charged that information on project plans had been "masked in a veil of secrecy" and that there eventually would be a rilroad grade separation at U.S. 41 and County Trunk G.

However, an interchange with 41 is not planned at G, a fact which nobody at Wednesday's meeting mentioned.

"Those of you who use the school taxes as the whipping boy at budget time better tell the voter about the $350,000 you want to spend on this," Troyer told project supporters.

That statement rankled Third Ward Ald. Michael Ellis, a principal backer of the project, who told Troyer he ought to wait until he had been in office for a term before he told others how to face the voters.

"If we fail to develop this part of the city now, and wait until all the land in that area is absorbed into the city, the cost will be exorbitant," Ellis said in response to Troyer's statements about building roads in the town.

Ellis said the project would be an investment which would enhance development of an industrial park and other land in the area, thereby paying for itself.

Teamsters Win 14 Per Cent Pay Hike in Neenah

NEENAH — A new pay contract, providing roughly a 14 per cent wage increase for about 70 city employes over a two-year period, was unanimously approved Wednesday by the city council.

The new contract with Teamsters Local 563, representing five city employe groups, provides an average pay boost of 68 cents an hour for 1971 and is retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year. Another pay boost of 27 cents an hour is set for 1972.

The contract covers employes in the street-sanitation, park-recreation, cemetery, water works and police - traffic maintenance departments, who had been working without a contract and receiving 1970 wages since Jan. 1, when the old contract expired.

With city police and firemen professional associations having settled on one-year contracts earlier this year, city negotiations for 1971 are now completed.

New fringe benefits are an extra paid holiday starting this year, and a whole day off — it was half a day before — on Good Friday starting next year.

In 1972, the shift differential will go from 25 to 30 cents an hour for work between the hours of 6 p.m. and 6 a.m., and vacation time will go to five weeks after 20 years.

The contract was ratified by the employe groups last week, and the finance committee met in brief closed session with union negotiators Monday night to finalize the agreement.

$24 Million Sewage Plant Plan Proposed in Twin Cities

NEENAH-MENASHA — A $24 million plan for sewage plant improvements was taken to state officials today. Local officials hope it is a prelude to state and federal certification for funding of the construction.

Ronald St. Laurent, sewage plant manager, personally took the plan to the Madison offices of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR). He said he also hoped he could alsc take it down to Federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) offices in Chicago later, although he was doubtful he would have the time.

The general plan was reviewed and approved by the Neenah-Menasha Sewerage Commission at a special meeting Wednesday night. It was prepared by plant consultants Consoer, Townsend and Associates, Chicago, who had received it back from the printers earlier that day.

It included over 20 pages of written and statistical text, plus several general drawings. It carried an estimated price tag of $24 million, although that figure is ballpark, at best.

The report, entitled "Basic Design Data for the Preparation of Contract Drawings and Specifications," makes reference to a previous study of C & T in April, 1970, and describes "the requirements for facilities projected as sufficient through 1990."

It breaks down the new and modified installations into two categories: screening, pumping and solids disposal, and, primary and secondary treatment.

The plant would be designed to handle average daily dry weather municipal flows of seven million gallons (MGD) and flows from industrial and commercial sources of 33 MGD, yielding a total average daily dry weather flow of 40 MGD.

80 MGD

A wet weather increment raises that total to 60 MGD, with a peak hourly flow capacity of 80 MGD.

Additions to the main building and modifications are as follows: two new raw waste screens, each providing capacity for 50 MGD. This gives consideration to a future peak flow of 100 MGD. The existing screens would be utilized for standby only.

Under the first category, the following new equipment would be constructed or allotted for: space for one additional raw waste water pump, separate interceptor sewer meters for Neenah-Menasha, to replace the existing Venturi meter; four new vacuum filters, two new multiple hearth sludge incinerators, and an addition to the main building to house the above, and related equipment, plus supplementary space for offices for administrative, laboratory and employe use.

Settling Tanks

New and related equipment stemming from the second category are, four additional primary settling tanks, four additional aeration tanks, three new, electrically - driven centrifugal type air blowers to supply the aeration banks, four additional final settling tanks, ammonia chlorine contact tank, additional storage and feed facilities, a chlorine contact tank, additional polymer feed equipment, a parallel outfall sewer to the present one in the Fox River, two effluent facilities, and a building to house the above, designated as the "Secondary Treatment Building."

A DNR official told local officials on July 16, at a meeting with EPA officials in Chicago, that C & T should have a general plan for the plant addition into their hands as soon as possible, so the process towards certification for federal construction aids could begin.

Disturbed Youngsters Center Gets Boost

OSHKOSH — The Guidance Clinic board of directors, caught up in the whirl of preliminary budget work and a move to Sunnyview Sanatorium property, Wednesday night took steps to have a piece of the budget pie apply to a proposed day care center on the grounds.

And, for the first time, the proposed day care center was explained in terms of service and staff requirements by Fred Kepfeidl, administrator of the center

Two resolutions, one based on a letter from Dr. Harry Colgan, interim medical director of the center and the other introduced by board member Supv. Eugene Williams, Oshkosh, carried the board unanimously and applied to providing the proposed day care services to the area.

Kepfield explained the unit would be a "small center for the emotionally disturbed preadolescent," who presently are served by the guidance center in one hour per week consultations.

But this limited time isn't enough, Kepfield explained. "They need one, two, or three days, a week to learn how to socialize and a whole lot of things you can't teach on an hour per week basis.

"We're not talking about the kind of place where mothers leave their children and go off to work," Kepfield said. "We're talking about the kids who are run into programs like Little League, but who, for some reason, can't make use of it."

Kepfield said the day care unit will be designed to handle 50 children at once, providing one staff member for each 10 children.

Necessary for such a setup, explained Kepfield, would be four or five additional staff members, composed of therapists to coordinate activities programs and aids, plus equipment such as learning aids.

"Of the top of my head," Kepfield said, "this would cost between $45,000 and $50,000." Kepfield said He believed the remainder of the nurses' quarters, the north wing of which has been remodeled now to house the guidance center, would also have to be renovated but could be conveniently located for the day care center.

The program would be conducted as pilot project for one year, Kepfield said, after which time it could be eligible for federal aids.

Board members generally concurred that the federal aids would amount to 40 per cent of the total program after the first year. They based this on statements made previously to the board from George Ver Hoven, Oshkosh, a member of the division of mental hygiene.

Kaukauna to Air Subdivision Rules

KAUKAUNA — A public hearing on a subdivision ordinance will be conducted by the common council at 7 p.m., Aug. 17, at city hall.

The hearing will cover rules of drainage, commercial and industrial uses, grading plans and street design.

NM Seeks Delay in Sludge Hauling Test

NEENAH-MENASHA — While sewage plant operators try to "stabilize" the secondary treatment systems at the plant, the sewerage commission attorney will see if he can get the state to agree to a delay in starting a proposed wet-hauling experiment.

The reason? It won't give the results it should with the plant running like it is now.

The problem was discussed at the special sewerage commission meeting Wednesday. Other highlights were:

—A charge from Commission Atty. William Giese that statements by Menasha City Atty. Richard Steffens in a recent Twin Cities News-Record story were "a lot of hogwash."

—Critical analysis of that city's resolution passed in Menasha the night before for funding of that city's share ($33,100) of the proposed wet-hauling experiment. Giese said the resolutions passed by Menasha had "a few hookers."

The Neenah common council passed a similar resolution Wednesday night.

Plant Mgr. Ronald St. Laurent said the secondary treatment systems at the plant were "upset right now" because of the "reverse shock load" effect of Wisconsin Tissue Mills' shutting down last week.

The shutting down of the mill, which is normally a great supplier of waste, threw the biological components of the secondary system out of whack, St. Laurent said.

Normally, this wouldn't be so critical. But because the plant is on the verage of initiating the 30-day wet-hauling experiment to transport secondary and primary sludge to a landfill site, it is significant.

Anyone Can Play Top Secret Game

BY ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — Recently the most unbelievable event in American journalism took place. William F. Buckley Jr., the distinguished conservative columnist, television star, lecturer and selfless defender of the rich, pulled a hoax on the American public.

In his National Review magazine Mr. Buckley published what were purported to be "top secret" documents on the Vietnamese war. The documents, which were cooked up by his staff, read like the real thing and all the wire services, the major newspapers and NBC and CBS reported them as legitimate news.

Mr. Buckley revealed the next day in a press conference that the reason for the hoax was to demonstrate that forged documents would be widely accepted as genuine, provided their content was plausible.

Now for those of us who, up to this time, have believed every word Mr. Buckley has written and every pearl that has dropped from his lips, the news that he would be part of a hoax on the American people came as a shocker.

We conservatives don't like hoaxes. We like our news on knee-jerk Doves, bleeding heart politicians and limousine liberals straight. Credibility is the greatest weapon in our battle against the forces of socialism, welfare coddling and the conviction of Lt. Calley.

The danger of someone getting away with a hoax in this country is that other people can perpetrate hoaxes, too, and their motives may not be as sincere as Mr. Buckley's.

Suppose I printed a press release which I said I received from the National Review.

"William F. Buckley Jr. announced today he was shaking up the staff of the National Review on the advice of a top secret study he had ordered done by Norman Mailer.

"At the country house of his good friend, Gore Vidal, where he is spending the weekend, Mr. Buckley said he was firing his sister Priscilla Buckley as managing editor, not because of nepotism, (Mr. Buckley has been urging Congress to pass a bill making nepotism legal), but because of the recent articles in the National Review criticizing Che Guevara.

" 'Che Guevara was a dear friend of mine,' Mr. Buckley said, 'and as long as I own the National Review he will be treated with respect.'

"As his new managing editor, Mr. Buckley has selected Arthur Schlesinger Jr., the historian and an old friend of the family.

" 'Arthur will bring to the National Review the liberal social consciousness that we have been striving for in our magazine,' Mr. Buckley said. 'His position on the Vietnamese war, welfare, and law and order coincide with my own philosophy and when he speaks for himself, he will be speaking for me.'

"Mr. Buckley also announced he was proud to have persuaded John Kenneth Galbraith to write a weekly column on economics with partcular emphasis on wage and price controls.

" 'There is no man better versed on the economy than Mr. Galbraith and we're proud to have him aboard.'

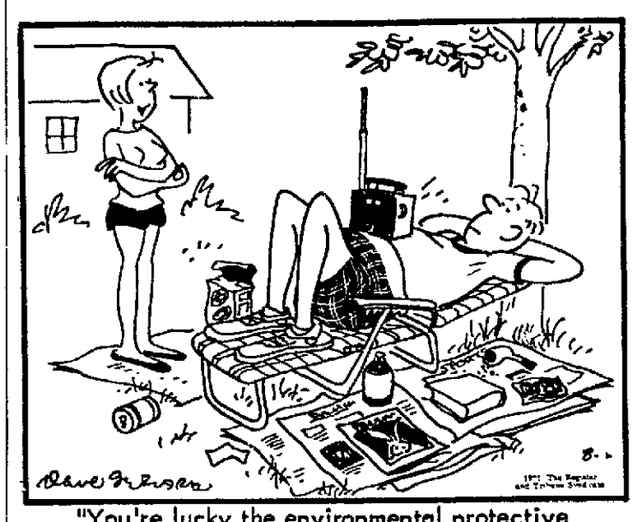

"Mr. Buckley said he was adding several new departments to the magazine. One would have to do with urban affairs and the plight of the blacks in the inner cities. He has persuaded his good friend Mayor John Lindsay to act as a contributing editor. He has also signed Dr. Benjamin Spock to write a column on raising children.

" 'The National Review' will hit hard at the reactionary forces in this country that are holding America back,' Mr. Buckley said

" 'Our target will range from J. Edgar Hoover to John Mitchell to Spiro Agnew. We will attack the oil interests, the gun lobbies and the military-industrial complex. This I promise my readers, or I will go back to Yale.' "

Mrs. Nixon Not Going to China

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has indicated his wife Pat will not be accompanying him when he makes his planned trip to Communist China.

The President said Wednesday he will be accompanied only by a "small working party," which as of now includes only Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's national security adviser.

Any additions to the party, Nixon said, would have to be agreed upon mutually by Washington and Peking.

6 Factories Get Antipollution Orders

The State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has ordered six factories to control industrial wastes polluting the waters of the Wolf River basin.

Four milk processors, Shawano Paper Mills, Inc., and Quality Packing, Co., New London, are included in the DNR's final orders, issued July 27.

The Dupont Cheese Factory, Marion, discharges wash waters to a low area near the plant. These reach the south branch of the Pigeon River at times of high stream flow, the DNR reports.

Untreated Wastes

Company officials must submit plans for treatment facilities by Oct. 1, and start construction in March of 1972. The wash waters from processing were reported to create an odor nuisance in the area.

In Caroline, untreated wastes from the F. R. Buss & Co. plant discharge through three outfalls into the Embarrass River.

The company was ordered to treat its wastes by June 1, 1972, or to connect with the planned sewage system of the Caroline Sanitary District.

According to the department, tanks filled with whey located on the riverbank pose a potential spillage problem. By June 1, 1972, the firm must build a holding system for the tanks.

Wash waters from the Stephensville Cheese Factory septic tank overflow into a roadside ditch draining into Bear Creek. Sanitary wastes directed to a separate septic system discharge into the industrial waste system.

Improve Facilities

The DNR ordered the company to disconnect sanitary sewage from the industrial system by May 1, 1972, and to improve its treatment facilities by the same date.

In Fremont, process wastes and wash waters from the Silverfield Cheese Factory are a source of pollution to the Wolf River. The DNR reports that the company's soil absorption area connected to a septic tank is not operating satisfactorily.

The company has been ordered to start construction of improved treatment equipment by March 1, 1972.

Shawano Paper Mills, Inc., on the Wolf River, must install sampling equipment on all of its waste outfalls by Feb. 1 of next year. After the equipment is installed, the mill must submit monthly reports to the DNR's Division of Environmental Protection, listing the amount of suspended solids and oxygen-demanding wastes discharged daily from each outfall.

"Minimum Standards"

Improvements to the outfalls were ordered built by June 1, 1972, to bring effluents in line with "minimum stream standards." By Dec. 31, 1972, the mill must limit its daily discharges into the river to less than 1,200 pounds of suspended solids and 600 pounds of oxygen-demanding wastes.

The Shawano mill produces about 80 tons of light-weight specialty papers daily. Its first report on intentions to limit wastes is due on Nov. 1.

The Quality Packing Co. in New London directs wastes from its slaughtering operation to a three-compartment septic tank. According to the DNR, the septic tank overflows into a nearby marsh and strong wastes carry a considerable distance downstream from the plant in a tributary to the Wolf River.

By June 1, 1972, Quality Packing must begin building adequate treatment facilities for all its industrial wastes. The facilities are to be in operation by Jan. 1, 1973.

Besides the industries, 45 municipalities and sanitary districts in the 120-mile long Wolf River basin were ordered to clean up water pollution. The orders derived from a 1969-70 survey by the DNR and from progress reports gathered at a July 1 public hearing in Shawano.

Milwaukee Site of Phone Rate Hearing

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Hearings on the proposed rate increases for the Wisconsin Telephone Co. have been scheduled for three days in September at the city hall in Milwaukee.

Silently acknowledging the complaints filed last year when hearings on the last telephone company rate increases were held during a short period in Madison, the state Public Service Commission has scheduled the Milwaukee sessions on its own motion.

The commission was forced to reopen hearings on the rate increases that went into effect last January after Rep. Harout Sanasarian, D-Milwaukee, and several consumer groups complained that the Madison hearings were scheduled at a time and place inconvenient to the large number of customers living in the Milwaukee area.

Hearing Schedule

The new hearings are scheduled for Sept. 8, 9 and 10 during morning and afternoon hours.

The utility requested the rate increases to help meet its obligations in a three-year labor contract signed recently with striking employees.

The company has increased its rates twice within the past year, in June, 1970 and January, 1971.

It claims the new labor contract will result in payroll and related expenses of $10 million the first year and more than twice that amount in the third year. In addition, the company says that the demand for more and improved telephone service has added extra costs to its operation.

In order to meet the costs of the contract in effect since the end of the strike, the telephone company has also asked the commission to authorize temporary rate increases pending the commission's final ruling.

Youth Hostels to Sponsor 55 Mile Bike Trip Sunday

The American Youth Hostels are sponsoring an Appleton-northwards bicycle tour, which will leave 9 a.m. Saturday from Erb Park.

Cyclists can choose between a 55 mile route or a 33 mile route.

The hostels usually estimate their speed at approximately 10 miles per hour, but according to Randall Ruess, one of the tour organizers, each cyclist can pedal at his own speed. Because the route is marked with white arrows on the blacktop, no one is likely to get lost he said.

The route is roughly north on Mead Street and west on Mackville Road to Stevensville. Those who take the shorter route will retrace their ride, while the others will return to Appleton through Freedom.

Stevensville and Freedom will be rest stops where the cyclists can eat their bag lunches. There will be a "sag wagon" to pick up tired cyclists who can't finish the ride.

Officers Chosen for German Americans

Officers for the newly organized affiliate of the German American National Congress, meeting Sunday in Appleton, have been elected.

Walter Schewe is the president; John Kainz, first vice president; Josef Herz, second vice president; Anita Jende, secretary; Anneliese Schneck, financial secretary; Maria Kainz, treasurer; Werner Jahnel, press secretary; and Stevn Jende, auditor. All are from Appleton.

Also elected were two group directors, Ernst Mueller, Menasha, and Paul Dargelies, Appleton. Marianne Mueller, Menasha, will serve as recording secretary.

More than 300 people attended the opening event.

Little Chute Adopts Two New Ordinances

LITTLE CHUTE — The Village Board enacted two new ordinances Tuesday, one dealing with garage foundations, and another with parking hours at the American Legion lot.

In the future, new, unattached garages of 626 square feet and more may be constructed on a "reinforced curb-type slab." Villagers previously had been required to build four-foot foundations for such buildings.

Portable tool sheds and similar structures will be exempt from the requirement. They must be constructed upon, at the least, an aggregate material, such as cinders. The rule left most other building specifications unchanged.

Trustees curbed parking on the lot, fronting on Grand Avenue, between 2 and 6 a.m. The reason for the restriction was to alleviate problems the city has had with winter snow removal, when cars are parked overnight.

A contract with Prichard Construction Co., Green Bay, for the continuation of the Little Chute portion of a railroad spur, was adopted at a cost of $9,600. The section leads to the village's northside industrial park, located on County Trunk OO.

Trustees also arranged to hire two new crossing guards for the high school, and agreed to purchase a new Leach garbage truck from the Bruce Municipal Equipment Co. at a cost of $26,000.

A public hearing was scheduled for 8 p.m. Aug. 24 on a zone change request submitted by Ray Dakins, route 4, Kaukauna. Dakins wishes to build a drive-in restaurant on Wisconsin Avenue. His request has already been approved by the plans commission.

School Bids To be Opened At Freedom

New Addition to Be Completed by September 1972

FREEDOM — Bids for the $1.3 million addition to the high school here will be opened at 8 p.m. today at the school.

The project, one of very few school construction projects approved by public referendum in recent years, will be a three-story, 70,000 square foot addition.

Included in the addition will be a learning center, two science classrooms, a home economics area, industrial arts drawing room, a guidance area, band and chorus practice rooms, three business education rooms, a 150-seat theater, cafeteria, a practice gym with locker rooms and 10 classrooms.

The present high school facility will become the junior high school, for seventh and eighth graders. The elementary school, up to now housing grades K-9, will be used for grades K-6. Ninth graders will go to the new addition, which will house grades 9-12.

According to William Van Laanen, superintendent, construction will begin as soon as possible. The anticipated completion date is September, 1972.

New I.D. Cards Approved for Social Workers

The purchase of new identification cards, designed to prevent further incidents of misrepresentation of welfare workers, was approved Wednesday by the Outagamie County Board of Social Services.

Supv. L. O. Woodard, board chairman, said cards for some 50 county welfare workers should cost less than $100.

The laminated cards will bear the description and pictures of the workers and will be signed by the agency director.

The social services board has been studying the identification card matter since an Appleton woman early this year used an Outagamie welfare worker's identification in an unsuccessful attempt to visit a prisoner in the Waupaca County jail.

Welfare workers sometimes are excepted from most jail rules which permit visitation only by family members.

Identification cards now used by Outagamie welfare workers do not contain their photographs.

Bond Set for Men Charged in Stabbing Death

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis. (AP) — Bond was set at $50,000 Wednesday for two Manitowoc County men charged with the first-degree murder of a carnival worker.

County Judge Marshall Norsong scheduled a preliminary hearing Friday for Dennis Faber, 21, of rural Valders and Robert Muench, 21, of Cato.

Girl Hung Onto Side of Auto

An investigation by Appleton police has shown that a 19-year-old Appleton girl who was hospitalized Tuesday apparently was hanging onto the side of the auto originally believed to have struck her.

Nancy Ann Wagnitz, 415 N. Lawe St., was admitted to Appleton Memorial Hospital for observation around 11 a.m. Tuesday. She was released Wednesday. She told an officer she was hanging onto the side of the auto, driven by Randy L. Westphal, 20, because she was angry.

Westphal, who listed no address, told police he had been parked next to the curb on Lawe Street near the Wagnitz home. He decided to drive around the block and noticed the girl hanging on the auto as he pulled away from the curb.

He said she fell off as he hit the brakes.

Oil, Gas Investments Alluring Tax Shelters

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Muhammad Ali had planned to set aside at least $100,000 out of his knockout winnings last week for "such deductible investments as oil and gas explorations" — and he was understandably incensed when the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) seized a big chunk right off as an income tax prepayment.

Ali would have been even more furious had he known that this same IRS had just issued a new ruling making oil and gas investments even more alluring tax shelters than ever. An oil drilling always has been a tax escape hatch for the very wealthy.

Specifically, says Prentice-Hall in a privately circulated report, you can for the first time deduct your share of the intangible drilling costs in the year you put up the cash — and that's true even if all the drilling work is done the following year. This year-earlier deduction can pay off in a lot more tax-free income. The reason is that you have a better shot at getting a bigger depletion deduction.

Exploration Risky

Make no mistake about it, oil exploration is risky business. Only about 10 out of 100 wells become producers, and not all of these 10 are financially successful. But our tax laws have gone far toward bringing the overall risks in line with other ventures. Here's a brief rundown of the important tax breaks:

"Intangible drilling cost" deduction: Refers to materials and other direct or indirect costs which go into drilling a well and do not create assets with long - term salvage value. You have the right to deduct these costs currently from your oil or other highly taxed income.

Depreciation: Most of the remaining costs — everything over intangible drilling costs — are salvageable assets subject to depreciation deductions over the productive life of the assets.

Cost Depletion

Cost depletion: What's left after depreciation is then recoverable through cost depletion — a deduction akin to depreciation.

Percentage depletion: Also designed to allow you to recover your cost of the well, but it can do much more than that. For it allows you to deduct and save from taxation 22 per cent of your gross income from the well — up to a specified limit. You can use either percentage or cost depletion in one year and must use the method which benefits you most.

Let's permit Prentice-Hall to show Ali how to do it.

Ali enters into a written contract with Drilling Co. on Dec. 31, 1971. At that time, he pays driller $100,000, covering only items subject to the option to expense intangible drilling and development costs. While the drilling is to be done in 1972, Ali pays the $100,000 in '71. Driller completes the job in 1972, but Ali takes the deduction this year

Better Crack

Ali takes the deduction this year because the 22 per cent depletion allowance is computed on the gross income from the well — but it can't exceed one-half the taxable income from the well. So, assume Ali takes his deduction in 1971, when the well is not producing He now has a much better crack at getting the full depletion in 1972.

Say Ali's well throws off $130,000 gross income in 1972. His top depletion allowance is $28.600 (22 per cent of $130,000).

Under the old rule, Ali couldn't deduct the $100.000 of intangible drilling costs until 1972 and deducting that $100.000 would have reduced the well's income for that year to $30.000. Ali then would have been limited to $15.000 in tax-free depletion (one-half of the taxable income of $30,000) instead of $28.600 tax-free.

Now since Ali has no deductions in 1972, all the 1972 production will be taxable income — and Ali will wind up with the full $28.600 of depletion (an extra $13.600) tax-free.

Technical, Complex

The tax laws governing oil and gas investments are defiantly technical and complex — almost impossible for any person except an expert to grasp — and as you surely are aware, they are loaded with politics too. And I am certainly not recommending this sort of gamble to anyone. Prentice-Hall, though, points out that it's easy to buy into an oil and gas deal simply by calling a broker-dealer who handles oil participations managed by experienced oil and gas people.

Many of these programs accept investments for as little as $2,500. You buy a unit of participation: you get the oil and gas tax shelter: you collect if and when a producing well is developed.

But that's another, far different story. This one is for Ali — if he can manage to keep $100,000 out of his $450,000 guarantee, minus the $130,000 the IRS seized for taxes. Like it, Ali?

UWGB to Inspect Campus Ecology

GREEN BAY — Environmental watchfulness begins at home — even at a new university that is building its academic program around the study of ecology.

That's the reasoning behind the appointment this week of a seven-member "environmental impact board" at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, whose four colleges and school of professional studies have pioneered in the development of curricula related to man and his environment.

Appointed chairman by UWGB Chancellor Edward W. Weidner was Robert S. Cook, a biologist with extensive experience in wildlife management. Other members are Paul Sager, whose aera is limnology, or the ecology of fresh water bodies; Michael Morgan, a botanist; Donald Gandre, a geographer; Robert Ditton, a specialist in water recreation resource management; Michael Murphy and Walter Herrscher, both English teachers who have done considerable research on nature writers and the literature of the ecological movement.

Faculty Members

All seven board members are on the UWGB faculty, teaching in interdisciplinary concentrations as well as their individual disciplines. Sager and Ditton also hold joint appointments with the Green Bay research project of the U.S. Sea Grant program.

Inspired by the national Environmental Policy Act of 1969, the UWGB board may be the first such body to be organized at a state university, Cook said.

Its first task will be to formulate guidelines for an environmental impact statement that in the future will be a required part of every proposal related to the development or use of the campus.

"Anyone who is responsible for developing such a plan — whether students, staff, administration or faculty — will be asked to include as part of that plan a statement that points out the possible effects on the campus environment," Cook explained. "Once plans and statement are complete, they will be submitted to the environmental impact board for critical review. The board will express its approval or disapproval of the project or suggest alternatives."

Federal Funds

When appropriate, Cook said, the board also will initiate recommendations concerning the impact of established UWGB plans, policies and operating procedures.

"We anticipate a close working relationship with the university administration office of facilities planning, director of the physical plant, and student leaders," he added.

The Environmental Policy Act now requires that an environmental impact statement be included with all major development plans utilizing federal funds. A similar proposal now before the Wisconsin Legislature as Assembly Bill 875 would require all state agencies to consider environmental impact before decisions are made on state - funded development projects.

Pontiff Critical of Those Seeking Change For Catholic Church

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Pope Paul VI has lashed out at those who he says are attempting to repudiate the existing Catholic Church and found a new church.

The Pope told his weekly general audience at the summer papal palace Wednesday that those seeking to change the Church should not overstep the bounds of reform set by the Second Vatican Ecumenical Council.

"Novelty for novelty's sake is not justified," the Pope said.

"Observing these attempts—fanciful, we hope—to found a new church . . . repudiating the existing one, we see easily that they are neither new nor liberating; they are concessions to the profane mentality of the time."

Bicycle Thefts Frequent in Park

NEW YORK (AP) — Armed plainclothes police, posing as bicycle riders, have made eight arrests in the first six days of a special patrol in Central Park, where assaults on cyclists and thefts of bicycles have risen steadily.

They have escaped injury in brushes with knife-and bottle-wielding assailants who lurk along bicycle paths waiting to knock riders off their bikes and steal their cycles.

Complaints of such assaults has been rising with the spurt in the popularity of bike riding in the park in recent years. Police said 232 bicycle thefts were reported between Jan. 1 and July 23 this year.

Rogers Plans Push for Relief to Pakistanis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers plans to go to the United Nations personally to push for a more energetic international relief effort for East Pakistani refugees.

Aides said Rogers intends to meet Monday with U.N. Secretary General U Thant, U.N. relief officials and others about the international undertaking which U.S. authorities regard as too slow and too little.

President Nixon, at an impromptu news conference Wednesday, noted the $70 million already supplied by the United States for East Pakistani refugees in India is more than all other countries of the world have contributed.

Nixon also hit at a House-passed ban on U.S. aid to Pakistan. The restriction would cut out $118 million in economic-development assistance and $5 million in arms help earmarked for Pakistan in the administration's new foreign-aid bill.

Improve Treatment

Authors of the ban protest the Pakistani central government's drive to stamp out a rebellion in East Pakistan. They say holding back the funds would pressure the Pakistani government, led by West Pakistanis, to improve its treatment of the Eastern provinces.

Disputing this, Nixon said stopping aid to Pakistan would hurt the government's ability to distribute food in hungry East Pakistan. He said continuing U.S. assistance would allow Washington to influence the course of events better while "public pressure on the government of West Pakistan ... would be totally counterproductive."

At about the time Nixon was speaking, 14 members of the Pakistani embassy in Washington resigned, pledged loyalty to the independence movement in the Eastern province and asked for political asylum in the United States.

Suffering Millions

The defectors included one ranking minister and three counselors. "We have decided to join the suffering millions of Bangla Desh who are resisting with their lives the barbarity of the West Pakistan army who are determined to reduce East Pakistan to a colony," said Sayyed A. Karim, Pakistan's No. 2 representative at the United States.

Turning to Vietnam, the prdsident pictured large-scale U.S. ground offensives as a thing of bygone days in view of U.S. troop withdrawals.

"We frankly just defend the areas in which we have responsibility, and there are less of them," he said in explaining the sharp fall-off in U.S. casualties since the pullout got under way.

Nixon hinted that secret talks on a peace settlement are in process even though Washington has not made a formal public response to the offer made by the Viet Cong in Paris July 1.

"We are very actively pursuing negotiations on Vietnam in established channels," he said. "The record, when it finally comes out, will answer all the critics" who say his administration is not trying hard enough for a peace.

Foreign Affairs

Much of the foreign-affairs portion of Nixon's 45-minute session with newsmen in the White House Oval Office dealt with the President's plan to visit Peking.

He said:

—Exact timing of his trip, slated to be made before next May 1, will be worked out with the Chinese within the next two to three months.

—Only a few U.S. officials will accompany Nixon. Rogers and Henry Kissinger, the Prssident's national-security-affairs adviser, are the only Nixon aides certain to go.

—There will be a wide-ranging discussion of issues at Peking but: "It is not a discussion that is going to lead to instant detente."

Hard Problems

The precise agenda of Nixon's parley with Premier Chou En-Lai will be worked out carefully "so that the discussions will deal with the hard problems as well as the easy ones."

"I have always taken somewhat of a dim view of summitry when it comss in an unprepared form," Nixon said. "But both sides will be well prepared, well in advance, on all points of major difference, and we will discuss any points of difference that could affect the peace of the world."

—Nixon does not intend to visit the Soviet Union before his journey to Peking. "Obviously, it takes a great deal of time to prepare a visit and ... to attempt to rush around and have a summit meeting in Moscow before we go to Peking would not be in the interests of either country," he said. "And the Soviet Union, I am sure, feels exactly the same way."

Henderson Enters Pleas Of Innocence

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP) — Col. Oran K. Henderson, highest-ranking officer under charges arising from the mass slaying of civilians at My Lai, will go on trial Aug. 23 before a seven-officer jury. The trial is expected to last up to 12 weeks.

"How do you plead?" the military judge, Col. Peter S. Wondoloski, asked after the jury was empaneled Wednesday.

Henderson

"To all specifications and charges, not guilty," said Henderson, a much decorated combat soldier in World War II, Korea and Vietnam.

One Vietnam veteran, Maj. Gen. Charles M. Mount Jr., is on the court-martial jury of five colonels and two generals who were seated in one day.

The charges against Henderson, a 50-year-old native of Indianapolis, are that he was derelict in failing to investigate "allegations of reports of excessive killings of noncombatants" at My Lai, failing to report to higher command "Incidents and acts thought or alleged to be war crimes" and later lying to a high-level Army inquiry.

Conviction could bring a maximum sentence of six years in prison and dismissal from the service.

Security Thefts in 2 Years at $900 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The theft and loss of $900 million worth of securities over the past 2½ years has been described by a Senate investigations subcommittee as "a tremendous and growing criminal drain on the national economy."

The latest figures disclose securities that vanished in the first six months of 1971 alone were worth $494 million, a figure one senator called astounding.

The Justice Department's National Crime Information Center previously reported $175.8 million in stolen and lost securities in 1969 and $227.3 million in 1970.

A subcommittee spokesman said most of the missing securities are presumed to have been stolen including $400 million in common stock most recently.

Crime Organization

In 19 days of hearings over six weeks, Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., and his panel painted a picture of a racket they say is dominated by organized crime and reaches banks from coast to coast.

"The subcommittee has been startled to discover the relative ease with which criminals and confidence men have been able to hoodwink and flim-flam reputable banks and their top officials," McClellan said Wednesday.

He announced the hearings will resume after Labor Day.

Under the new organized-crime act, the subcommittee secured immunity for several key witnesses, some of them federal prisoners.

One of these, Robert Cudak, testified over a three-year period the gang of thieves he led stole more than $100 million in securities and other valuables from registered mail sacks in airports throughout the country.

Sold Cheaply

The securities, Cudak and a partner said, were sold to organized-crime fences for a fraction of their value, often ending up in the hands of syndicate money men who used them for collateral or to buy out legitimate businesses.

Vincent "Big Vinnie" Teresa, a 300-pound self-described grandson of a Mafia don, linked the securities to scores of alleged organized-crime figures.

A mystery witness, later identified as Michael Raymond, told of dozens of schemes to place stolen securities with "friendly" bankers, including several in the Chicago area.

Wednesday, Edward O. Boshell, former director of the Wheaton Bank west of Chicago, called Raymond an "absolute liar" for testifying Boshell, 36, was the key figure in placing stolen securities in the Wheaton bank as collateral for loans.

The conflict is one of several McClellan said will be referred to the Justice Department for possible perjury prosecution.

Aviatrix Claims 7 Flight Records

LONDON (AP) — British aviatrix Sheila Scott has completed a solo trip around the world and claims seven air records.

A crowd of 2,000 was on hand Wednesday when the 44-year-old Miss Scott landed her Piper Aztec here after the 34,000-mile flight.

Among the records claimed by Miss Scott was the first flight over the North Pole by a person flying solo around the world. She also claimed a record in flying solo from Darwin, Australia, to London in 3½ days, including refueling stops.

She said the trip cost her $110,400 and most of it is debt. She said she plans to pay it off

40 Killed in Crash of Train Near Belgrade

BELGRADE (AP) — At least 40 persons were reported killed and about 100 injured Wednesday night when a passenger train and a freight collided headon in a curve southeast of Belgrade.

The casualties were all aboard the passenger train, a six-car, short-haul motor train known as a rail bus.

The collision occurred less than 40 miles from Belgrade but in a remote area accessible to vehicular traffic only by rail. A special train with medical teams was sent to the scene and brought casualties to the nearest station, where ambulances collected them. But the first group of injured did not reach hospitals until nearly five hours after the crash.

Meanwhile, persons living nearby, the train crews and passengers who were not hurt did what they could for the injured.

Crews of both trains claimed that the signals on their route were open, giving them the go-ahead.

Miodrag Nestorovic, the engineer of the freight train, said he saw the lights of the rail bus approaching on a curve but it was too late for him to stop. "I heard a tremendous crash, a loud bang, and everything around me started to break into pieces," he said.

Svetomir Arsenijevic, who was driving the rail bus, said he had just left the Kasapovac station and started to pick up speed "when suddenly in a curve the freight ran into us. The crash was terrific. One of the cars of my rail bus plunged into a ditch. We rescued many, but many others we could not get to."

Merger

nor riterated his no-compromise stand on merger, but said he would sign a separate merger bill if the language were acceptable and it reached his desk before the budget.

Although Weaver said the bill is acceptable to him, and said on Tuesday he did not oppose merger entirely, statements from members of his administration indicate he still has strong reservations about the idea. When asked if he actually favored merger, Weaver deferred to the govrnor, who asked newsmen to "report the constraints under which he (Weaver) is here," referring to the regents' unanimous opposition to merger.

Weaver had expressed strong opposition to mission statements in the joint finance committee's merger bill. Those statements would have authorized a great expansion in graduate studies on the state university campuses, at a time when the UW has been asked to cut back on graduate education. The mission statements in today's compromise are the standard statements for each campus approved by the Coordinating Council more than a year ago.

Arms Development Funding Favored

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee has approved a $21-billion military buying authorization giving the Nixon administration just about everything it sought for major weapons development.

The committee made a slight reduction in funds for the Safeguard missile defense system and ruled out a start on extending it to the Washington, D.C., area, largely because the current deployment is running behind schedule and additional money could not be spent.

The committee restored $801.6 million cut out by the House for the Navy's F14 carrier-based fighter interceptor, citing the Pentagon's recommendation the program be carried out and the contractor's statement the funds are sufficient for 48 planes.

September Action

The procurement bill, which has precipitated lengthy Senate debates the past two years, will be called up for action in September.

It undoubtedly will attract a number of amendments, aimed at such major weapons programs as the Safeguard and the B1 advanced manned bomber. Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., of the Armed Services Committee predicted it "will have a very rugged trip on the floor."

Mercenary Provision

An aide to Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said he will offer two amendments dealing with Laos—one to limit U.S. spending there and another to stop U.S. pay for Thai troops in Laos.

That latter amendment, rejected in committee 11 to 3, is aimed at tightening an antimercenary provision adopted a year ago that prohibits spending U.S. funds for "Vietnamese or other free-world forces in actions designed to provide military support and assistance to the government of Cambodia or Laos." But it permits funds for "local forces in Laos and Thailand."

The administration has interpreted the Tahi troops being used in Laos as "local forces" on grounds they are "volunteers" and serving under Laotian command.

Symington and others claim the troops are recruited in Thailand and paid for by the Central Intelligence Agency and that this violates the antimercenary provision.

He sought to redefine "local forces" to include only Thais in Thailand and Laotians in Laos. Only Sens. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, and Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., supported him in committee.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Geometric Portraits Become Funny Faces

BY CAPPY DICK

Geometric portraits are fun to draw. See how many different kinds you can create.

The process is easy. First, draw a geometric outline for the head. It may a circle, an oval, a square, a triangle, an oblong, etc.

Once the outline has been made, decide upon the nature of the features. These must follow the same general shape as the head itself.

Pencil-Paper Fun

For example, if the outline is a circle, you must use circles for the eyes, nose and mouth as shown in the drawing above.

If the outline is a square, you must use squares for the features.

If the outline is a triangle, small triangles must be used for the eyes, nose and mouth.

For an oval outline, you must use small ovals for the eyes, nose and mouth.

You can vary the nature of the outline any way you wish and vary the features accordingly. For example, as shown in the picture above you can outline a square face with wavy lines and use wavy lines to form the eyes, nose and mouth.

See how many other kinds of geometric faces you can create.

'Crime' Rerun Stars Talented Foursome

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-7:30 Channel 5 — Jack Lord, Pat O'Brien, Sheree North and Dana Wynter are the stars in "Crime," on Action Playhouse. Ambitious trial deputy (Lord) and socialite Sarah Rodman (Dana Wynter) clash when he believes her guilty of murder. (R)

6:30-7:30 Channels 11-9 — Alias Smith and Jones foregoes comedy and goes for dramatic stuff this week. They're hunting mountain lions and sit in on a big poker game. One by one, the poker players are killed and Duel is winged so Murphy does most of the detecting. (R)

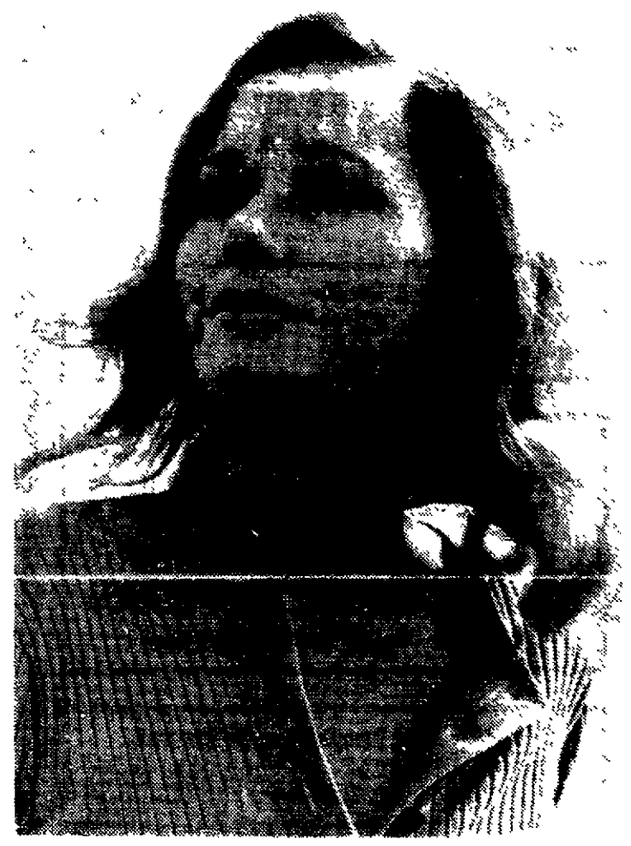

7-8 Channels 2-7 — There's a love story on Lancer, or at least as close as a series like this can get to romance. The elder Lancer meets an old flame in San Francisco and is smitten anew. But her son is in trouble. Phyllis Thaxter plays the lady and Johnny Crawford is the son. (R)

7:30-8 Channels 11-9 — The witchcraft goes on, on Bewitched. This week's spell has Endora turning Darrin into a warlock, through the device of going back to 14th Century Ireland and altering Darrin's ancestor, Darrin the Bold. (R)

7:30-8:30 Channel 5 — After a half-day of shooting this week's Ironside, the producers were unhappy with the guest star's work and replaced him. Theodore Bikel stepped in on short notice and did a fine job as an old Armenian tobacco merchant with a dark secret in his past — a secret known to his two dope-peddling nephews who use their knowledge to keep him in line. (R)

8:30-9:30 Channels 11-9 — Dan August is investigating the murder of a girl (Barbara Lee). There are plenty of suspects, but the list is narrowed down when some of them are killed, too. There is a moral here, about how it isn't too smart to take the law into your own hands. (R)

9-10 Channel 5 — Back to reruns of reruns with The Dean Martin Summer Summer Show. Vic Damone hosts as Donna Jean Young talks about her exciting life in East McKeesport, Pa., and Marc London and Jack Riley tell of their problems after being frozen in a meat locker for 43 years. (R)

Sally Kellerman, who won an Academy Award-nomination for her performance as Hot Lips Houlihan in "MASH," finally has been given a romantic role. Sally stars opposite Robert Shaw in Columbia Pictures' upcoming "Labyrinth". The cast also includes Mary Ure, Sondra Locke and Signe Hasso.

Son of Ex-King Hailed in Uganda

ENTEBBE, Uganda (AP) — Prince Ronald Mutebi, son of Uganda's first president and last king of the abolished Buganda kingdom, has arrived to the greeting of thousands of cheering Buganda tribesmen.

The prince, 16, came here Tuesday for summer vacation from studies at Bradfield College near Reading, England.

His father, Sir Edward Mutesa or "King Freddie," died in November 1969 in London, 3½ years after being deposed by Milton Obote. Obote was overthrown in January by a military coup that put Gen. Idi Amin in power.

Amin arranged for the return of King Freddie's body as an "act of national reconciliation" between the two million Buagandans and the rest of Uganda's nine million people.

Real Stagecoach Rolls Again at Greenbush

Twilight Tours Every Tuesday at Historic Wade House Inn, Jung Carriage Museum

BY JINGO

The old (and very real) stagecoach rolls again at Greenbush every Tuesday evening this month as Old Wade House personnel holds its annual twilight tours.

It's as close to a mid-19th century ride when the stagecoach inn was doing yeoman service as a stopping place for newcomers and travelers on the road from Sheboygan to Fond du Lac. It's a family adventure well worth the journey to Greenbush on State Highway 23.

Jingo

Especially interesting this summer is the fact that the stagecoach is part of the exciting Wesley W. Jung carriage collection on display in the museum up the hill from Wade House. The stagecoach is pulled by a team and journeys between the historic 1850 Inn and Butternut House and the Carriage Museum building.

Every Tuesday evening is a gala event at the two historic sites owned and operated by the State Historical Society of Wisconsin. Musical programs, an ice cream-bratwurst-hamburger social and a hymn sing at the beautiful Methodist Church (built in the same style) across the street are part of the summer program.

Tuesday Programs

Next Tuesday night, Aug. 10, The Four Cheddars, a Plymouth barbershop quartet, will sing in the ballroom of the Inn. On Aug. 17, the Kiel Municipal Band will present a concert in the Carriage Museum. This group recently returned from a music festival appearance in Kiel, Germany. Prof. Edgar Thiessen of Lakeland College is band director.

The Plymouth women's chorus known as The Chordalettes, which opened the twilight programs Aug. 3, will return for concerts Aug. 24 and Aug. 31.

Visitors on these Tuesday twilight tours will see Butternut House, the private residence on the Wade House grounds, Wade House Inn itself, restored with its original early American furnishings, the blacksmith shop, the maple sugaring cabin and the Jung Carriage Museum on the adjacent property.

Jingo finds it's fun going to Old Wade House anytime, but it's even more fun during the August twilight season.

American Party Chairman Resigns

Frank E. Drexler, chairman for the American Party of Outagamie County, has announced his resignation from that post.

In an open letter to members of the party, he said that for personal and business reasons, he and his family are moving to Florida.

Police Training, Recruitment Standards Urged

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert Warren renewed his plea Wednesday for adoption of minimum recruitment and training standards for Wisconsin law enforcement officers.

Warren told the Senate Judiciary Committee that mandatory programs would "insure uniformity in the administration of statewide justice."

Police and sheriffs groups in many areas of Wisconsin now "lack proper and constant training" because of the difficulty in organizing groups on a voluntary basis, Warren said.

The measure backed by Warren would require statewide application of law enforcement standards set by the law enforcement standards board.

Resident's Son Honored For Civil Defense Work

The son of an Appleton resident, Mrs. Ethel Hanna, 1009 N. Appleton St., recently received an outstanding performance rating and salary increase from the Defense Department for his work in the civil defense office.

Lowell J. Hanna, chief of communications in the civil defense office, was honored for his management of communications programs. He was instrumental in developing the existing civil defense warning system.

Blasted, Defended

Binding Arbitration for Public Workers Argued

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A bill which would encourage binding arbitration when collective bargaining procedures fail to resolve a public employe labor dispute had both strong opposition and strong support at a state Senate hearing Wednesday.

Ed Johnson of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities told the Senate Judiciary Committee that binding arbitration has not prevented strikes by public employes in other states.

The clause would require both sides of a dispute to submit a final offer, and have the arbitrator choose one or the other which both sides must accept.

'Flip a Coin'

"You don't need an arbitrator for this—you need a guy who can flip a coin, Johnson said. "This is something that's never worked anywhere else, and yet it's being foisted off here."

A companion measure would include policemen and fireman under the state law governing municipal employes, and permit them to seek binding arbitration.

John Lawton, who represented municipal employe unions, favored the bills because he said they required good faith bargaining, and would give police all the bargaining rights of other public employes.

Long Overdue

And Edward Durkin of Madison, president of the State Association of Firefighters, said the proposals were long overdue because "there's nothing in the law to make them (municipal officials) listen to us."

Sun Prairie Mayor Theodore Chase said the measures would allow an arbitrator to determine levels of local spending by deciding what labor contracts will look like.

"If you pass this bill, you will repeal the last vestige of home rule for municipalities," he said.

"The labor negotiator becomes king for day with no responsibilities. The people will have to live with his decision with no chance for revision or repeal."

Kaukauna Votes to Extend Sewer Lines

KAUKAUNA — The common council adopted a recommendation by the Board of Public Works Tuesday, calling for new sanitary sewer connections along County Trunk K on the city's south limits.

The project, which will cost property owners $5.90 per lineal foot, was passed on a 6-3 vote with Richard Verhoeven and Robert Vondracek (1st Ward) and James McDaniel (3rd Ward) dissenting.

An amendment passed by the council will allow residents five years to pay the assessment, unless they connect to the system beforehand. The new system had been advocated by some area residents because of septic tank failures and ground saturation.

Aldermen also approved a sewer contract to the Coppens Construction Co., at $5,800, for a sanitary sewer interceptor, abutting the canal below Wisconsin Avenue.

At the public works meeting earlier, aldermen heard from Art Wildenberg and Oliver Taylor, who said their firm would reprocess glass. If delivered, they will reprocess it free of charge, they explained. Council members agreed to inspect the center Aug. 16.

Aldermen also authorized a contract with Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) for park plans, and voted to send $13,390 in contingency funds to the police and firemen's pension fund.

Assembly at Forest Junction

German Bishop Seeks Unity

BY MAVIS KELLER
Post-Crescent Correspondent

FOREST JUNCTION — The problems of a changing time are the same the world over and it's time the people worked together to solve them, a churchman recently told a group here.

Speaking at the opening session of the annual United Methodist Assembly, Bishop Ernest Sommers, of Frankfurt, Germany, said, "We must find solutions. Our age moves at a terrific speed. In five years, the picture will change.

Addressing one of the largest crowds ever to assemble for the annual event, the bishop called for each Christian to help find solutions for the future.

Look Ahead

"We know where we've been, but we also have the capacity to look ahead, not just to reminisce about the past. Man lives in the present," the prelate stated.

The bishop is currently visiting churches in the U.S. to get acquainted and keep abreast of the progress and programs here. He also will attend the World Methodist Council meeting in Denver, later this month.

Touching briefly on the problem of his country, Sommers said that the division of Germany makes the administration of the bishop's duties difficult.

"Eastern and Western Germans try to keep in contact as much as possible, but it isn't easy because we are allowed in East Germany only on a limited basis," he said.

Today there even are separate bishops, and the only time they can get together is at the annual general conference, he said, adding, "and we are thankful for that at times."

Co-operation between the 60 million people in the west and the 17 million in the east is carried on through closed doors," the bishop said.

Mentioning specifically some of the similar problems the church encounters in the U.S. and his country, the prelate cited youth rebellion, social concerns, ecumenism and shortage of ministers.

Under Discussion

"Youths rebel, but they are a minority, as here," he said. The question of whether the church should get involved more in social concern or concentrate on evangelism is constantly under discussion, as it is here, he pointed out.

There is a shortage of ministers, as there is here for some denominations. "Our problem, though, is not that there are so few coming in; it's because so many entered the ministry in the 1920's and they are now retiring.

"We have to replace those as well as get new ones to serve the increases in population," Sommers explained.

Laymen, he said, are quite involved with church work, pointing to his own domain of 2,500 United Methodists supporting, for example, four old age homes.

East Germany, he said, is served by 140 ministers, which is about as many as in the Northeast District of Wisconsin (of the United Methodist Church). Although the ministers are not allowed to delve into politics, they are forward about speaking out against atheism, Sommers said. Youth services are limited to Sunday mornings, but they manage to get together at other times as well, the German churchman said.

But as everywhere, there are those who are members in name only.

"Many only want the church when they're hatched, matched or dispatched," Sommers said.

Himes, Ellis Felled By Nagging Injuries

BY LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — "I can see why pro coaches have been telling me for years that it gets down to a numbers game," Dan Devine dryly confided. "Just getting one guy hurt, after you're down to 40, can make a difference."

The Packer leader's observation, delivered in the wake of Wednesday's practice, had been prompted by minor injuries to two of his starters, cornerback Ken Ellis and offensive tackle Dick Himes.

With Saturday night's preseason inaugural against the Bears in Milwaukee looming ever closer, the physical status of his athletes obviously becomes of more immediate concern.

"Himes limped off with a sprained ankle and Ellis with a pulled groin muscle," Devine said, then added reassuringly, "I don't think either one is serious. . . But it does short us at defensive back."

Waiting Game

"It's hard to tell about Himes," he also admitted "He's putting ice on it right now, but you can't be sure how it will react. We'll just have to wait and see."

The former Ohio State performer was inclined to shrug off the injury. "It's nothing much," he said with a shrug of the shoulders. "I just got my foot caught in the grass and somebody fell over my leg."

Ellis, who was temporarily supplanted by recently arrived rookie Charlie Hall at the left corner following his mishap, also expressed confidence that he will be ready for the Bears.

"If Himes should not be available — and his problem would appear to be slightly more disabling than that of Ellis at this point — Bill Hayhoe presumably would move into his starting assignment.

Depth Worries

Asked if he were still concerned about depth in the offensive line, particularly in the wake of Himes' injury, Devine said, "Yes, I am . . . Dave Bradley has to log more practice time. He's got to come through for us — he's got to be able to go full speed for us."

Bradley, the Packers' No. 2 draft choice in 1969, has been troubled by injuries during his pro seasons after earning an "iron man" reputation during his college days at Penn State.

Assessing the day's session, which saw the Packers work against both the Bears' offense and defense, Devine noted, "Each day we get a little something more in.

"I'm trying to avoid having to put in a whole lot of stuff Friday morning," he said. Smiling, Devine added, "I suppose it will be just like any other opening game. You get to Friday morning and find out there are a lot of things you haven't covered.

"There is still stuff we haven't touched, like the onside kick recovery and the onside kickoff. We'll work on those tomorrow.

"Then, Friday, we'll probably go into the stadium for a review. That will be a closed practice, and give us a chance to check out all of the assignments."

Terming the morning's workout "a good, sharp drill," Devine said, "The passing was good and the defense was alert."

PACKER PATTER — Both Dale Livingston and Karl Kremser launched the long ball consistently during a kickoff return exercise which capped the practice . . . Devine, taking note of an aiding wind at the outset, directed the kicking and receiving units to reverse their fields, thus giving the returners a better chance to run the ball out of the end zone and incidentally requiring Livingston and Kremser to kick into the wind.

Record Crowd of 8,251 See Foxes Whip Twins, 4-0

Gossage Chalks 15th Win

BY GENE LILLGE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

A record crowd of 8,251 looked on as Appleton's Rich Gossage picked up his 15th win of the season with an eight-hit shutout over Wisconsin Rapids Wednesday night at Goodland Field, 4-0.

The AAL Night throng surpassed the single game attendance record of 8,054.

Gossage, in his first start against the Twins, walked only one and struck out six as he won his 13th straight decision. The shutout was Gossage's fourth and the 13th hurled by the Foxes' pitching staff.

The 6-3, 180-pound Colorado Springs, Colo., native did not appear to have his best stuff Wednesday night, but it was good enough to allow Gossage to pitch his 12th complete game in 19 starts. In 155 innings, Gossage has been tagged for 123 hits, 44 runs and 37 earned runs while he has walked 41, hit six batters, uncorked eight wild pitches and fanned 124. His ERA is an excellent 2.14.

Unwilling Victim

Jeff Hooper had the misfortune of batting Gossage on the mound Wednesday. Hooper gave up four runs, but only one was earned. The slightly built Twins' southpaw walked five, struck out seven, and allowed eight hits.

Appltton plated three unearned runs in the first inning on a two-run single by Larry Linville and a RBI single by Alex Barrett.

RBI For Ewing

Appleton got its fourth run in the fourth frame when Jerry Hairston reached second on a walk and wild pitch, and Sam Ewing singled to left.

Talley, Barrett and Gossage each rapped two hits to Pace Appleton's offense.

Wisconsin Rapids got at least one runner on base in all but the final inning but could never cross the plate as Gossage managed to get the key strikeout, pop up, or round out when needed.

The Foxes close their homestand tonight against Wisconsin Rapids before going on the road for two-game stays at Cedar Rapids and Clinton.

Jack's Defends ISC Crown in Merrill

BY CLIFFF CHRISTL

MERRILL — The State ISC Softball Tournament gets underway here today at Ott's Park as defending champion Jack's Rose Hill of Kaukauna heads a 16-team field.

Jack's won't play until Saturday at 1:45 p.m. when it meets Denmark Circle Tap in the 2-tourney sanctioned by the International Softball Congress.

Other area entrants include Kaukauna Athletic Club, Oshkosh Tommy's Angels and Oshkosh Oregon Clothing. Oregon won the Appleton Open Meet Monday night.

Tommy's Opponent

Tommy's sees action against Wausau Pike's Bar at 7:45 p.m. today, while KAC tests another Wausau entrant, Office Bar, at 9 p.m.

Oregon's first game will be Sport & Cycle of Merrill at 7:45 p.m. Friday.

Rounding out the tournament field are Merrill Gooze Superette Wausau Marskman; Hatley Bert and Dave's Bar; Green Bay 616 Club, Benkowski Budweiser and Military Golfland; Rhinelander Moritz Tire, and DeForest Rude's Lanes.

No clear-cut favorite has been established in the third annual Tournament.

"I don't think there is any one team, but five of us — Jack's, Military, Oregon, Benkowski and us — that at any given time could win it," Manager Gary Wouters of the 616 Club of Green Bay said in assessing the competition.

Imposing Forces

The two previous champions, 616 and Jack's Rose Hill of Little Chute, represent imposing forces. But the most consistent performers as of late have been Oregon Clothing of Oshkosh and Military Golfland of Green Bay.

In contrast to last summer when Jack's put together a 29-game winning streak just prior to the state meet, the defending champs have been suffering their lumps as of late. Their only tournament championships were scored at Oshkosh early in the year, and in an outside of the area test at Oxford.

As usual Gene (Chesty) and Hank Peerenboom have paced them both in the field and at the dish. The pitching remains in the solid hands of Bob Ellson, a junk-ball artist, and Jack Coenen.

Injury Riddled

The 616 according to Wouters is "awfully injury riddled, but playing fairly consistent." They have captured tournaments at Menasha, Luxemburg and Kaukauna.

Ron Dart, who missed a major portion of the season with a shoulder injury, and Fred Fels have led the team in hitting throughout the season. Others who help form what may be the most awesome attack in the area are Wouters, Dave Gilson and Hub Metzler.

Fels and veteran Bill Sundell handle the pitching chores, with Sundell being the more effective as of late.

Disappointing Start

Military after a disappointing start has come on strong and two weeks ago won the Kimberly Tournament.

Jack's Defends

"One of the reasons we stayed out of so many tournaments early in the year was because we always jelled in eary July. By missing some of those tournaments we hoped to be hungry at the end. And it looks like it will be to our advantage because we are hot," Manager Darrell Lemmens said.

Largely responsible for Military's streak are pitcher Tom Lemorande and outfielder Jerry Denny Lemorande has a 23-5 record (Military is 32-11 overall) and Denny has 29 hits in his last 56 at bats Also rapping the ball at a better than 300 clip are Jerry Hudson and Fred Steger.

Big Question

The big question with Military is whether they can find a mound compliment for Lemorande. In a double elimination affair such as this it is almost essential that a team has two pitchers.

Oregon has won titles at Denmark, and within the last three weeks at Appleton and Kewaunee.

Colombian Runner Favored In Pan-Am Marathon Today

By HUBERT MIZELL

CALI, Colombia (AP) — Adored distance runner Alvaro Mejias can light a fuse to ignite all of Colombia today, no matter if U.S. track and field heroes virtually have cinched the Pan American Games for Uncle Sam.

"Alvaro, Alvaro," the voices of Cali will chant as the lithe, 145-pound Mejias strains to win the gruelling Pan Am marathon for the host country.

Mejias whipped a thundering herd of 887 runners in April to win the fabled Boston Marathon and excite his countrymen for today's grind for a Pan Am gold medal.

The 5-foot-10 Mejias, a man of 30 with mustache and rippling muscles, is married to former USA Olympic swimmer Terri Stickles.

While Alvaro runs for Colombia, the talent-deep Americans are continuing to jam their war chest with gold medals with swimming—a Yankee favorite—ready to begin Friday.

36 Golds

The USA has 36 golds, 26 silver medals and 16 bronze for a total of 78 medals. Cuba's red tide was beginning to be stemmed as Castro's troops hit 50 medallions including 12 golds, 26 silvers and 12 bronze.

Canada is a distant third with 5-5-15 for an aggregate of 25 medals.

Track and field ends today and with only a few events on schedule the United States had won 16 of 18 men's tests, setting nine Pan Am records.

USA girls have three golds in nine events including two records. Lynn Graham, a 230-pound Fresno, Calif., giant, heaved the shot put an incredible 51-8-½ Wednesday night.

Women's gymnastics continue to be a major medal-maker for the United States, cute 16-year-old Roxanne Pierce of Kensington, Md., winning four golds to lead a Yankee sweep

Record Hammer Throw

The old-timers are doing their part, led by 41-year-old Al Hall of Charlton City, Mass., who sailed the hammer a record 216 feet Wednesday night.

Jan Johnson, a University of Alabama pole vaulter from Chicago Heights, Ill., gave the crowd of 40,000 a charge by clearing 17-5-¾ to better still another Pan Am mark.

Muscular minister Russ Knipp of Fullerton, Calif., lifted a record total of 990 pounds in the middleweight class to bag three gold medals.

USA fencers swashbuckled their way to men's and women's foil team crowns and U.S. deadeyes outshot the Cubans to take away four golds and a silver in skeet and small bore rifle firing from a prone position.

Whitlinger Advances in 'Nationals'

KALAMAZOO, Mich. — John Whitlinger of Neenah, Wis., has reached the quarter-finals in the National Junior Tennis Championship being held here.

Whitlinger defeated Jeff Miller, Scoth Plains, N.J., Wednesday after spilling Gary Yee, Seattle Wash., earlier, 7-6, 6-1.

Whitlinger's next foe will be Pat Du Pre, Birmingham, Ala.

Whitlinger and partner Mark Meyers, New Orleans, La., have beaten two teams, the latest Drew Everrett, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Todd Snyder, North Miami Beach, Fla., 6-3, 6-0.

Cleveland Loses Relief Pitcher in Freak Accident

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians Wednesday lost the services of their most effective pitcher, Steve Mingori, for at least a month in a freak pre-game accident.

The left-handed relief specialist suffered a fractured left jaw when a wild throw during infield practice struck him on the face as he was running from the outfield to the dugout.

Mingori had appeared in 48 games this season, all in relief, and had not given up a run in his last 20 appearances dating back to June 20. He has a 1.63 ERA

Brewers Muff Chance to Win

Dobson, A's Trip Milwaukee, 6 to 5

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland A's are now 30 games over .500, and only a complete collapse could keep them from winning the American League West pennant.

The A's defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 6-5 Wednesday night and lost one-half game to the second-place Kansas City Royals in the pennant race. But that was of no concern to Oakland Manager Dick Williams.

"We're in good shape," he said. "All we have to do is win our share."

The share Williams needs would be only half the remaining games of the schedule. Kansas City swept a doubleheader from Minnesota Wednesday night to cut the A's lead to 14 games, which appears to be too much ground to make up in the final 54 games.

Dobson Wins 11th

Chuck Dobson won his 11th game of the season with six innings of work against Milwaukee. He was replaced by Darold Knowles and eventually Bob Locker.

Locker pitched out of a serious jam in the ninth inning to gain his sixth save of the year.

"We should have won it," Manager Dave Bristol of the Brewers said. "We had runners on second and third with no outs and then the bases loaded with one out. You have to score at least one run in that situation."

The A's and Brewers conclude their series tonight with Catfish Hunter, 13-10, pitching for Oakland against Bill Parsons, 9-12, for Milwaukee.

Runners Advance

With Oakland ahead 6-5, pinch hitter Bill Voss walked to open the ninth inning. Jose Cardenal singled, and on an attempted pickoff play, Locker threw the ball into centerfield to put runners on second and third.

Andy Kosco grounded out, and then an intentional walk loaded the bases. Locker then got Ellie Rodriguez to ground into a double play that ended the game.

Bristol defended an unusual bit of strategy he used in the seventh inning. He ordered an intentional walk to Dick Green so he could pitch to rookie Angel Mangual.

Mangual singled to centerfield to drive in Oakland's sixth run, which proved to be the winner.

Wrong Guess

Bristol wanted to pitch to Mangual because the Oakland outfielder was unable to take batting practice before the game.

"We thought he was injured and couldn't swing the bat," Bristol said.

All the other runs in the game came on homers. Sal Bando rapped a grand slam for Oakland in the third inning, and Reggie Jackson hit a solo shot in the fifth. It was Jackson's first home run since July 6.

John Briggs hit a bases-empty homer, and Dave May lofted a three-run blast for Milwaukee.

Caffey to Play Middle

Butkus to Miss Shrine Game

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — It won't be the same, somehow.

Number 51, normally to be found laying about him with something akin to frenzy, will not be pawing the turf of Milwaukee County Stadium Saturday night.

Neither, for that matter, will be No. 40, more formally known as Gale Sayers, a gifted citizen who is as closely identified with the Chicago Bears' offense as is 51, the highly anti-social Dick Butkus, with the Bruin defense.

Despite their absence, however (both are making a gradual return to combat following off - season surgery). Packer center Ken Bowman will find a familiar face looming before him when he crouches over the ball for the first time.

Trade For McCoy

It belongs to LeeRoy Caffey, who wore the green and gold for five seasons — until January of 1970 when he was dealt to the Bears in a three-player exchange for the draft rights to Mike McCoy.

Coach Jim Dooley, presently priming his "Midway Monsters" at their Rensselaer, Ind., training camp, has indicated that Caffey, ordinarily to be seen at the right perimeter of the Bruin secondary, will be stationed at middle linebacker in Saturday night's match, the pre-season kickoff for both teams.

Although the towering Texan could not be considered a stranger to the assignment, having made brief appearances at the middle during injury situations while with the Packers, his presence there could mean a less traumatic evening for the Pack's offensive than it might otherwise be.

There is only one Dick Butkus. This is hardly a reflection upon the talents of Caffey, however, who has won all-pro honors in the past as an outside linebacker.

But even the most jaundiced — and there are more than a few Packer buffs who were incensed over the marauding Bear's gratuitous bludgeoning of Malcolm Walker in last year's collision at Chicago — rank him high among the game's all-time greats..

Caffey also could be a trifle rusty Troubled by a pulled leg muscle, he didn't play in the Bears' last major exercise, a scrimmage against the St. Louis Cardinals last Saturday.

Ross Brupbacher, a skilled but somewhat smaller athlete, handled the middle in that one. Brupbacher, according to Dooley's present plan, will fill in at Caffey's right side spot Saturday night.

The Cardinal scrimmage, incidentally, ended in a 7-7 tie for the Bruins. They scored on a 7-yard pass from Jack Concannon, who is scheduled to start at quarterback Saturday night, to George Farmer, a sophomore from UCLA. Farmer led Bear receivers with four catches for 57 yards, the mercurial Cecil Turner weighing in with three for 63.

Dick Gordon, the league's leading passcatcher a year ago with 71 receptions, was not available because he again is having contractual conflict with Bear management.

Dooley, deprived of Sayers' services for an indefinite period, is expected to unveil his three prize rookie running backs for Packer scrutiny.

One of them, surprising Dennis Forris of Pittsburgh, was a minor sensation against the Cardinals. A lowly second choice in the seventh round, he gained 70 yards in only five attempts, including one excursion of 28 yards and another of 26.

The more celebrated Joe Moore, the Bears' No. 1 choice in last January's draft, added 22 yards in four tries. Also due for exposure Saturday night is Moore's former Missouri running mate, 240-pound Jim Harrison.

Harrelson Wins 1st Paycheck

Ex-Baseballer Needs Work on His Short Game

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Ken Harrelson, a $1,500-a-week baseball player six weeks ago, may just frame his first weekly pro golf paycheck for $210.

"That isn't a bad idea. I may just frame it," said the former Cleveland Indian after shooting 76-73-72-221 for a tie for 22nd place Wednesday in the $20,000 Little American Golf Classic, a PGA satellite tournament.

Harrelson will return to Savannah, Ga., to work on his short game, especially his putting, which all but deserted him in the 54 holes over the 7,110-yard Firestone North course.

He plans more lessons with pro Bob Toski in Sarasota, Wyo., two starts in regular tour tournaments and a shot at qualifying for a PGA Approved Tournament Players card in the fall.

Golf for Sure

"I'll talk to Toski," Harrelson said. "He'll decide where I should try to qualify."

Even if the Indians would trade him back to his favorite town of Boston, the Hawk said baseball is not his bag anymore.

"Oh, yeah, it's golf for sure. I haven't missed baseball one iota since I left it," Harrelson said. He was making a reported $75,000 a season with the Indians.

"I should have turned to golf when Boston traded me in 1969," he said.

Harrelson said he played his final round in par for the ill wife of his golf financial backer, Sid Haddad, an Arlington, Va., wrecking firm owner.

"Sid woke me up before he left this morning and told me to play good for Betty," the Hawk said. "She's in a hospital in Washington D.C."

Poor Putter

Harrelson curled in short putts for birdies on the No. 2 and No. 13th but three-putted for bogeys at No. 8 at 6 and No. 12.

"Even a borrowed putter couldn't help me today," he said. "I borrowed one from the pro shop. I don't even know what kind it was. Whatever it was, it was bad."

Harrelson wound up with 105 putts for 54 holes and vowed his short game would get all of his attention in practice. The Hawk said the practice tee was one of his problems here.

"I get nervous on the practice range," he said. "I don't want people seeing me shanking the ball."

Bolwerk Cards 36 To Lead League

Clair Bolwerk fired a 36 to pace the latest session of the Appleton Municipal Good-Fellowship Golf League at Reid Muni.

Tying for the runnerup spot, at 40, were Bob Hannemann, Jim DeBraal, Connie Schink, Orv Strutz and Jim Laurino.

The Sweet Shots lead the team race.

Cutting Ax Continues

Thomas' Health Questioned, Deal Off

By EARL GERHEIM
Associated Press Sports Writer

Controversial running back Duane Thomas, the fleet-footed ace who led the Dallas Cowboys in rushing last season, has covered a lot of ground this past week but doesn't seem to have made any headway.

Thomas was traded by the Cowboys to the New England Patriots last weekend after he tossed several verbal barbs at Dallas management and requested that he be swapped. Under terms of the transaction, New England sent halfback Carl Garrett and the Patriots' No. 1 draft pick next year to Dallas and also received lineman Halvor Hagen and wide receiver Honor Jackson from the Cowboys.

Deal Cancelled

Dallas President Tex Schramm, who has been a target of Thomas' fiery criticism, announced Wednesday that part of the deal had been cancelled. Thomas was coming back to Dallas, Garrett was returning to the Patriots and New England could keep Hagen and Johnson in exchange for two undisclosed draft choices, he said.

Thomas deserted the Patriots training camp Monday.

Schramm said the cancellation had been prompted by questions raised about Thomas' condition by the New England team physician.

Develops Questions

The Patriots issued a statement which said:

"The Patriot team physician, in the course of his physical examination of Duane Thomas when he arrived at training camp, developed certain questions concerning Thomas' general condition." The team neglected to elaborate but said, "These concerns were confirmed in the brief practice that followed. Mr. Thomas has since withdrawn from training camp after declining to complete his physical examination."

Elsewhere in the NFL, the Philadelphia Eagles retreated under a threatened lawsuit and recalled waivers on defensive back Ron Medved. The veteran player was placed on waivers Monday and charged the Eagles had dealt with him in bad faith because he was waived while waiting for an injured ankle to heal.

Retzlaff Disagrees

Eagles General Manager Pete Retzlaff rejected Medved's contention and said a doctor had pronounced the player physically fit.

Wide receiver, Jerry LeVias, traded to the San Diego Chargers by the Houston Oilers, has not appeared in camp and is being fined.

Rookies Joe Profit and Willie Belton registered long touchdown runs as the Atlanta Falcons conducted a 30-minute rushing scrimmage.

The cutting ax continued to swing at several pro football camps as teams battled the midnight deadline for a 60-player limit. The Kansas City Chief made the biggest cut, trimming 11 players from their roster.

Defense back Richard Petitbone joined the growing list of Rams traded to the Redskins since former Los Angeles Coach George Allen assumed the reins in Washington.

Allen called Petitbone "one of the great strong safeties in football. He knows our system and he is a winner." Petitbone was acquired for undisclosed draft picks.

The Redskins also traded defensive end Bruce Anderson to New Orleans in exchange for running back Tom Barrington.

Bombers Face Sheboygan in Berggren Cup

The annual Berggren Cup Soccer Games will be played at Appleton's Goodland Field Sunday with the Fox Valley Bombers, 1970 First Division champions, playing host to the event.

The Bombers and the Sheboygan Sports will start the tourney action at 1 p.m., and a contest between Monona Grove and Waukesha is set for 2:10 p.m.

The two losers will then square off for third place honors at 3:20 p.m., and the two winners collide at 4:30 p.m. for the Cup. The title game will be 1½ hours in length, the other games just one hour.

In case of a draw, cornerkicks will count.

Chairman of the event is Neenah's Horst Kelbert. Another Neenah resident, Andy Hendriks, and Sheboygan's Neil Noordover, will referee the games.

vine observed, "Charlie Hall looks like he'll play, and Brockington will play."

John Hilton, who is facing the challenge of sterling sophomore Rich McGeorge, will draw the starting tight end assignment against the Bears, the Packer major-demo said. "Hilton has had a good fall practice," he asserted. "He has not made many mistakes."

Linebacker John (Bull) Bramlett, much in the news of late, checked into the Packer dressing room and promptly ended a four-day mystery . . . Ever since he was acquired from the Patriots last Saturday in the Rich Moore trade, his weight has been a matter of considerable speculation, with estimates ranging from 195 pounds to 205, 210, etc. . . A step on the scales disclosed Bramlett is currently 220.

The Packers will leave for Milwaukee and Saturday night's baptismal by bus at 1:30 Friday afternoon from their St. Norbert College base. . . They will headquarter at the Pfister Hotel and return to Green Bay Sunday morning.

The game will be televised "live" over Green Bay's Channel 2, starting at 8 p.m.

Houston's Forsch Ends Dodger Win Skein at 5 Games

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers forgot Ken Forsch once before, but they remember him now.

Forsch, a rookie right-hander, hurled a four-hitter for Houston Wednesday night, shutting out the Dodgers 2-0 and ending a five-game LA winning streak. It was the youngster's first major league shutout and it came against a team that once professed interest in Forsch—all of one phone call's worth.

Forsch, an outstanding pitcher at Oregon State, was drafted by the Astros in 1968 But before the draft, the Dodgers apparently were thinking about the youngster.

"The night before the draft, I got a phone call from somebody with the Dodgers," Forsch said. "They asked if I was interested and I said yes. That's the last I heard from them. Just one phone call, that's all."

Reds Blank Mets

Elsewhere in the National League Wednesday, Cincinnati shut out New York 1-0, Atlanta trimmed Philadelphia 5-3, Montreal nipped Pittsburgh 4-3 in 11 innings, St. Louis downed San Francisco 7-2 and Chicago won two from San Diego, 6-4 in the completion of a suspended game and then 3-0 in the regularly scheduled contest.

Forsch, 6-5, struck out nine Dodgers and ended a personal four-game losing streak. He had not won since July 4

The tall rookie was locked in a scoreless duel with veteran Al Downing until the sixth inning when the Astros struck for both their runs, ending a 21-inning scoreless streak.

Roger Metzger started the wining rally with a single and Joe Morgan worked Downing for the Astros' only walk. Jim Wynn sacrificed the runners along and Cesar Cedeno drilled a two-run single.

The loss cost the Dodgers a chance to pick up ground on San Francisco, the NL's Western Division leaders. The Giants fell victim to Bob Gibson's 200th career victory, bowing on a seven-hitter.

Ted Kubiak slugged a three-run homer for the Cardinals as Gibson beat San Francisco for the 10th consecutive time. Only two other active pitchers, Juan Marichal of the Giants and Philadelphia's Jim Bunning, have passed the 200-victory plateau.

Gary Sutherland drilled an 11th inning pinch single to move Montreal past Pittsburgh's Eastern Division leaders. Boots Day and Ron Brand had singled in front of Sutherland's deciding hit.

Bob Bailey drove in the Expos' first three runs with a sacrifice fly in the third inning and a bases-loaded single in the fifth. Manny Sanguillen homered for the Pirates.

Mike Lum's two-out, two-run single in the ninth inning gave Atlanta its victory over Philadelphia. Lum delivered his winning hit after the Braves had loaded the bases on a single by winning pitcher Mike McQueen and walks to Ralph Garr and Hank Aaron.

Felix Millan's two-run double had tied the game for Atlanta in the seventh after Roger Freed's two-run homer helped the Phillies build an early 2-0 lead

Pete Rose's eighth inning double drove in the only run of the game and gave Cincinnati its victory over the Mets. Gary Nolan earned the victory with last-out help from Clay Carroll, besting New York's Gary Gentry, who had a career-high 11 strikeouts.

The Cubs completed a victory over San Diego in a game that was suspended after six innings on May 16 and then beat the Padres again in the regularly scheduled game. Ron Santo's two-run double in the fifth inning back in May turned out to be the deciding hit in the suspended game.

Then Milt Pappas scattered eight hits and shutout the Padres for his 12th victory of the year. Joe Pepitone stroked a single and double to lead the Cubs' attack.

Bonduel and Green Bay '9s' Vie for Title

LITTLE CHUTE — The St. John Athletic Association softball tournament, which was delayed because of rain last weekend, will be concluded this weekend at Legion Field.

At 12:30 p.m. Saturday, Corner Bar, of Weyauwega, will meet Zwicker's, of Appleton, for consolation honors. No admission will be charged for this game.

Sunday's action begins with a 4:30 p.m. game between two area women's softball teams.

At 6 p.m. Sunday, Swiderski Implement, of Bonduel, duels Loch's Bar, Green Bay, for the tourney championship. Admission will be charged for Sunday's program.

In last weekend's semi-finals, Loch's beat Corner Bar, 13-4, as Jim Simons and Denny Delorit hit homers; and Swiderski's stopped Zwicker's, 10-4, behind Gary Wudtke.

Texas League Ace Pitches 15 Innings of No-Hit Baseball

— Tom Walker, 21-year-old right-hander for the Dallas-Fort Worth Spurs pitched the longest no-hit game in the history of the Texas League Wednesday night as he blanked the Albuquerque Dodgers 1-0 in 15 innings.

Walker, 10-6, retired the last 21 men in a row and the Dodgers were able to hit only six balls out of the infield.

Royals Sweep, Lolich Wins 17th

KC's Fitzmorris Saws Off Twin Bats

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

After writing and singing songs, what can Al Fitzmorris do for an encore?

How about a two-hitter.

Fitzmorris, Kansas City's singing pitcher, and former member of the Appleton Foxes

Al Fitzmorris

of the Midwest League hit the high note of his baseball career with a 3-0 waltz Wednesday over the heavy - hitting Minnesota Twins after the Royals won the opener of a twi-night doubleheader, 2-1.

"This is the best game of my career—by far, the best," said Fitzmorris, who has done considerable song-writing and singing for several years during the off-season.

No-Hit Bid

Fitzmorris was flirting with a no-hitter when Harmon Killebrew singled to lead off the seventh inning.

In the other American League games, the New York Yankees blasted the Cleveland Indians 7-3; the Detroit Tigers tripped the Washington Senators 2-1; the Baltimore Orioles topped the Boston Red Sox 5-4 in 10 innings in the opener of a twi-night doubleheader before rain washed out the nightcap; the Chicago White Sox buried the California Angels 10-3 and the Oakland A's nudged the Milwaukee Brewers 6-5.

Until Killebrew broke the spell, Fitzmorris knew full well what was happening.

"Sure, I knew what was going on," said Fitzmorris, "pitchers always say they aren't aware they're pitching a no-hitter. I doubt that. No-hitters don't come along often enough not to be aware of them."

Relief Pitcher

Fitzmorris hasn't had too much experience with victories, let alone no-hitters, in his three-year major league career. Used primarily as a relief pitcher, his triumph Wednesday night was only the 12th in three seasons.

Until his two-hit beauty, Fitzmorris hadn't had that much success against Minnesota.

"I think this is the first time I ever pitched against the Twins that Killebrew didn't hit a homer off me," said Fitzmorris.

Fitzmorris' brilliance Wednesday was almost matched by Minnesota's Ray Corbin, who had allowed only three hits before coming unstruck in the Kansas City eighth.

In the opener, Dick Drago bested Bert Blyleven in a tough pitching duel. Hopkins knocked in the winning run to climax a two-run first inning for Kansas City.

Roy White slammed a two-run homer and Danny Cater drove in three runs without a hit in New York's victory that gave the Yankees a sweep of their three-games series with Cleveland. White staked winner Stan Bahnsen to a 2-0 lead in the first with his two-run homer, and Cater followed with RBI on a groundout in the fourth, a bases-loaded walk in the sixth and a sacrifice fly in the eighth.

17th Victory

Mickey Lolich notched his 17th victory, striking out 14, as Detroit stopped Washington. Al Kaline tripled and scored the first run in the first, then homered in the third for the winning tally.

Merv Rettenmund's 10th-inning single—his fourth hit of the game—chased home Baltimore's winning run as the Orioles rallied for a victory over Boston, the runnerup team in the American League East. The victory boosted Baltimore's lead to 5½ games over the Red Sox.

Rich McKinney drove in two runs as Chicago scored six in the first two innings and kayoed California ace Andy Messersmith. Tommy John went the route for the White Sox despite giving up 12 hits.

Wisconsin OUTDOORS

MADISON — Variety is the word that describes fishing in Wisconsin waters these early days of August.

The Department of Natural Resources reports almost any species can be caught somewhere in the state. Fishing is generally fair to very good.

Fishing on Lake Michigan in the Southeast District has been better along Milwaukee and Ozaukee counties. Further north the fishing for coho and salmon gets better in the Lake Michigan District, and lake and rainbow trout are also hitting offshore in Manitowoc County.

Lake Winnebago's mudflats and rock reefs are still good spots for perch fishermen, the Menominee river has walleye action and Big Green Lake's northern pike are biting well.

The musky action continues fair to good in the Woodruff area of the North Central District.

LAKE MICHIGAN DISTRICT

Marinette County — Walleye are biting on the Menominee river and stream fishing for trout is good. Shawano Lake has northern action, and another highlight for fishermen is the good blueberry crop.

Manitowoc County — Bass are hitting in the Manitowoc River west of the city, and perch are biting in Hartlaub Lake. Lake and rainbow trout fishing off shore is good with catches being made in the 12-15 pound class in 40-90 feet of water, best bait has been the Five of Diamonds spoon. Coho are being taken close to shore and near the surface using Cleo and Rapala lures.

Kewaunee County — Lake trout fishing is fair on the big lake, panfishing is good on most inland lakes.

Winnebago County — On Lake Winnebago perch are being taken on the mud flats, and the rock reefs on the eastern and western shores are producing fair catches of walleye with early morning or late evening trolling using artificial baits. Elsewhere in the area, northern pike are being caught in Lake Poygan on the western end, and near the mouth of the Pine and Willow rivers.

Waushara County — Bluegill action has been good on Big Silver and Pleasant lakes; using worms in the deep waters is the best method.

Green Lake County — Northern pike are hitting well on Big Green Lake; panfishing has been good on most lakes.

NORTH CENTRAL DISTRICT

Oneida County — Good musky action has been reported by DNR wardens on the Wisconsin River and Pelican, Oneida and Crescent Lakes with largest a 28 pounder. Some walleye pike are hitting on the Wisconsin River with fish weighing up to six pounds. Panfishing has been good with some nice sized bluegill coming from Indian and northern Oneida lakes. A few northern are being taken in the Sweeney and Moccasin thoroughfares; bass fishing has been fair in Madeline and Carroll lakes with a 22-inch, 7½ pounder taken last week. Trout fishing is slow.

Vilas County — Fishing has been generally slow in the western portion of the county. There is some musky action on Fishtrap, Plum, Trout and Van Vliet lakes; also Little St. Germain and Lac Vieux Desert. Walleye and bass fishing is slow.

Forest County — Perch are biting on Lake Metonga as panfishing is good on all lakes. Pine and Pickerel lakes have northern action as does Scattered Rice Lake. Trout fishing is fair and two musky over 40" were taken from Wabicon Lake last week. Bass fishing is good on the smaller lakes.

Lincoln County — Musky fishing has been good with the best action on Lake Mohawksin and fair action on the Wisconsin River flowage and Seven Island Lake. Walleye fishing has been fair on nightcrawlers and jigs on Lakes Alexander and Seven Island. Fishing for northern, bass and panfish is good on all waters. Trout fishing is good on baits in the Newood and Prairie rivers.

Wisconsin River — Fishing activity has ranged from good to very good. Fishing for walleye on jigs has been very good below the Lake DuBay dam. Fishing for northern has been good below the Petenwell bridge and dam on the Wisconsin River; live bait is best. Very good walley fishing is available on the Castle Rock flowage with the best sized fishing being taken on the Adams County side near Happy Landing. Catfishing continues very good below the highway No. 82 bridge on the Wisconsin River. Evening bullhead fishing is very good throughout the area.

55-Point Total By Miller Paces Planes' Victory

Bruce Miller meshed 55 points to lead the Planes to a 100-87 win over the Cats in Tuesday night's CAC Summer Basketball League.

Ron Hayek pitched in with 22 for the Planes. Mark Rechner paced the losers with 26, while John Pierce and Mark Catlin added 22 and 21 points respectively.

Bob Fullarton tallied a game-high total of 23 points, but his Tables dropped a 69-68 decision to the Gunners Mike Schultz and Rich Reitzner led the winners with 22 and 21 points.

Mike Green paced a well-balanced attack, with 23 markers, as the Rosters whipped the Circles, 106-73.

Reitzner Scores 45, Paces Win

Rich Reitzner tallied 45 points to lead all scorers in the YMCA high school boys summer basketball league.

Reitzner paced Appleton Structural Steel to a 90-68 win over Combined Mills.

Outagamie Bank (6-0) crushed Appleton Mills, 91-60, to remain atop the league. Tom Heim had 23 for the winners.

Appleton State Bank (5-1) tripped Integrity Mutual, 67-65, behind Mike Huebner's 24 points.

In the Junior High League, Charles Wirth scored 33 points to lead Peerless Paint to an 81-80 win over Crystal Printing (5-1).

Kevin Donahue meshed 30 points as Goeman's Insurance whipped Pond Sports, 86-69; and Jim Emmers counted 30 markers to lead Clark's Cleaners passed Retson's, 73-49.

Manawa 6-1 Victim

Neenah Legion Wins

NEW LONDON — Neenah scored runs in is last four appearances at the plate Wednesday to defeat Manawa, 6-1, behind the pitching of Mike Farrin and iron man Dene Storch.

Storch has been summoned to the mound in each of the Neenah games — five — and has performed almost flawlessly, the only loss coming in a dual with Oshkosh's Tim Fenn earlier.

Manawa pushed across its only run in the top of the first on two errors and a fielder's choice.

Spike Wound

A spike wound to Randy Hoffman early in the game probably figured in the first two Neenah runs. Hoffman suffered a deep cut above the knee attempting a tag on a sliding runner at second in the third.

A walk and Hank Murphy's hit set the stage in the fifth. Bruce Terwillegar's bouncer up the middle barely eluded Hoffman's glove and allowed two runners in.

Mike Miller's sacrifice fly brought home a run in the sixth. Singles by Terwillegar, Glen Rodgers and Bob Pansy tallied another in the seventh.

Le Compte Triples

Miller opened the eighth with a single and Pete Le Compte lined a shot into the right-center alley for a triple. Le Compte tallied the final run on a wild pitch.

Murphy, Le Compte, Terwillegar and Pansy each collected a pair of hits in the 11-hit Neenah assault.

A Twin-Cities showdown is slated for tonight as Neenah and Menasha play at 8:15 p.m. at Hatten Stadium.

Dr. Robert Herman, Oshkosh, Region V director, said, Wednesday he "hadn't heard anything from the state appeals board on the believed protest in Tuesday's game by Menasha."

SAS Tries to Quash POW Release Rumor

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The Scandinavian airline said today a report that American military officials had asked the airline to fly 187 American prisoners of war from Laos to Europe was incorrect.

The earlier report had brought a flood of official denials from American and North Vietnamese officials.

The airline said today its office in West Germany had been approached in mid-July by a "private individual" who wanted to arrange a charter flight from Laos to Rome "for 187 passengers."

"It was never mentioned that the category of passengers was military personnel," SAS said in a statement released today.

The airline said it made preliminary arrangements and was ready to sign a contract, but this "has been called off by the private contact of SAS in Germany."

The "private individual" was not identified by name or nationality.

The report of a prospective POW flight was first published Wednesday night in Sweden's biggest newspaper, Dagens Nyheter, which said the flight would be on Aug. 12.

Charter Airlift

This was followed by an announcement from an SAS spokesman that U.S. military authorities in West Germany had asked to charter a DC8 to airlift 187 POWs from Vientiane, the Laotian capital, to Rome by way of Bangkok.

Dagens Nyheter charged SAS with "giving way to political pressure to soft pedal the whole thing."

Editor in Chief Boerje Dahlqvist maintained the newspaper's report, attributed to "sources," was "wholly correct as it stands," but refused to identify his sources. He did not specify what "political pressure" he claimed had been applied.

"When we deliberated about the publication of this report, everything seemed in order and there was no reason to hold it back," he said. "I'm not prepared to guess as to what will happen now."

SAS spokesman Jack Herbert said: "Nuts to Dagens Nyheter. "I can't give any explanation about this whole thing other than to say that a lot of people were unavailable when this story broke and that we could not sort things out until now."

In Washington, President Nixon's news secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, said the U.S. government "has not been informed of any such plan, nor has the U.S. participated in negotiating a plan such as suggested in the Swedish newspaper."

"Further, the U.S. government at any level has not requested the Scandinavian airline, SAS, to proceed as suggested in the Swedish newspaper," Ziegler added.

Xuan Thuy, North Vietnam's chief negotiator at the Paris peace talks, called the reports "excessive imagination," while Truong Gia Nhan, an attache at the North Vietnamese Embassy in Stockholm, termed the report a "fabrication" and said it was "totally unfounded."

Impossible

"A release of American prisoners in the present situation is impossible in view of President Nixon's unchanged attitude to the seven-point plan" offered by the Viet Cong at the Paris peace talks, he said.

Thuy, speaking to newsmen as he entered the 124th session of the peace talks, said unless President Nixon accepts the Communists' peace plan "the list of captured military men, far from becoming shorter will only lengthen."

U.S. military authorities in West Germany said they had not heard of any plan to fly 187 American prisoners of war out of Vientiane on an SAS charter jet.

Arne Bjornberg, the Swedish ambassador to Hanoi and Peking now in Stockholm on leave, expressed doubts about the SAS report. If it were true, he said, "it would mean the Americans have accepted Hanoi's demands for withdrawal of all American troops in Indochina."

Wednesday, before the airline's report, Nixon told a news conference that the United States was "very actively pursuing negotiations on Vietnam in established channels," never mentioning, however, specific efforts to gain the release of U.S. prisoners.

Nevertheless the SAS spokesman said his airline was "just awaiting a call from the Americans saying they are ready for signing a contract."

"When?" he was asked.

"Today, tomorrow or the day after tomorrow," he replied.

The officer in charge of prisoner affairs at the U.S. Embassy in the Laotion capital, Richard Rand, refused to comment on the SAS report, but added: "This office is not aware of any specific discussions with regard to these 187 prisoners."

Rand also refused to comment on reports of stepped-up diplomatic contacts with the Communist Pathe Lao. "I'm just not going to comments," he said. "The whole area is that sensitive."

"There have been continuing contacts," another diplomat in Vientaine said, "but they have been stepped up slightly between the U.S. Embassy and the Pathet Lao."

He said Rand had been assigned the specific job of following up the contacts. Heretofore, prisoner affairs had been handled by others in the embassy who were unable to devote full time to the task, the diplomat reported.

Worden Makes First Walk in Deep Space

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Astronaut Alfred M. Worden stepped out of the streaking Apollo 15 spacecraft nearly 200,000 miles from earth today to take man's first walk in deep space.

Bundled in a stiff pressure suit and attached to a 25-foot lifeline, Worden eased out of the open hatch of the command ship Endeavour for a hand-over-hand trip about 15 feet to an equipment bay at the rear of the spacecraft to retrieve two film canisters.

The canisters contain nearly two miles of high resolution film covering nearly 20 per cent of the lunar surface, including what are expected to be the best pictures yet of the hidden backside.

With the hatch open, David R. Scott and James B. Irwin also wore pressure suits as protection against the vacuum of space. Irwin was to emerge partially from the spacecraft to assist Worden.

Earlier, the astronauts canceled a course change maneuver because Apollo 15 was on such an accurate course as it sped back toward the earth.

Mission Control Center calculated Endeavour's course and told the astronauts when they awakened at 4:20 a.m. that they did not need to make the engine-firing course change. They were heading home after six days of moon exploration.

"You're so close to course we're going to give you the Vasco de Gama navigation award," capsule communicator Joe Allen said.

Da Gama, a late 15th century Portugese navigator, was the first European to sail to India by sea.

At 6:49 a.m., they sped through a "twilight zone" where they escaped the influence of lunar gravity and fell into the sphere of earth gravity. They were 204,138 miles from earth and 38,410 miles from the moon and began picking up speed.

A television camera is mounted outside to relay pictures to earth as Worden moves into a silent, weightless world which has been braved previously by only nine men—six Americans and three Russians. All were in earth orbit.

In addition, eight Americans now have walked on the moon, which has a gravity field one-sixth that of earth's.

Worden's stroll is necessary because the bay is jettisoned before re-entry and does not return to earth with the astronauts.

The spacemen concluded man's greatest lunar expedition late Wednesday when they fired the Endeavour out of moon orbit on a near-perfect course that will carry them to a splashdown in the Pacific Ocean 285 miles north of Hawaii at 3:46 p.m. Saturday.

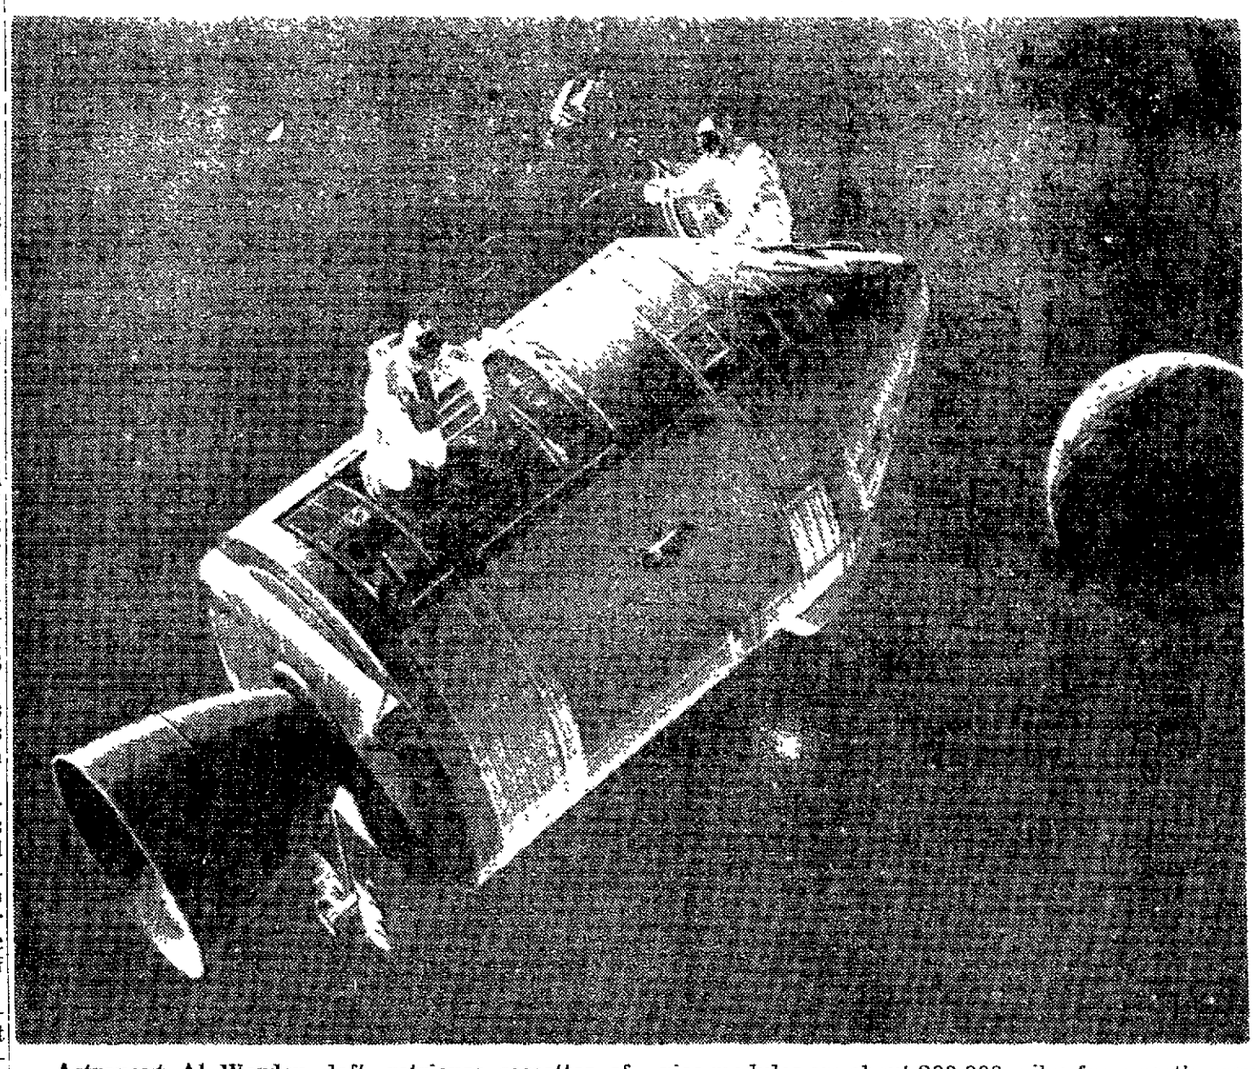

Scientists here are eagerly awaiting the approximately 175 pounds of rocks Scott and Irwin gathered during three days on the moon.

Before heading for home Apollo 15 ejected into lunar orbit a 78.5-pound science satellite intended to send back data for at least a year on the precise shape of the moon and on magnetic, gravity and electrical fields.

"Tally-ho," Scott called out as the payload was spring-ejected from the same bay that carries the mapping cameras. "That's a very pretty satellite out there. It seems to be rotting quite well. Very stable."

Earth stations immediately began receiving strong signals from the new lunar explorer.

Apollo 15 was on its 74th orbit of the moon. As the astronauts were about to whip around the backside, out of radio contact, for the last time, capsule communicator Joseph Allen told them:

Widow Victim of 19th Robbery

DETROIT (AP) — After being the victim of thefts 19 times, a Detroit widow says, "I'm almost a walking zombie, I can't think anymore — I'm afraid for my life."

Police records detail the saga of Mrs. Sarah Parker during the past five years.

The retired Chrysler assembly line worker and former Georgia school teacher has lost five television sets, 10 radios, several watches, her wedding bands, a diamond ring and coin collection to the thieves. Police said only one television set has been recovered.

Draft Lottery Held

Men Learn Order of Call-Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The national lottery to assign draft numbers to men turning 19 years old this year and establish the order of callups next year began today with June 20 getting No. 30.

The second number drawn gave No. 70 to those whose birthday is Sept. 2.

The first numbers were drawn by two of six youth advisers to the Selective Service System. J. Brewster Bede of Morton, Wash., age 22, and Valerie Van Buren of Washington, D.C.

The matching of numbers and birthdates started after the plexiglass drums holding the capsules had been rotated to mix them up for half an hour.

Curtis W. Tarr, draft director, came from a sick bed to open the ceremonies and say that the chances of these young men being drafted next year are growing slimmer as the military manpower needs go down.

The draft law expired June 30 and Congress is not expected to pass a new one until after it takes a summer vacation ending Sept. 8.

Of the nearly two million men born in 1952, only a fraction can expect to be drafted. The Pentagon has estimated it will need 114,000 draftees in the fiscal year that ends next June 30, and the winding down of the Vietnam war has steadily reduced draft calls.

"Over this past year, draft calls have been significantly lower than in the past," he said. "In 1972, the year in which most of the men whose numbers are drawn today will be eligible for induction, we expect the draft calls will be even lower."

Men who turn 19 in 1971 but who are exempted or deferred still keep the draft numbers drawn today. The numbers will determine their draft priority at such time as they become eligible and go through a year's exposure to the call-up process.

Men born in 1951 or earlier are not affected. They keep numbers assigned in two previous lotteries.

Capsules containing numbers and birthdates were filled in random sequence Tuesday. Birthdates went into brown capsules and the numbers 1 through 366 went into yellow ones. There were 366 days in 1952, a leap year. Birthdates are matched with numbers, and men whose birthdays are assigned No. 1 are called up first.

This year's lottery procedure was streamlined in hopes of shortening it. It took 3½ hours last year.

Last year more than 100 "youth advisers" took turns plucking the capsules out of two drums, rotating the drum to mix the capsules after each draw.

This year's procedure had six advisers taking turns drawing lots of 20 capsules each, with only three spins of the drum every 20 draws.

This is the second year of the random selection system of rotating drums and using computerized scrambles to decide the sequence of putting the birthdates and numbers into the drums. This complicated process was devised after complaints that the first lottery was unfair.

Nixon Relents, to Consider Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Switching his tactics, President Nixon has challenged Congress to structure a wage-price review board without binding the economy in a straitjacket of controls.

Welcoming a full-scale debate in Congress on the wage-price board proposal, Nixon said Wednesday he is now open-minded about the idea but still skeptical it would ever work or should even be tried. In the past, he had rejected such a move outright.

Nixon's new flexibility on the anti-inflation proposal was coupled with a pledge to move more vigorously against big wage and price increases in the economy on a case-by-case basis.

As Congress pondered his words, the Labor Department prepared a fresh reading on inflationary trends in the economy with a report on July wholesale-price movements.

Nixon's challenge to Congress on a wage-price board was delivered in a roundabout way. He said he would consider such an idea favorably only if hearings convince him it could be done without stifling the economy.

"The problem here is, how can we move without putting the American economy in a straitjacket?" Nixon asked in an impromptu news conference.

He said he would reject any proposal that "would impose a new bureaucracy with enormous criminal powers to fasten itself on the American economy. That, I think, would do far more harm than good."

But, if a wage-price board proposal concerned itself with only voluntary guidelines, he said, that would never work, either. Voluntary compliance with guidelines may work for only three or four months before leading to a new wage-price spiral, he said.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns has suggested a board without enforcement powers to monitor and investigate big wage and price increases. Some Democrats have suggested a board with strong enforcement powers.

Legislation introduced by 13 Republican senators Wednesday, a move triggering Nixon's response, would set up a board to establish wage-price guidelines and enforce them through government procurement policies or a wage-price freeze.

Although Nixon's statement against "a new bureaucracy" appeared to rule out support for the senators' plan, he added in referring to congressional proposals:

"As far as we are concerned, we have an open mind in terms of examining the various proposals to see if there is a new approach which we may not have thought of.

"I have serious doubts that they will find such a new approach, but I do want to indicate that we will examine it because we all agree that the wage-price spiral is a significant danger to this expanding economy. The question is what we do about it, without going all the way to a totally controlled economy.

Making Progress

Nixon said his administration is making progress on both the unemployment and inflation fronts. He said the jobless rate will decline for the balance of the year. And he stood behind his earlier prediction that 1971 will be a "good year" and a "very good year" for the economy.

Nixon said he has asked Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson to inform him of every major wage and price "negotiation" in the economy.

"I will use the power of this office to the extent it can be effective to see that those negotiations are as responsible as possible," he said.

House Approves Draft Authority

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says he won't aid a filibuster against the House-passed compromise bill to extend the draft. But backers concede the bill can't become law for at least a month.

Passed by the House Wednesday 297 to 108, the measure contains a $2.4-billion-a-year military pay raise and a compromise provision urging President Nixon to negotiate a final date for withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Indochina.

The war-pullout measure was the first such language ever approved by the House, which earlier voted down a stronger proposal made by Mansfield and passed by the Senate. A House-Senate conference worked out the compromise, which doesn't please Mansfield and other Senate doves.

Original Amendment

Mansfield said in an interview he may revive his original amendment, which would make it U.S. policy to get out of Indochina in nine months if all American prisoners are released. But he said he wouldn't try to attach it to the compromise draft bill.

"I don't intend to be obstructionist," Mansfield said. "I don't intend to filibuster and I don't intend to vote for the bill."

The draft bill is not expected to come up in the Senate until after the month-long congressional recess that begins Friday.

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said it should be the first order of business after the Senate reconvenes Sept. 8.

The old draft law expired June 30 and officials say if a new one isn't passed soon they may have to use residual authority to call up some men who had been deferred.

Lottery Held

Meanwhile, the Selective Service went ahead today with the lottery that will determine the order in which men who turn 19 next year will face military service.

Stennis said he did not anticipate a great deal of trouble in winning passage of the draft bill. But Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, said he will be on hand to filibuster as soon as the bill comes up.

He said he hopes to muster a 12-man force of draft-bill opponents in an effort to talk it to death.

"I think we can hold out indefinitely as long as we've got the votes to ward off cloture," Gravel said. "It's going to take a two-thirds vote to get that bill through now or a month from now or 10 weeks from now."

That is the margin required to break a filibuster and limit debate in the Senate. The Senate limited debate to get the bill through in the first place, but some senators who voted to do so said they acted only because the Mansfield amendment was part of the package.

Cost of Food Continues to Rise

Meat Production, Prices Both High

WASHINGTON (AP) — An awesome consumer appetite for red meat, seemingly at any price, is keeping pace with record production and causing headaches for the government's retail-price watchers.

The Agriculture Department says food prices are rising a bit faster than earlier forecast but still expects grocery prices for all of 1971 to gain about 3 per cent, well below the 5.1-per-cent jump last year.

However, farmers have been turning out a record supply of beef and pork with little price benefit to consumers. A super-size pig crop last year caused hog prices paid farmers to plummet last fall and winter.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics says pork chops in June averaged $1.06 per pound at retail stores, compared with about $1.01 last January when the pork surplus was hitting the market. Last summer, before the farm price break, they were about $1.17 per pound.

Farmers are cutting back on hog production now and the outlook is for their prices to improve, meaning higher pork prices at stores.

Beef Prices

Beef prices also are on the way up despite record-large cattle output. In June, hamburger cost 68.7 cents a pound, up more than two cents from a year earlier, the BLS said. Round steak averaged nearly $1.38 per pound, compared with less than $1.30 a year earlier.

Beef and pork account for most of the meat consumed by Americans. And meat takes around 30 per cent of a family's food budget.

The Agriculture Department said in a food-situation report issued Wednesday that supermarket food prices during the first three months of 1971 were up less than 1 per cent. But during April-June they jumped 2.5 per cent above a year earlier.

More People

Looking ahead, the USDA says consumers may spend nearly $120 billion on all food this year, nearly 6 per cent more than in 1970. More people, an increase in per-capita meat consumption and higher prices will account for nearly all the rise.

A major factor in boosting food demand, particularly for meat, is an expected rise this year of around 8 per cent in consumer take-home pay. As paychecks grow larger, family spending for food seems to depend less on prices.

Hazen F. Gale, a food analyst with the Economic Research Service in USDA, said he is optimistic the over-all price rise of food this year would be held to 3.5 per cent, including meals eaten away from home.

However, Gale said, consumers probably have seen beef and pork prices the lowest they will be for some time.

6 Factories Get Antipollution Orders

The State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has ordered six factories to control industrial wastes polluting the waters of the Wolf River basin.

Four milk processors, Shawano Paper Mills, Inc., and Quality Packing, Co., New London, are included in the DNR's final orders, issued July 27.

The Dupont Cheese Factory, Marion, discharges wash waters to a low area near the plant. These reach the south branch of the Pigeon River at times of high stream flow, the DNR reports.

Untreated Wastes

Company officials must submit plans for treatment facilities by Oct. 1, and start construction, in March of 1972. The wash waters from processing were reported to create an odor nuisance in the area.

In Caroline, untreated wastes from the F. R. Buss & Co. plant discharge through three outfalls into the Embarrass River.

The company was ordered to treat its wastes by June 1, 1972, or to connect with the planned sewage system of the Caroline Sanitary District.

According to the department, tanks filled with whey located on the riverbank pose a potential spillage problem. By June 1, 1972, the firm must build a holding system for the tanks.

Wash waters from the Stephensville Cheese Factory septic tank overflow into a roadside ditch draining into Bear Creek. Sanitary wastes directed to a separate septic system discharge into the industrial waste system.

Improve Facilities

The DNR ordered the company to disconnect sanitary sewage from the industrial system by May 1, 1972, and to improve its treatment facilities by the same date.

In Fremont, process wastes and wash waters from the Silverfield Cheese Factory are a source of pollution to the Wolf River. The DNR reports that the company's soil absorption area connected to a septic tank is not operating satisfactorily.

The company has been ordered to start construction of improved treatment equipment by March 1, 1972.

Shawano Paper Mills, Inc., on the Wolf River, must install sampling equipment on all of its waste outfalls by Feb. 1 of next year. After the equipment is installed, the mill must submit monthly reports to the DNR's Division of Environmental Protection, listing the amount of suspended solids and oxygen-demanding wastes discharged daily from each outfall.

"Minimum Standards"

Improvements to the outfalls were ordered built by June 1, 1972, to bring effluents in line with "minimum stream standards." By Dec. 31, 1972, the mill must limit its daily discharges into the river to less than 1,200 pounds of suspended solids and 600 pounds of oxygen-demanding wastes.

Food Stamp Plan is Threatened by Cost

Outagamie County's deputy welfare director Wednesday visibly startled Social Services Board members when he told them he may need at least two additional employes to implement the federal food stamp program approved by supervisors last month.

Ray F. Kaskey who, in the absence of a director heads operations in the Outagamie County Department of Social Services, said his agency now has two employes working full time carrying out the surplus commodity program, which would be ended with initiation of the food stamp plan.

"We don't have the staff to take over," Kaskey informed the surprised board members who indicated they were under the impression the food stamp system would cost less to administer than the surplus commodities program.

Kaskey said he may need at least another aide and another clerk. He did not get around to discussing salaries for the additional help.

Discussion on Kaskey's prediction was brought to an abrupt halt by Supv. L. O. Woodard, social services board chairman, who, upon hearing the comments, remarked, "There's a new train on the track here now."

Woodard who, as chairman has attempted to limit open controversy in his board meetings, continued, "Let's close all discussion on food stamps now. We've got to do a lot more homework."

Supv. Herman Ripp, board vice chairman and a major figure behind study and resulting passage of the food stamp plan, told The Post-Crescent after the meeting that he still feels the program can be administered more economically than surplus commodities.

More Time

Although he declined to elaborate, Ripp indicated disagreement with Kaskey's prediction that more employes would have to be hired to supplement those already working on surplus commodities.

There could be more time available to iron out the administration difficulties than was anticipated. Board members were informed today that it might be six months before federal officials get around to acting on the county's application for participation in the food stamp program.

The information came from Douglas Klimek of the Green Bay regional office of the State Department of Health and Social Services. The county's application goes to the state which sends it to the federal government. The food stamp plan is operated under the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

There is a waiting list, Klimek cautioned supervisors, and because Outagamie County just acted last month it could be at the bottom of the list.

Kaskey said, however, he could see no reason why it should take six months. He talked in terms of two months for federal approval.

Klimek said his agency would provide assistance in training county employes charged with working on the food stamp system.

Funds Okayed For Courtroom Sound System

Questions Merits of Building Committee, Landfill Site Search

Installation of a sound system in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 received financial approval by the county board's policy and finance committee Tuesday but it prompted the questioning of the future life of the special building committee.

The policy and finance unit authorized taking not more than $1,500 from the account for special provisions for structural improvements, to provide the sound system which was requested because of the noise from nearby jail construction.

The account contains about $160,000, the committee was told and was established in 1965. Proceeds from the sale of any county-owned property goes into the fund.

While approving the spending for the sound system, the policy committee questioned whether the special building committee should be disbanded and the job of "watch-dogging" the new building be given to themselves.

Supv. G. Allen Bubolz, Appleton, board vice chairman, said the policy and finance committee should go on record to have "all of the cash flow information come through here."

County Executive Alvin Woehler said he believed the intention had been for the special building committee to follow through to the jail's completion. "You provided the money and they bought the building," he said.

The committee then agreed they would be satisfied if copies of financial reports to the special building committee would also come to them.

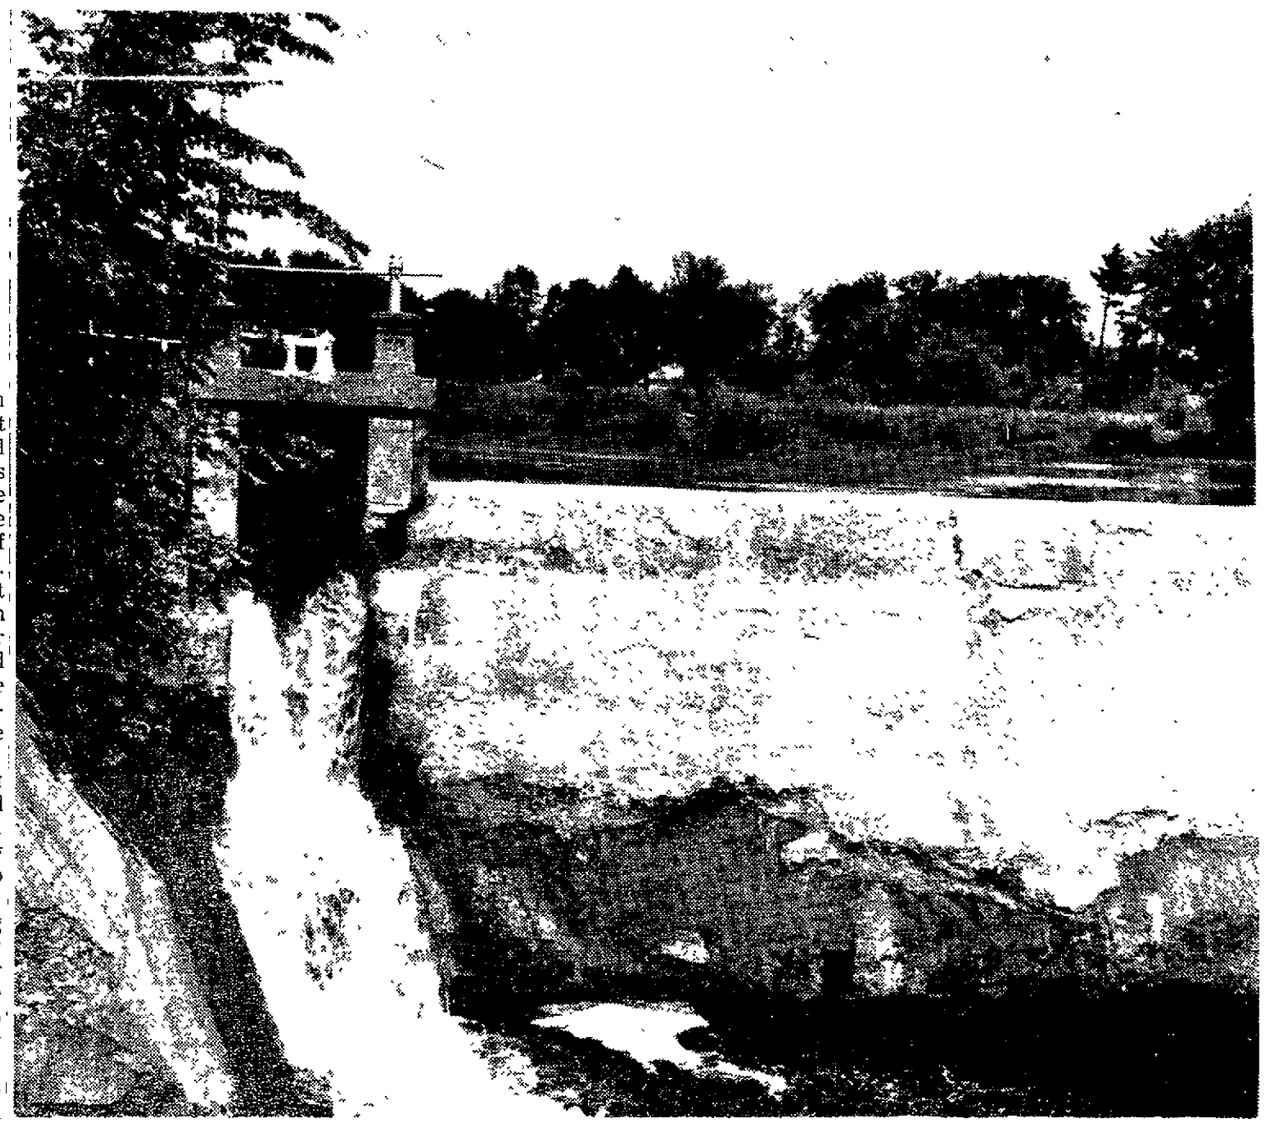

Debate Policy

A second funding question also resulted in the committee spending most of its time debating the merits of the policy rather than where the money was coming from.

The county board, at its July meeting, instructed the finance committee provide the zoning committee with $2,500 for soil engineering surveys on two possible solid waste disposal sites.

For nearly an hour the committee debate whether or not the survey should be performed and whether the cost was too much. Then, without discussion, it agreed to take the money from the reserve for contingency fund.

"I don't think Northeastern has been as close to this selection as we think," Bubolz said, referring to the sites proposed by the zoning committee.

The dam could be repaired and the pond rehabilitated this fall during the drawdown of the Waupaca River for the chemical removal of carp if city officials chose to make the necessary repairs and seek permission from the Department of Natural Resources. Stockbridge Buys Furniture For New Municipal Building

STOCKBRIDGE — Furniture for the new combination village and town hall and fire station was selected by officials of the two municipalities during the village board meeting this week.

Officials chose 60 folding chairs at $3.60 each; two 8 by 3 foot walnut finish conference tables; 14 brush chrome conference chairs upholstered in naughahyde at $21.90 each; five four-drawer filing cabinets at $57 each and two vertical chair racks at $32 each from Coleman School Supplies, Green Bay.

Heus Meter Gas, New Holstein received the contract for gas for the new building, scheduled to be finished next month, on a low bid of 15.9 cents per gallon.

During the 4½ hour session it was reported that during a special meeting July 27 called to discuss installation of curb and gutter on Court, Enterprise, Union, New and Church streets, the majority of the property owners favored the installation.

Jacob Heimbach representing Enterprises Inc., said the organization had agreed to put in curb and gutter along vacant lots on Court Street if the estimated $3,400 the Enterprises group spent for extending sewer mains and laterals would be reimbursed. He claimed the payment should have been done by the sewage commission, but at the time it had no funds.

Heimach stated that Enterprises had been "good guys" to do this and it was agreed that "some nice property had been built there" bringing in good taxes to the village. However new homes had not been built there lately.

Heimbach stated that he knew that the sewage commission was now "sitting pretty good." Willford Elliott, legal counsel for the village and commission, said he could not give an accurate account of the commission's standing from memory, but that "it was no secret." The figures should be available to the board and for publication from time to time he said.

James Ecker, president of the commission said the commission must pay off the debt incurred in 1964 and noted that because business customers were being replaced with homeowner customers income was dropping.

Will Be Discussed

Elliott said the matter of reimbursement for the extensions would be checked to find out what could be done under the circumstances.

Henry Mueller discussed the position of janitor for the new building. Village officials decided that a committee composed of two members from the village and town and the fire chief set up a duty schedule.

Four organizations, the American Legion and Auxiliary, fire department, and park board will have regularly scheduled meetings in the new building. Other organizations wishing to use the building will pay a $5 fee in summer and $8 in winter to defray expenses.

Janitors salary also would depend on whether the State Department of Public Instruction approves the building for use by the mentally retarded.

Youths Confess

President George Hostettler reported that several youths had admitted tearing shingles, put on last year, from the bath house at village park. Their parents would be notified and be billed for the replacement costs.

Other business included the approval of resolutions to borrow $10,000 which will be repaid in five years at $2,000 a year for the new building and to levy the tax; information from CESA 10 advising of school detachment to Hilbert which Stockbridge is appealing; a letter from Calumet County Board Chairman Gilbert Hipke, advising the board of a stand taken in favor of the I-57 system which is being opposed by several groups; and issuing a bartender's license to Marliyn Levknecht.

Iola Board Explains Road Work Plans

IOLA — A group of citizens who became alarmed by surveyors staking out changes for work on State 161-69, met with the village board Tuesday night.

The work, which has been the subject of consideration and of opposition for eight to 10 years, includes resurfacing, installation of new sidewalks, curbs and gutters, and the removal of approximately 65 trees.

The main source of opposition from residents has been that the maple trees will be removed. They also cited the great expense of the project. Many of the residents affected are retired people on a fixed income.

Costs Divided

Don Hafferman, village president, told the group that 85 per cent of all costs for the work will be paid by the state and 15 by the village, but only if the trees were removed to make way for the sidewalk.

He said that other work planned for the road is the installation of underground electrical wiring, and all repairs needed on sewer laterals will be done free of charge to the village.

Unless the majority of residents refuse the project through a referendum, the work could get underway in the summer of 1972.

But another problem that could hold up the work is if residents refuse to sign easements to cross the private property involved.

A meeting is scheduled for 6:30 p.m., Wednesday between property owners and state engineers. Engineers will explain the plans for each parcel of property to the owners.

At the board meeting which preceeded the informal discussion, Willie Erickson, public property and street chairman, reported that he had found several elm trees with possible Dutch elm disease. He said the owners had been notified and the trees will be removed by village employes.

The board also decided to see if the building at the Village Park could be converted to a warming house for ice skaters. The building would need repair.

Rotarians Asked To Start Project

MARION — The Rotary Club here this week was asked by the organization's district governor to start and complete a new community service project this year and to reduce the average age of each Rotarian in the club by getting new young members.

Ralph Noble, Houghton, Mich., suggested that members be invited to join tht local organization from small communities that are without a Rotary Club.

Noble poined out that the 700,000 Rotarians throughout the world could exert a powerful force for goodwill in the world if they would extend their own goodwill to others everyday.

In his annual visit Tuesday night, he commended the local club for its strong and active program and for its work on many worthwhile projects.

Gas Runs Out, Plane Forced Down in Field

SHIOCTON — John B. Catlin of Neenah made a forced landing in a farmer's field south of here Wednesday afternoon, after his single engine airplane ran out of gasoline.

Catlin rented the plane from Maxair Inc., at the Outagamie County Airport. He was returning to the port from Shawano when it ran out of fuel and he was forced down near the intersection of State 76 and County Trunk A.

The 63-year-old retired executive of Kimberly-Clark Corp., was not injured. Max Sagunsky, owner of the firm, said there were no damages to the aircraft.

Sagunsky said Catlin apparently forgot to check his fuel gauge before taking off. He brought fuel out to the plane from the airport and piloted it back, while Catlin returned Sagunsky's car.

Seniors' Club to Meet

AMHERST — The Tomorrow Senior Citizens Club will meet at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the American Legion clubrooms.

State Studies Jail Use Rule

MADISON — The head of the State Department of Health and Social Services said Tuesday his agency has under consideration a request from Outagamie County Executive Alvin E. Woehler that 1½-year-old restrictions on the county jail be lifted.

Woehler wrote State Welfare Secretary Wilbur J. Schmidt late last month asking that jail use limitations, imposed by the state in February, 1970, be ended since actual construction on a new facility had begun.

"Lifting Restriction"

Woehler also sent Schmidt a picture of himself and other county officials breaking ground for the new jail on July 26.

Woehler, in his letter of July 29, stated, "During a recent personal visit with you, it was our understanding that when the general contractor commenced work you would immediately consider lifting of the restriction. We ask that you do this, in as much as the county has established good faith in complying with the various stipulations set forth in your order."

Schmidt's agency, after declaring that portions of the county jail did not meet state standards, ordered resrictions on its use for some types of prisoners. Since then, the sheriff's department has had to transport juveniles, women and some other prisoners to jails in Brown and Waupaca counties.

Schmidt said he could not predict when action would be taken on Woehler's request, but he did not expect it would take long to research the law as it applies to the restricions in Outagamie's case.

The agency's Division of Corrections, which oversees jail operations around the state, has been asked to examine procedures as they would pertain to the Outagamie jail situation, Schmidt explained.

The new jail is scheduled for completion in a little more than a year.

Committee Still Split on Sagunsky

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent Sports Writer

Despite efforts by its chairman, the Outagamie County airport committee remained split Tuesday on whether it would back County Executive Alvin Woehler's appointment of Max Sagunsky as interim airport manager next Tuesday.

Sagunsky's appointment was submitted by Woehler last month but was tabled by the board for debate on another question and a vote to bring it back for action failed.

Woehler told the airport committee he was sticking with his appointment of Sagunsky, but he said he would comply with the recommendations contained in the administrative review of airport administrative needs.

The airport is without a manager as Charles Olson's resignation was effective last Saturday.

Set Aside Objections

Committee Chairman Richard Jahnke, Appleton, urged committee members to set aside their objections for the present. "This is temporary and we've got to get on with the running of the airport," he told fellow committee members. "Put personalities aside for the betterment of the airport."

Supv. William Miller, Appleton, agreed with Jahnke but Supv. John Dietz, Appleton, objected. He said he still would oppose Sagunsky's appointment.

Supv. Robert Weyenberg, Kimberly, said he also objected but had not made up his mind whether he would continue opposition on the board floor. The fifth member of the committee, Supv. Paul Kostka, Little Chute, long has been a supporter of Sagunsky.

Results by Jan. 1

Woehler also told the committee he would present his recommendation to the board in September for the hiring of a firm to conduct an administrative review of all county departments and would ask that the airport be done first.

The results, he said, should be available by Jan. 1 which is also the date his interim appointment of Sagunsky would expire.

The administrative review is supposed to indicate whether there is need for a full-time airport manager and what the administrative functions are for a manager.

Until appointment of an interim manager is approved by the county board, Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) employes in the air traffic control tower have agreed to operate the runway lights and maintenance personnel at the airport will work through Woehler's office.

In a companion move, the committee ,agreed it was not necessary to have the administrative review and the updating of the airport master plan done at the same time.

The state Division of Aeronautics (DOA) notified the committee it probably would be several months before the FAA had processed the county's application for federal funds to update the study. Estimated cost is about $20,000 with two-thirds federal participation, one-sixth state and one-sixth county.

The DOA said it had invited the firm of Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendorf, a Milwaukee consulting firm, to submit a proposal to update the plan. The company has done all of the master plan work for the Winnebago County Airport.

Outagamie County's original airport master plan was done by Ralph Burke and Associates nearly 10 years ago.

Meeting Set

A meeting also will be sought with Arctic Cat Distributors, Inc., which wants to start building a hangar on the airport this year.

The DOA estimated total cost of extending the corporate taxiway, the additional taxiway lights and the apron for the Arctic Cat hangar would total about $88,000. Participating funds would not be available until next year.

Jahnke said he did not think it was justified to spend that amount without federal and state aid and they should seek an alternate plan for Arctic Cat for this winter.

The firm now rents a T hangar from the county but wants its own hangar building which also would contain office space.

Equipment Delays Prevent Tapping Waupaca Well 5

WAUPACA — Delays in the installation of chemical treatment equipment and in the shipment of the booster pump was cited by city officials today as the reason that well No. 5 is not ready for cutting into the city's water system this week.

The week of Aug. 2 had been the last announced target by city crews and the Department of Public Works for tapping the water from well No. 5 into the city transmission lines.

Richard Peterson, head of the Water Department, reports that the transmission line is now being sterilized and the next step is to clear out the chlorine from the line, flush the chlorine from the well and send samples from the line and well in for tests. "The water must be free from any bacteria and we should be able to send those samples in next Tuesday.

Putter Work

"There is still a lot of 'putter work'," Peterson added. "There are minor electrical and plumbing hookups to be made at the well, some painting, concrete and roofing work to be completed at the pump house. We have been told that the booster pump has been shipped and a good deal will depend upon its delivery. Hopefully, we will be able to tie in the well before Sept. 1."

Peterson declined to give a specific date. Ald. Julius Johnson, head of the Board of Public Works, had some good news for the Assembly of God Church. It is planned to furnish water to the new church before well No. 5 goes into operation. This will be done after the transmission line is cleared of the chlorine now sterilizing it.

Water from the city's transmission line will then be run through the new transmission line to the church.

The final okay to start up well No. 5, Peterson said, will come from the state.

Not in Bad Shape

Weyauwega Pond Studied

WAUPACA — The drawdown of the Weyauwega millpond has given residents and evnironmental specialists an opportunity to examine the bed and the experts have decided the body of water is not in bad shape.

Stephen Born, director of the Inland Lakes Renewal Project, Upper Great Lakes Planning Commission, took a look at the millpond last week at the request of James Van Matre, Waupaca County resource agent, and made some observations and recommendations.

He reported to Van Matre that the millpond is not in bad shape, a delta has formed where the Waupaca River enters the pond and the exposed stumps do not appear to be a hazard to navigation.

It was recommended that some riprapping work, while the water is down, could be done to protect banks in some areas

No Funds

The exposed trees could be cut and stumps left for fish habitat. However, this would call for an extended drawdown of pond during winter months. There are no federal or state funds for this work, according to Van Matre

It also would require permission from the Wisconsin Power and Light Co., which uses the dam at Weyauwega for auxiliary power, and the Department of Natural Resources (DNR). The public utility cooperated 100 per cent with the DNR in giving its permission to open the dam for six weeks to two months while it carries on its project for the chemical treatment of 36 miles of steram from Weyauwega to Nelsonville on the Waupaca-Tomorrow River to remove carp.

Clear Trees

If a group of residents wants to clear the trees from the bottom of the pond, it could be done with a chain saw gang during the winter months, Van Matre suggested. The logs could be removed by a cherry picker when the pond is refilled and the sawed logs would accumulate above the dam this spring, he added. A letter seeking such approval could be addressed to the Wisconsin Power and Light Co. and the Departement of Natural Resources.

Van Matre made it clear that Stephen Born, who is conducting the Mirror-Shadow lakes renewal project in the City of Waupaca, has nothing to do with the Department of Natural Resources chemical treatment program which is under way this month and will continue through mid-September.

Rumors have been circulating this past week in the Weyauwega area that there is $850,000 in federal and state money available for dredging the Waupaca River. Van Matre said this has no basis in fact.

"There is absolutely no money available for this work or rehabilitation of the millponds along the Tomorrow-Waupaca River," he said. "Any work would have to be done by local volunteer groups."

Special Senate Session

Lucey Amends Merger Bill To Meet Weaver's Protest

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — An amendment to the University of Wisconsin merger bill, to meet objections voiced by UW President John C. Weaver, was announced today by Gov. Patrick J. Lucey.

At a joint news conference with Weaver, Lucey called upon the Wisconsin Senate to consider the merger bill as a special order of business later today.

Narows Roles

Weaver said Lucey's proposed amendment was "directly responsive to the primary concerns I experssed two days ago."

Weaver blasted the proposed merger of UW with the Wisconsin State University systems as an invitation to chaos, saving special criticism for the weak central administration and possible costly duplication of programs possible under the proposal.

Lucey's proposed amendment strengthens the administration of the merged system, narrows the roles of present state university campuses and makes the yet to be created campus councils more responsive to the school administration.

Weaver emphasized that he still was officially opposed to merger.

"I'm very confident a new board of regents would vote to retain Weaver" as president of the merged system, Lucey said.

Weaveh said Tuesday he expected his comments against merger would disqualify him as a possible president of the merged system.

Senate Action

Lucey called the amendments, hammered out in conference with Weaver and University of Wisconsin and state university staffs "the most workable and effective way to consolidate the two systems."

The Senate must muster a two-thirds majority to take up the merger bill and Lucey's proposed amendments out of order.

If it does, Lucey said, the merger bill could well be on his desk before the conference committee working on a state budget finishes the job.

Father, Son To be Tried

Zehrens Face 7 Charges for Part In Burglaries

Waupaca County Judge Wendell McHenry has bound over a Combined Locks father and son for trial on seven felony charges.

Irvin Zehren, 40, and his son, Larry, 21, both of 500 Hartjes St., were bound over to Circuit Court on charges that they aided and abetted seven burglaries in the Fox Valley between Nov. 1, and Dec. 5, 1970.

McHenry's decision came almost a week after he heard evidence on the charges in Outagamie County's Circuit Court.

Charges include aiding and abetting the Nov. 22 burglary of James Madison Junior High School. The younger Zehren is named for aiding and abetting break-ins at two Appleton Quaker Dairy stores. Irvin Zehren is charged with aiding and abetting break-ins at the Kimberly High School and two Appleton taverns.

The older Zehren was found guilty on July 20 of eight counts of conspiracy to committ burglary and concealing stolen items. He is awaiting sentencing from that trial.

Bond Set for Men Charged in Stabbing Death

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis. (AP) — Bond was set at $50,000 Wednesday for two Manitowoc County men charged with the first-degree murder of a carnival worker.

County Judge Marshall Norsong scheduled a preliminary hearing Friday for Dennis Faber, 21, of rural Valders and Robert Muench, 21, of Cato.

The young men have been charged with fatally stabbing Douglas Bertilson, 25, of Klemme, Iowa, early Tuesday during a fight. All three were employed here by Century 21 Carnival.

MANAWA — The fifth annual registered Quarter Horse show, sponsored by the Rodeo City Riders Saddle Club will be Sunday at the rodeo grounds.

The morning program will feature 17 halter classes, plus three for youths agt 18 and under, beginning at 8:30. The afternoon events are scheduled to begin at 1 and will include nine regular and four youth performance classes.

The awards are trophies and ribbons for each halter class, plus three grand champion trophies, and trophies, ribbons and prize money in the performance classes. The youth events will have trophies and ribbons as the awards in each class, and in addition, the AQHA All Around trophy will be presented to the high point youth. The top award of the show, the WQHA High Point Trophy, will go to the horse earning the most points in the regular halter and performance classes.

Since there is a Quarter Horse show at Wisconsin Rapids on Saturday, stabling has been arranged at the County Fairgrounds in Weyauwega for exhibitors attending both shows.

A lunch and refreshment stand will be serving in the grounds all day, and the public is invited to attend the show.

Ordinance to Control Docks, Go-Go Girls

NEW LONDON — The judiciary-legislative committee is considering new ordinances, and amending some of the present statutes.

Mayor S. W. Krostue asked the committee to draw up an ordinance that would control floating docks on the Wolf River reportedly will start enforcing in the city. Waupaca County reportedly will start enforcing its dock ordinance, and the city should have some regulation over the docks that are on the river under the city's jurisdiction, Krostue said.

Permits Necessary

That ordinance would require dock owners to get a permit from the building inspector, and have an assigned number posted on the building or dock.

Krostue recommended that the Wolf River Preservation Association's (WRPA) patrol boat have jurisdiction over the area in the city. The patrolman would have authority to destroy any dilapidated or numberless docks.

The WRPA's main goal is to promote beauty and safety on the Wolf. It is expected that county and city ordinances of this type would help the association.

Topless Dancers

The committee is also working on an ordinance that would control topless go-go dancing in the city.

Chairman Don Allen said that the Village of Delavan passed this kind of ordinance, and the committee is contacting Delavan and the League of Municipalities for model ordinances.

Police Chief Jack Algiers said that he is "glad to hear" the council is considering the ordinance. Even though "so far we haven't had any" topless dancers in the city.

Outside Incinerators

Allen also said the committee is continuing to work on an ordinance that would control outside incinerator burning.

They are also continuing studies that will result in a mobile home and travel-trailer ordinance.

The committee decided to leave the board of review ordinance as it is.

A Check for $550, proceeds from the Weyauwega Fire Department's annual chicken barbecue, was recently presented to Dr. L. P. Maasch, chairman of the park swimming lake project at Weyauwega, by William Schumacher, chairman of the barbecue committee. Committee members watched the presentation. about 80 tons of light-weight specialty papers daily. Its first report on intentions to limit wastes is due on Nov. 1.

The Quality Packing Co. in New London directs wastes from its slaughtering operation to a three-compartment septic tank. According to the DNR, the septic tank overflows into a nearby marsh and strong wastes carry a considerable distance downstream from the plant in a tributary to the Wolf River.

By June 1, 1972, Quality Packing must begin building adequate treatment facilities for all its industrial wastes. The facilities are to be in operation by Jan. 1, 1973.

Besides the industries, 45 municipalities and sanitary districts in the 120-mile long Wolf River basin were ordered to clean up water pollution. The orders derived from a 1969-70 survey by the DNR and from progress reports gathered at a July 1 public hearing in Shawano.

Jury Trial in Check Forging Case Begins

Testimony began Tuesday before a jury in Circuit Court in the case of a 27-year-old Phoenix, Ariz., man charged with stealing, passing and forging checks worth $17,000.

Rodney Wellens faces the charges brought against him after Charles Pruitt, 43, route 1, Waupun, testified at a preliminary hearing that he had made a deal with Wellens to forge and cash the checks.

Pruitt had previously been convicted of five counts of forgery with 16 more consolidated from Winnebago County. He is serving a 20-year sentence at the prison in Waupun.

Pruitt claimed at the preliminary hearing that he had seen a total of 300 checks. He stated that he and Wellens had cashed $17,000 worth and then burned the rest.

Shoppers Flock To Waupaca Sale

WAUPACA — Footsore and happy merchants hauled in their racks and tables along Main Street Wednesday, calling the annual Sidewalk Sales Day "a success."

Local residents, vacationers and shoppers from miles away showed up early in the morning to search for bargains. One local shopkeeper started moving his merchandise into the roped off area in front of his store at 6 a.m. and within 45 minutes the first shopper had appeared.

That "early bird" moved along the stalls heaped high with merchandise along three blocks of Main Street and one block of Union Street, greeting friends and shopping leisurely.

"We lucked out on the weather," commented one merchant, eyeing the sunny sky and relishing the cool temperature.

Missouri Idea

A shopper could find bargains in most everything: books, shoes, games, garden supplies, shirts, socks, vitamins, toiletries, dresses sportswear men's suits, shirts, gifts, cards, brooms, jewelry, cooking utensils — you name it.

There were a few "what-you-maycall its" and a few items which prompted shoppers to say, "What is this for?" Shoppers seemed delighted with the display, pleased with the merchandise and responsive to the sale prices.

Waupaca merchants were one of the first groups (a number of old timers claim that it was the first) to organize sidewalk sales One claimed, "We borrowed the idea from Missouri a number of years ago, I can't remember how many but it was a long time. The shoppers liked it and so did we. Many other cities borrowed the idea and now you hear about sidewalk sales in many places."

"Sure it's a lot of work, getting the merchandise out for display, marking sales prices and handling the crowd — but it's worth it," said another. "It shows we appreciate their business coming into the store and if they see items they want or they are reminded that they need them, we both benefit."

"It's a good chance to visit and see old friends," one elderly woman said with a broad smile as she held a shiny new pump up to her foot for size. "I wait for this every year," said another oldster. "I always save money."

Kids loved it. They whizzed up on their bikes to pick up items which would "stretch their allowances."

The New Attitude Toward Peking

There was nothing unusual or unexpected about Secretary of State William Rogers' announcement that the United States officially would back the seating of the Peking regime in the United Nations. The move was long overdue although its tardiness was not all the fault of the Nixon Administration. But there remain some unanswered questions.

In his remarks, Mr. Rogers said of the Peking leadership, "after all they represent about one-fourth of the people on the surface of the earth," but this has not changed from the time when the followers of Mao Tse-tung decisively defeated the Nationalists under Chiang Kai-shek and forced them to seek refuge on Taiwan. What has changed is the attitude in the United States, the realization, partly born of the Korean and Vietnamese conflicts, that only massive American intervention could restore the Nationalists and there might not even be a world left if we did. There also is the trend away from terror of communism in the United States.

Officially the United States will continue to support the membership of Taiwan in the United Nations but exactly in what category, particularly because of the sensitive Security Council seat, has not been spelled out. Since last fall the Nixon Administration has been referring to the Nationalist government on Taiwan as "Taiwan" rather than the "Republic of China." But it also has requested that, while a simple majority in the United Nations could admit Peking to membership, the two-thirds vote should be required to oust another power, specifically Taiwan.

Currently both the Nationalist Chinese and the Communist Chinese claim to represent all of China including what both have continued to consider the "province" of Taiwan. It seems likely that in the future, after Chiang Kai-shek and Mao Tse-tung have passed on, that Taiwan may become independent. At least there is sure to be a growing Taiwanese independence movement as all-out backing of the United States for the Nationalist Chinese disappears. While younger Nationalist Chinese may be no less anti-Communist and no less dedicated to the cause of a non-Communist government in Peking, they may be more realistic than the aged Chiang Kai-shek. In a small way perhaps, the American change is a tacit acknowledgement that the Nationalists are little more committed to democracy than are the Communists although their repression has not been as great in recent years and their economic advances far better.

There is a difference in opinion about qualifications for membership in the United Nations. If the Charter's requirement of being a "peace loving nation" is adhered to, there might be many outcasts and the United States itself could come under question after some of our activities in Vietnam. But more and more, in the light of the U.N.'s obvious impotence actually to enforce peace or justice or liberty, membership has been construed as being more universal. With such an interpretation Peking long ago should have been recognized as the government body on mainland China and admitted to the U.N.

There must be different attitudes for different times in history. But one must speculate about what changes might have taken place in Asia, possibly how many lives might have been saved and how much misery and horror prevented had American leaders in the early 1950's had the attitude toward China that they have today.

Foreign Aid Programs Need Correction

While the House of Representatives defers appropriating more money to supply Pakistan with arms, a look at the costs to the United Nations for the plight of the East Pakistanis might well be in order.

The East Pakistanis, never an affluent group, were hit by a major typhoon, tidal wave and flood last spring. Little assistance came from the government with its headquarters in West Pakistan which could have been one reason for the revolt against the central government by the Bengalis in East Pakistan. Originally the latter merely wanted autonomy but there was no question about demanding the rights to foreign policies or defense.

But whether there really was an undercover move toward real secession, the government of General Yahya decided to put down any dissent. Repression was brutal. Reportedly thousands of East Pakistanis, men, women and children, were killed and hundreds of villages destroyed. Millions of refugees have fled to India. Others live as best they can in whatever shelter they can find. Guerrilla warfare continues as the Bengalis now demand independence and have named the area Bangla Desh. The government of West Pakistan concedes that such warfare may go on for years.

A United Nations team reviewing the situation has come up with a minimal amount of $28 million needed immediately in East Pakistan. The report cites the extensive exodus from urban to rural areas, the "uncalculated losses" of crops. Transportation by railway and road has been cut 75 per cent so it is extremely difficult to move any available supplies. In addition to the basic food needs, tugboats, trucks, blankets, corrugated iron, plastic sheeting and medical supplies are in desperately short supply. Such United Nations agencies as the World Food Programme, the Food and Agriculture Organization, the World Health Organization and the United Nations Children's Fund have made arrangements for dried milk, vegetable oil, wheat, sanitation programs, medicines and vaccines but this has been primarily due to requests from the earlier natural disaster. More extensive review of the problems are being made.

At the outbreak of the civil war, the United States officially cut off its military assistance to Pakistan. But supplies have been getting there and obviously with at least the tacit agreement of our government. Over the years we have supplied millions of dollars worth of military grants, loans and equipment to Pakistan on the grounds that we thus kept them in a strong military position to repel outside invasion or dominance especially from Communist countries. But the weapons have been used to kill civilians and to maintain in power a regime which, at the least, has shown a lack of sensitivity of the needs of East Pakistan and at worst a callousness toward tragedy and even what some critics list as genocide. Whatever the dangers of outside attack or the internal problems of dictatorial regimes, how many innocents have American weapons of war destroyed?

Our entire military assistance programs to other countries needs serious review. We are maintaining a military junta in power in Greece, possibly at the expense not only of Greek liberals but of our own long-range influence in that area as the Communists gain allegiance among the dissidents. We may be doing the same in Pakistan. Certainly we are not militarily going to help Pakistan put down the Bengal rebels. What will be the attitude towards the United States of the Bengalis as years of guerrilla warfare continue and the leaders become more and more under the influence of Maoists? From both humanitarian and practical views, our aid programs need correction.

CCHE Good Idea But Never Attained Goals Set for It

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The recent meeting of the Coordinating Council for Higher Education was probably its last. The quality of grim humor shown by members recalled to some onlookers the story of

Wyngaard

Abraham Lincoln about the boy who had stubbed his foot. He was too old to cry but the pain was too great to laugh.

As they speculated about how to transmit their last report, the members were told by colleague William Kraus of Stevens Point to address it "'To Whom It May Concern' and send it out into the world."

Harold Konnack of Racine, the chairman who gaveled to adjournment the last meeting that will probably be held, suggested a label for another documentary product of the agency:

"To you, from dying hands, we toss the corpse."

All of which was doubtless good sport for these officials who may wonder in later years what combination of circumstances derailed this hopeful experiment in better management and development of a service for which the people of Wisconsin pay so dearly — the far-flung empire of tax-supported higher education.

Lucey Wants Merger

Gov. Lucey's major first legislative term objective is the merger of higher education under a single board of regents, which will mean the extinction of CCHE.

That objective is not yet assured. Perhaps the most optimistic appraisal is that it has a 50-50 chance. Yet even if it fails, the Coordinating Council is doomed, as its own officers and members have concluded.

The reasons are many. They include: the clumsy, repelling, uncommunicative statutory name, which one must suspect must have come out of a bureaucrat's nightmare. Names are important for public institutions, if only to gain identity and recognition, as on news copy desks, in the vocabulary of politicians, in the often once-over-lightly reactions of the voter. Friendly writers used their own synonyms arbitrarily and experimentally. "Super-board" was one example. But the law remained. It was "Coordinating Council," which means precisely nothing to most persons.

Regent Term Explicit

The word "regent" to describe a member of the subordinate governing boards is explicit. It has a Latin dignity. It conveys authority, rank, prestige.

The reasons must include also the strategic error of housing the CCHE on or near the University of Wisconsin campus during most of its existence rather than giving it the recog nition and identification of a home in the Capitol as the major, independent, responsible and powerful agency it purported to be. The inclusion of regents of the subject systems as members of the council — for some years as a majority of members — if not calculated to frustrate and compromise, nevertheless had precisely that result.

Gov. Lucey, indeed, has put as much emphasis upon his denunciation of horse trading on the council as on his indictment of the costs of separate management of sister university systems serving the same constituency and drawing sustenance from the same taxpayers.

Planned Failure Succeeded

But the critical reason for failure is that the council was never intended by its creators a decade and a half ago to succeed. It was a plan to offer the champions of unified educational management of that day the name without the game. That the misbegotten political creature survived as long as it did is a small miracle.

In its independent researches, in its generation of increasing doubts about the wisdom of maintaining separate and rival systems and about the capacity of the state to sustain their parallel growth indefinitely, the council has served usefully.

When one day a logical organization of the state's single most important public service enterprise is attained, these retiring officers will be able to point with pride to their trail blazing.

Nader's Raiders Don't Upset Banker Walter B. Wriston

BY WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

The cult that continues to build around Mr. Ralph Nader is worth attention — not quite as much attention as is invited to the subject by those who treat Mr. Nader chiliastically. Still, he makes news, deserves to make news, and appeals to many people who take pleasure in the idea of an individual challenging the establishment, whether it is quartered in Washington, in Detroit or New York.

It is here that Mr. Nader has suffered a rather considerable setback, or so one would judge from a recent report in the Chicago Tribune, which surveys recent efforts by Mr. Nader to probe the workings of the First National City Bank of New York. If one had to summarize Mr. Nader's difficulties, they are: that the New York bank is headed by Mr. Walter B. Wriston. Mr. Wriston is Mr. Ralph Nader's nemesis. In his own, kindly way. (Wriston's father was president of Lawrence College in the late 1920's and early 1930's.)

Wriston is a banker — a very big banker. The First National City Bank of New York is the country's second largest. Wriston is the principal executive officer of the bank.

One day, Mr. Wriston's bank was descended upon — this was a year ago — by 16 of Nader's Raiders, antennae aquiver, pencils sharp. While they were observing him, it turns out, he was observing them.

On visiting the bank, they said to Wriston: "We'll tell you who we want to see."

Never Heard of Man

"This is a big store," Wriston told them, and he recalls, "They named someone none of us had ever heard of and we asked, 'who is he?' "

"He controls the loan policy," said the Raider. "He determines who gets the loans."

By the time Mr. Wriston had explained that 2,000 lending officers — not one single individual — approve and deny loans, the Raiders were insisting that Wriston's words suggested that "there was some Svengali around here."

But, finally, the gentleman the Raiders had named was found: and it turned out that he was a loan clerk, and all that he would say was, "I don't determine nothing."

The Raiders, it turns out, poked around for a whole year. Nader himself visited the bank for exactly one hour. On June 19, the sharply critical Nader Report on First National City Bank was published — "a sort of high school essay," Wriston says, calmly one supposes, — "full of factual errors."

The report's suspicions, for instance, were, one judges, based on a tendentious arrangement of the figures. For example, Nader's highly publicized charge that the bank makes slum neighborhoods deteriorate by taking more money out in deposits than it puts in in loans was, says Mr. Wriston, based on the balance sheet of a single branch.

Prejudiced, Careless

Wriston, passing judgment on the young Raiders, found them "bright," which is as one would suppose; but found them also prejudiced against business, careless with the facts, and altogether ignorant about banking. Even to the point of ignorance of basic economics. As suggested by Wriston's comments on the project director, David Leinsdorf, "Leinsdorf was giving me this jazz about allocating X per cent to housing. That's the oldest argument in the world. The king sits on the throne and says all left-handed serfs to the field, and all red-handed serfs to the laundry. Any arbitrary allocation, not done by the free market, is going to be destroyed the day it's done."

The Wriston Report on Ralph Nader notes that in the old days, Nader did all his research himself, and checked and double-checked it. "But he began to franchise himself like a fried chicken stand." Now he sends out Raiders. "He puts out what he accuses others of, a shoddy product at inflated prices.... Nader is a direct descendant of the great Populists," summarizes Mr. Wriston. "There are family trees in American political life and the Populist tree flourishes now and then. He believes in his soul, I'm sure, that an alert federal bureaucracy is smarter than the people."

One suspects that Ralph Nader's perfectionism suggests to him that the government, run by Naderites, should have full authority, total power. Perhaps, surveying now his own difficulty in regulating the quality control of his own immediate underlings, he will sympathize a little with the problems of the administrative agencies, General Motors and, at least, the First National City Bank.

Petitioners Hope Board Will Heed Park Protest

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

What ever happened to representative government?

Over 500 citizens in Grand Chute and Appleton felt strongly enough to sign petitions and to make their voices heard at committee meetings against a trailer park in the community, and yet the zoning committee chose to represent not their own constituents but the "voice of the dollar" from so far away as Minnesota and Inland Steel. Who does this committee represent? Certainly not its constituents.!

Over 100 of us attended various meetings in the hope that we could halt this idea which was conceived in March, ramroded through in May, and now is almost an accomplished fact in August. This is civic planning?!

Even the railroad and the other commercial firms in the area are opposed to it as not being constructive planning and not for the benefit of the community. But then who will listen to the lowly citizen when the powerful Inland Steel has spoken. This does make you wonder who this committee represents and why! All this in spite of the fact that no one in the area favors it, only the power people who stand to gain from this financially.

Now this ill-conceived plan goes before the Outagamie County Board. Will the members of the Outagamie County Board accept civic responsibility and listen to the citizens which it represents and vote No on the trailer park in the town of Grand Chute?

Women Voters Deny Broehm Uncooperative

Editor, The Post Crescent:

The Appleton League of Women Voters wishes to express that it has continually had an amicable relationship with the city clerk, Elden Broehm, and his staff. Our countless requests for materials and information have always been promptly filled by that office. A request for our organization to man a registration booth at Gimbels Department Store was never refused by the city clerk as no such request was ever made.

Mr. Broehm has invariably displayed an open willingness to discuss with League members topics of common concern and interest. We hope that this atmosphere of mutual respect and friendliness will continue to exist.

Bride-to-be Thinks She Has Venereal Disease

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I think I have venereal disease in the advanced stage. I have had all the symptoms for five years. Can I be cured after such a long time?

I read that this disease can result in sterility. Is this true? Do I stand a chance of having babies?

I am engaged to be married in a short time and my boyfriend is always mentioning children. I know he wants some, so I can't tell him about this. I'm so worried. I can't go to my parents and I don't have the money to go to a doctor.

Is there any place or clinic I can go to? I live in a small town. It has a health department. Could I be treated there free without anyone knowing? I need your help and advice right away. — Worried

I'll offer you what advice I can, but I have to comment that you sound exactly like too many young people who are dreadfully ignorant of V.D. but think they know a lot about it.

You tell me you have "had all the symptoms for five years" but then you speak of "this disease." Which of the venereal diseases do you mean? Gonorrhea? Syphilis? One of the rarer ones?

Gonorrhea in particular can, if left untreated, cause sterility, and if that occurs, you can still have the disease treated, but you can't undo the damage which has caused sterility.

It sounds inconceivable to me that anyone old enough to get married couldn't have accumulated enough in five years to afford treatment for V.D. But better to be treated late than not at all.

In any event, you certainly can't feel it is fair to consider marrying your young man if you have a chronic case of V.D.

You make no mention of what "all the symptoms" are, and I think there's a possibility you may not even have V.D. You may have some other vaginal disorder — which, however, still ought to be treated.

I have no idea whether your health department in the small town has a V.D. clinic. I suggest that you call and ask where the nearest one is.

If none is available, I still fail to see why you can't go to a doctor, which is the only way you are going to find out what you have and get treatment for it.

For the sake of your own health, for your future husband's health, for your future children if any, you've got to do something constructive for yourself instead of worrying for five years and then asking me to solve your problem "right away".

For your first step, either call the health department or go to a private physician. If you're afraid to tell your parents the whole truth, then say you ought to have a pre-marital checkup. Which, of course, is true.

Reforms Pledged By Moroccan King

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — King Hassan II of Morocco has promised sweeping political and economic reforms to loosen his feudal grip on this North African nation and cleanse it of the corruption that sparked the bloody attempted coup last month.

The 42-year-old monarch, in a somber television address Wednesday night, said he was dismissing Premier Ahmed Laraki and his government and replacing them with a new cabinet directly responsible to Parliament instead of to the king alone.

The king implicitly invited the country's two largest political parties, the nationalist Istiqlal-Independence party and the leftist National Union of Popular Forces, to end their opposition and join him in reforming the nation. There was no immediate response from leaders of the two parties, who strongly opposed the king's imposition of a new constitution last year and refused to participate in parliamentary elections held under it. They claimed the document was designed to perpetuate Hassan's one-man rule, and as a result of their boycott the present Parliament is composed almost exclusively of royal nominees.

The king said the changes grew out of a "searching self-analysis" following the abortive coup on July 10, in which more than 300 persons were killed.

The monarch promised a merciless crackdown on corruption "at all levels" and said harsh punishment awaits "both the corrupters and the corrupted." Disgust at the widespread corruption in official circles was considered one of the chief motives of the generals who attempted to depose Hassan, but the king castigated them as "adventurers without plan or program" and never explicitly linked their rebellion with dishonesty in government.

Reorganize Economy

Hassan also promised a reorganization of the entire economy "on an egalitarian basis" and, in an apparent attack on the feudal aristocracy, commented: 'We have observed that the rich get richer while the poor make no progress." He said he would no longer tolerate the rich "acquiring privileges to the detriment of the poor."

The king said there would be no changes in Morocco's foreign policy, which has been strongly pro-Western while paying lip service to the Arab "liberation" of Palestine. The Istiqlal and the UNFP may try to impose a more neutralist course and more active support of the Arab cause against Israel. The two parties are particularly opposed to the military communications bases which the king has allowed the United States to maintain near Rabat with a staff of 1,700 Americans.

All U.S Troops in Vietnam Now in Defensive Positions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, announcing the remaining American troops in Vietnam have moved into defensive positions, has, in effect, declared U.S. responsibility for offensive ground-combat operations at an end.

"American forces in Vietnam today, as you can tell from reading the reports, are in defensive positions ... frankly just defending the area in which we have responsibility," Nixon told a news conference Wednesday.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird followed this up a few hours later, saying the President's remarks mean the first phase of the administration's Vietnamization program is "virtually completed."

Administration officials have said repeatedly turning over responsibility for ground-combat operations to the South Vietnamese—phase one of Vietnamization—would come sometime this summer.

Battle Deaths

American battle deaths, which averaged 60 a week in April, have fallen steadily, to 13 last week and 11 the week before. The level of fighting in Vietnam has dropped noticeably, and it has been several weeks since U.S. troops engaged the enemy in an offensive operation.

About 225,000 GIs and fewer than 30 combat maneuver battalions remain in the war zone, compared to 543,400 troops and 112 maneuver battalions at the peak of the American commitment in April 1969.

Nixon, whose withdrawal timetable calls for the troop level to drop to 184,000 by Dec. 1, will make another pullout announcement in mid-November.

In the news conference, the President avoided saying directly that the U.S. combat role is over. White House officials have acknowledged the definition of "combat role" is extremely complex and for this reason are reluctant to make any flat statement that could shade into ambiguous situations.

Protect Patrols

Shifting of the U.S. role in Vietnam does not mean an end to American battle deaths. Although GIs will be concerned more and more with protecting the security of their base areas, officials have emphasized they will not remain in static defense positions. They still will go out on base-protecting patrols, for example.

Two Army divisions making up the bulk of the major American ground-combat power left in Vietnam still are positioned in the region below Quang Tri province and could be used to help the South Vietnamese should an enemy offensive develop this summer and early fall. There still is significant airpower available in Vietnam and Thailand and aboard Navy carriers offshore to back up the South Vietnamese.

Defense officials have indicated that by next summer the U.S. presence in Vietnam will have dwindled to a military advisory and security force numbering about 50,000.

Actress Jill Ireland Has First Daughter

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Jill Ireland, wife of actor Charles Bronson, gave birth Wednesday at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital to a 7½-pound girl.

It's the first child for the couple, married Oct. 5, 1968, in nearby Santa Monica.

Miss Ireland has three sons by her previous marriage to actor David McCallum. Bronson has a son and a daughter by a former marriage.

Toothpaste Can Inflame Mouth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Brushing with some commercial toothpastes may brighten your sex appeal, but what if it hurts to smile?

Several popular brands may cause painful soreness and swelling of the gums, according to an unpublished Pentagon study released today by Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I.

The condition, known as gingival stomatitis, was found among users of Colgate, Crest, McLean, Plus White, Ultra-Brite, Vote and Gleem.

Colgate-Palmolive Co. issued a statement questioning the scientific validity of the study, and Sen. Pell himself conceded it may not be conclusive. "But I believe the American consumer deserves to be informed completely on the findings of tax-supported consumer research," Pell said.

Researchers for the Army Institute of Dental Research conclude that clinical and laboratory findings "indicate strongly that some commercially available dentifrices may cause painful gingival responses in the user."

The conclusion is based on two clinical surveys involving a total of 1,057 patients and laboratory tests with 30 hamsters.

The clinical surveys showed users of Crest and Colgate suffered gingival stomatitis less frequently than those brushing with McLean, Ultra-Brite, Gleem, Plus White and Vote.

The laboratory tests showed minimal harmful effects to the hamsters exposed to Crest and Plus White, but those treated with McLean, Ultra-Brite and Vote showed "rather severe chronic inflammatory reaction."

Pell said he will sponsor legislation authorizing the Food and Drug Administration to require cautionary labels on toothpastes found to have possible harmful effects, and to "restore the balance of truth in toothpaste advertising."

A Colgate-Palmolive spokesman, Dr. John Brown Jr., said one product, Colgate Dental Cream with MFP, had been studied by the firm in clinical testing among 1,825 subjects and "only six cases of oral irritation were recorded, an incredibly low rate of occurrence."

In the Army's clinical surveys, 27 of 171 Colgate users were said to have stomatitis, along with 46 of 144 Ultra-Brite users, 24 of 551 Crest users, 41 of 102 McLean users, 10 of 40 Plus White users, 8 of 33 Vote users, and 3 of 10 Gleem users.

In the hamster tests, those treated with McLean, Ultra-Brite and Vote lost sheen in their hair, behaved lethargically, suffered loss of appetite and developed diarrhea.

Indians Threaten To Reoccupy Dam

WINTER, Wis. (AP) — The occupation of the Winter Dam by Indians this week may be repeated if meetings to discuss their grievances are not fruitful, the local American Indian Movement (AIM) leader said Wednesday.

"It's not over just because we're leaving," said Michael Tribble the day after the Indians agreed to leave and meet with officials of the Northern States Power Co. and the state.

The meeting was tentatively scheduled Aug. 16-17 when the Chippewa's Lac Court Oreilles band agreed to a request by Gov. Patrick Lucey that they end their demonstration. The protest dramatized efforts to get back land now covered by the Chippewa Flowage.

The power company has had a 50-year lease on the land to create the flowage for power generation. But the lease expires Saturday, and the firm has applied for its renewal.

The AIM director from Denver, Vernon Bellecourt, said the main reason the Chippewas and other AIM members moved out was concern over local residents' reaction.

"They (the local Chippewa) are worried about public pressure," he said. "They are worried what the local people there will do if we stay much longer."

Bellecourt said he was unhappy with the decision to end the seizure. He said that for nearly 500 years Indians have been compromising and running away when whites gave them promises.

"I'm pessimistic. I hope I'm wrong. I hope Lucey will live up to his word and that we will be given what we've been told we will get," he said.

"But too often—no, always—it happens that we meet the white man's terms and then the white man turns his back on us."

Arraignment Of Dean Delayed

SHEBOYGAN, Wis. (AP) — Arraignment of Douglas Dean on charges of murdering his mother and four members of a neighbor family was postponed Wednesday on a day-to-day basis.

County Judge John Buchen took the action in the case of the 19-year-old youth after noting that the transcript of an Aug. 2 preliminary hearing had not been completed.

Dean is charged with the first degree murders last month of Mrs. Warren Dean, 50; Mrs. Richard Rammer, 45, and her three sons. He formerly dated Mrs. Dean's daughter.

Nationalist China's Membership in U.N. Increasingly Perilous

BY MAX HARRELSON
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — For 20 years Nationalist China has played a difficult and uncertain role in the United Nations as it fought to check Peking's growing challenge.

Its legal status been under continuous attack. Its delegates, subjected to personal insults and snubs, have witnessed a steady erosion of influence. The last straw seems likely to come this fall, when the General Assembly may vote on giving the United Nations' "China seat" to Peking. The United States seeks to prevent the simultaneous expulsion of the Nationalists, but it is a question whether that will work.

The Nationalists have had their defenders, including the United States, but mostly they have waged a lonely battle beginning almost immediately after Chiang Kai-shek set up his government on Formosa in 1949.

Major Power

China entered the world organization in 1945 as a major power. As a leading allied government in World War II and a sponsor of the San Francisco conference, it became a permanent member of the Security Council along with the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union.

Things changed with the conquest of mainland China by the Communists.

The first crucial test came in 1950 when Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik walked out of the Security Council, announcing he would not come back until the Nationalists were ousted. The boycott ended a few months later, but not the struggle.

For the next two decades, the Chinese Nationalists remained at bay. Communist diplomats spoke of them as the "representatives of the Kuomintang clique" or men "who represent nobody."

Delegates Ignored

When Communist delegates preside over U.N. bodies, they refused to recognize the Nationalist delegates in the usual way as "the distinguished representative of China."

A Soviet ambassador, Valerian A. Zorin, once shocked the Security Council by pointing his finger at the veteran Chinese Representative, Dr. Tingfu F. Tsiang, and saying: "I give the floor to you." Other Communist delegates addressed the Chinese representatives as "mister" rather than ambassador.

Many supporters of Red China left the Chinese Nationalists off invitation lists for social affairs, refused to sit next to them at luncheons and looked the other way in chance meetings.

During Security Council consultations among the permanent members, the Soviet Union refused to talk with the Chinese. The General Assembly dropped them from the Economic and Social Council and the Commission on Narcotic Drugs, two bodies which include the major powers.

Although Nationalist China kept its status as a permanent member of the Security Council, a position specified in the U.N. charter, diplomats eventually came to speak of the Big Four rather than the Big Five.

Scholarly Dr. Tsiang and his successor, Ambassador Liu Chieh, bore the brunt of the attacks. Tsiang, now dead, was a top-flight diplomat and brilliant speaker, respected by all except extreme supporters of Peking. Liu was also an outstanding foreign affairs expert whose connection with the United Nations went back to the San Francisco conference.

Fought With Dignity

To a bystander, it seemed that both Tsiang and Liu fought their losing battle with ability and dignity. They never failed to reply to the Communist barbs—but simply to keep the record straight, they explained.

On cold war questions, the nationalists have stood solidly with the United States. On some other issues, particularly on colonialism, they often differed with Washington.

Even though their influence has waned, their friends argue that they have consistently supported the principles of the U.N. charter and faithfully adhered to U.N. decisions. This, they say makes it all the more difficult to oust them from the organization.

After 25 years Nationalist China remained one of the principal financial contributors to the United Nations. It had difficulty some years ago in meeting assessments based upon its original position as ruler of all China. Because of Formosa's improved economic conditions there has been no problem in recent years.

ARISTOCRAT

the brandy that doesn't bite back

If you haven't yet tried Aristocrat Brandy, you have a surprise in store for you. Aristocrat doesn't just claim to be the smoothest and lightest brandy blended in America—it is. And the only way to find out is to taste it. One sip and you'll notice the sterling character, the clean, distinctive but soft taste. And best of all, it doesn't bite back like so many other brandies on the market today.

This unique character Aristocrat has wasn't developed overnight. It took years of experimenting with the finest grapes, special fermentation and distillation methods, and careful aging in white oak barrels, to discover the perfect balance in smoothness and character.

It's no wonder, in more than 20 years, Aristocrat has won more awards and gold medals at official California judgings than any other brandy in America. But you should judge for yourself. We guarantee it'll become your favorite brandy, too.

Tax Decisions Arrived at Secretly

By ARTHUR L. SRB
Associated Press Writer

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The Wisconsin taxpayer apparently is going to be hard hit in the pocketbook once again—and he may not even be aware of the reasons.

Why? Because decisions on some spending programs have been reached in part behind a veil of legislative secrecy.

Members of a six-man panel created to work out a compromise on the state's nearly $2 billion budget have conducted sessions behind closed doors, some of them away from the statehouse and the eyes of the public and news media.

At least one session was held in a savings and loan association office building across from the Capitol, the Associated Press has learned from sources close to the committee.

Hush-Hush Atcivities

Activities of the group were so hush-hush at times that even Sen. Fred Risser of Madison, the Democratic minority leader, wasn't aware of its deliberations and progress.

"This shows the weaknesses in our anti-secrecy laws," said Risser. "I honestly don't know what the facts are. This is the one thing we've been trying to avoid—decision making behind closed doors."

Republican Atty. Gen. Robert Warren, a former state senator, agreed with Risser that the committee's activities may point up serious deficiencies in the anti-secrecy statute.

"There are no penalties," Warren said. "The statutes even fail to state who should initiate action against violators—the district attorney or the attorney general.

Too Vague

Warren described the present law as "too vague" and "inadequate" and, asked if he would participate in a secret meeting of a conference committee, replied:

"I don't think so. All conference committees I've been on have always deliberated in public."

Wisconsin law provides that governmental bodies may meet in secret for personnel matters, land purchases or legal strategy decisions, but otherwise must not conduct business behind closed doors.

Republican Sen. James Swan of Elkhorn, a member of the conference committee, criticized the closed door meetings a week ago and vowed he would not take part in secret sessions again.

Stifle Protests

Several conservative lawmakers expressed the view privately that the closed meetings—sandwiched between public sessions—were an attempt to stifle Swan's protests against hikes in taxing and spending programs backed by liberals.

Other Republican committee members are Sens. Walter Hollander of Rosendale and AK Cirilli of Superior. Democratic members are Reps. George Molinaro of Kenosha, Norman Anderson of Madison and Anthony Earl of Wausau.

Swan said he thought the other five committee members "honestly believed that closed meetings would hasten the budget building progress."

"I agree they would," he said, "and to the disadvantage of the over-taxed public."

Earl said the closed meetings had no sinister intent.

"Not Deviously Planned

"Most of it was quite informal and not at all deviously planned," Earl said. "The meetings can be, by and large, characterized as informal rather than decision-making."

"I can say in fairness that we weren't engaged in trading off items," he added. The secret meeting which proceeded a series of rapid-fire motions last Wednesday to restore $1.5 million in grain and meat inspection programs to the Assembly budget version and cut $1 million from the University of Wisconsin budget was a case in point, Earl said.

"Nobody said, 'Listen, Art, we'll give you the Douglas County court if you give in on this and that,'" Earl said in reference to an administration proposal to eliminate a county judgeship.

Earl added that it was no secret Cirilli would not lend his support to the conference report unless certain programs were included, a fact which Cirilli had stated publicly.

Lucey Concerned by Late Budget Results

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. Patrick J. Lucey said Wednesday he is concerned that the delay in passing a state budget has inconvenienced state agencies and local governments.

Although the first month of the 1971-73 biennium has passed with the state's 1969-71 budget still in effect, there is little concensus of what impact that has had.

The major tax increases and new programs contained in Lucey's budget take effect on Jan. 1, 1972, half way through the budget's first year.

One tax increase which would have taken effect July 1 had the budget been passed was a 35 per cent increase in liquor taxes. That would net the state about $500,000 a month.

Go Into Effect

In past sessions, major tax increases have generally been planned to go into effect as soon as a budget was approved.

A sales tax increase went into effect in September, 1969, within day of its passage and put retail merchants across the state in confusion over its extent.

Lucey said in an interview, however, that he didn't plan the tax package in anticipation of a budget delay.

"I made every effort to get a budget signed by June 30," the governor stated, adding such would have been the case had the GOP-dominated Senate gone along with his proposal as it was passed in the Assembly.

Pared Budget

The Senate responded instead by paring Lucey's proposed $190 million in tax increases from the budget, and sending the two documents to a bipartisan conference committee where they aer now being disected.

Republicans have responded jubilantly to the impasse, saying the delay saves the taxpayer money.

"It's a blessing to the taxpayer," commented Rep. Jon Guiles, R-Oshkosh.

But the delay has thrown the budgets of some school districts into doubt. Those districts which approve budgets at annual meetings through July and August will have to do so with no assurance of how much state aid they will receive.

Unresolved Issues

The school aid and tax redistribution formulas remain unresolved issues on the budget conferees' agenda.

Lucey's proposals would result in less aid to about a quarter of the state's school districts—which would presumably have to tighten their belts or raise taxes to compensate for the loss—while the remaining distrits would reap an increase. crease.

Tax redistribution likewise could hurt the pocketbooks of some localities—which have been labeled "tax islands" by Lucey's aides—while helping others. But municipalities have not yet begun drawing up their budgets.

Their process begins in late September and early October, by which time even Lucey's most ardent foes hope the state has a new budget.

Otte Blasts Lawmakers For Junkets

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — An Assembly Democrat blasted fellow Sheboygan lawmaker Sen. Ernest Keppler Wednesday for delaying action on the state budget so lawmakers can travel on junkets to Wichita, Kan. and Minneapolis.

Rep. Carl Otte said in a statement the trips to legislative conferences at state expense are more important to the upper house's majority leader "than the difficult but crucial task of acting on the peoples' business in Madison."

Otte said a three week recess for the state budget conference committee to complete its action is too long considering the amount of work still ahead of the panel.

"There is no justification for the stalling which is now going on," said Otte, one of the Assembly's representatives on the Joint Finance Committee.

Professor at UW Turns Astronaut

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A former University of Wisconsin professor who is shooting for the stars now as an astronaut, rather than just looking at them, is a capsule communicator for the Apollo 15 mission.

Robert A. R. Parker has been busy at Mission Control—guiding the astronauts on their moon voyage, coaxing them, joking with them and helping make sure that they get back home safely.

The former associate professor whose field of interest is interstellar matter, now spends hours at the console board relaying instructions and information.

He once said he hoped the clear view that space flights offer might help solve the mystery of quasars—objects deep in space which emit energy far too high for their apparent size, under the laws of conventional physics.

Now that man has ventured into space, Parker said after he became an astronaut, there is no turning back.

"My feeling is that we are in space to stay. Space exploration is inevitable in the history of man," he said.

Train Crushes Cab Of Truck, Brothers Escape Serious Injury

RHINELANDER, Wis. (AP) — Two brothers escaped serious injury when their semi-trailer went into a ditch, tipped toward a passing train, had its top ripped off and the roof of its cab crushed early Wednesday.

Marvin Poepping, 25, of Clearwater, Minn., and his 10-year-old brother, LeRoy, were on Wisconsin 17 north of Rhinelander, authorities said, when Marvin noted the flashing red lights of a railroad crossing ahead in the fog.

The driver swerved into the ditch and traveled along it 217 feet parallel to the tracks. Marvin escaped without injury and LeRoy with a few cuts and bruises.

About half of the cargo of eggs were scrambled.
